FOREWORD: A 125-YEAR TENNIS TRADITION

Before there was a Rose Bowl, before the establishment of the Davis Cup, before baseball's first World Series, the first Indy 500, and decades before golf's Masters, the best players in tennis were congregating in the southwest corner of Ohio for a very special tournament: the Cincinnati Open.

And 125 years later the event is alive and well, still attracting the best players and entertaining fans.

Today, it is arguably the oldest tournament in the United States still played in its original city. However, as the word "arguably" in the preceding sentence suggests, this distinction needs a bit of explanation.

The oldest tournament in America still in operation is the U.S. National Championships, now known as the US Open, and Cincinnati has the second-oldest tournament still in operation. The distinction unique to Cincinnati, however, is that its tournament is still played in its original city.

Tennis is first played in America in 1874, and in 1881 the U.S. National Championships begins at the venerable Newport Casino in Newport, Rhode Island. It remains in Newport until 1915 when it moves 175 miles southwest to the West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills, New York.

Newport wastes no time in replacing the U.S. Nationals with another tournament. Only two weeks before the inaugural U.S. Nationals at Forest Hills, the "First Annual Newport Invitational" is held at the Newport Casino. It features a 50-man singles draw (no women's competition) and is won by Richard Norris Williams II, who beats Maurice McLaughlin in four sets in the final. Today's iteration of that event is known as the Hall of Fame Open.

In contrast, the Cincinnati Open is played at the Avondale Athletic Club from 1899 to 1902, and then moves two miles away – to the Cincinnati Tennis Club at the corner of Dexter and Wold Avenues in the suburb of East Walnut Hills. With a few exceptions, the tournament is played at that location for the next six decades. Today, its home is in the Cincinnati suburb of Mason, approximately 20 miles from the spot where the tournament's first ball is struck in 1899.

That may answer the question as to why Cincinnati is the oldest tournament in the nation still played in its original city, but perhaps a more interesting question is this: why did it begin at all?

It may be easy to imagine the start of the tournament in 1899 as a random, happy accident, made on a whim by club members without much thought. In reality, its creation is the result of a collision of five elements present in Cincinnati at the time: experience, venues, players, fans and location.

In 1899, Cincinnati has the experience: It has residents who have developed vast experience running large tournaments in the years before the beginning of the Cincinnati Open.

Cincinnati has tournament-ready venues: It is the home of multiple tennis clubs with facilities capable of hosting large events, clubs with multiple courts and grand clubhouses.

Cincinnati has excellent players: The city has witnessed the development of several players with national reputations for excellence on the court, players who excel in tournaments around the nation and play for eastern Ivy League colleges which are near the center of the sport at the time. These players are more than ready to meet visiting competition from around the country.

Cincinnati has the fans: Because its citizens adopted the sport of tennis so early in its evolution, it has a large repository of knowledgeable and enthusiastic fans, men and women who truly appreciate the game and hang on every shot.

Cincinnati is well positioned geographically: It is the nation's 10th-largest city at the time, is centrally located, and is a rail hub, making it is easy to reach for visiting players and fans.

Cincinnati's first connection to the game came, ironically, when a Cincinnati visits Rhode Island. Only 20 miles from the Newport Casino is Narragansett Pier, where an 18-year-old named Stewart Shillito is first exposed to the game. He is captivated by the sport and brings it home to Cincinnati.

In 1878, only four years after the sport is first played in America, he builds a tennis court – the first one in the city – at his father's home in the suburb of Mt. Auburn. Interest in the sport grows rapidly in the city, and more courts are soon built.

Just two years later, in 1880, a group of Cincinnati establish the Cincinnati Tennis Club, which is today one of the oldest active clubs in the nation. Other clubs form as well, and in 1889 several local clubs establish the Cincinnati Lawn Tennis Association to host large tournaments, including the Ohio State Tennis Championships in 1891 and 1893.

In 1894, the Cincinnati Tennis Club hosts its own "national tournament." The field includes a 17-year-old from Connecticut named George Preston Sheldon. Sheldon, a future two-time U.S. National doubles champion, reaches the singles final where he defeats Cincinnati Burton P. Hollister. Hollister has just graduated and left the Yale University tennis team, while Sheldon is a future member of the team.

So in 1899 when the Avondale Athletic Club begins what it expects will be a national tournament and the biggest tennis tournament the city and the Midwest has seen, it isn't a surprise. It is the natural and organic result of nearly two decades of devotion to the development of the sport by Cincinnatians.

Organizers invite the best players in the country to play, alongside the best local players. Some of the locals include Nathaniel "Nat" Emerson and Winona Closterman, both rising stars in national tennis circles, Hollister and Julia Doherty, the reigning tennis champion of Ohio. When the first ball is struck at 9:30 a.m. on the morning of September 18, 1899, they are joined by some of the best in the game at the time: future International Tennis Hall of Famer Juliette Atkinson and Raymond D. Little of New York; Myrtle McAteer of Pittsburgh; J. Parnly Paret of New Jersey; Edith Parker, Miriam Steever and L. Harry Waidner of Chicago; Maud Banks of Philadelphia; and Hallie Champlin of St. Louis.

The Cincinnati Enquirer reports the draws include "the champions of America" and that Parker and McAteer "rank among the first four women (tennis) experts in the country," although national rankings for women do not begin until 1913.

The Cincinnati Times-Star reports: "Just think of it! The leading tennis players of the United States are here!"

Organizers, or the "tournament committee" as they were called, engage and employ the expertise they have developed over the years to produce an outstanding event that first year, and set Cincinnati on a path to become one of the best tennis tournaments in the world.

In 1908, the editor of American Lawn Tennis Magazine visits the tournament for the first time and marvels at the organization of the event and the popularity of tennis in Cincinnati.

"To the visitor who sees the Cincinnati tournament for the first time the most striking features are: First, the attendance; Second, the business-like way in which the meeting is run and the careful subdivision of the labor, everything being evidently carefully planned in advance; Third, the "get together" spirit of the members of the various clubs in the Cincinnati district – clubs widely separated throughout the many charming suburbs and even over the Ohio River into Kentucky. The result is a smoothly moving, well-oiled machine, a committee that is never flustered or nervous, and a membership that seems to give itself abandon and bubbling enthusiasm that is as unusual as it is pleasant to see."

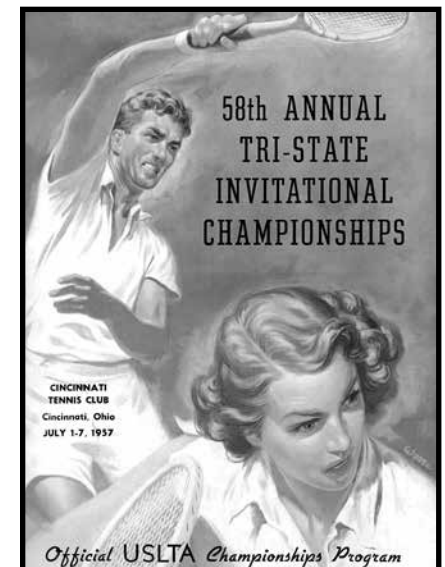

That well-oiled tournament machine is still in operation. First seen 125 years on a club court in Avondale, today it is evident on Center Court in the charming suburb of Mason.

Since the beginning of the sport in America, Cincinnati has embraced and cultivated the sport of tennis. The result is that Cincinnati is, and been for many years, a true tennis town, with a tournament history unlike any other city in America.

entire West.”

– The September 19, 1899, edition of the Cincinnati Times Star, reporting on the tournament's first day of existence.

HISTORY – Years, Editions, Names, Dates & Venues

Today, the ATP Tour and the WTA Tour in conjunction with the Grand Slams, determine the worldwide tennis calendar. But when the Cincinnati Open began the dates were determined by the tournament and/or the United States Tennis Association. In some years, dates are selected based on the availability of certain players. Here are the years, editions, names, dates, locations and other information for the tournament since 1899.

Scheduling Conflict with Wimbledon: For 33 years, the Cincinnati tournament was scheduled in direct conflict with Wimbledon, specifically in 1912, 1913, 1914, 1925, 1927, 1928, 1933, 1934, 1936, 1937, 1938, 1939, 1946, 1947, 1948, 1949, 1950, 1951, 1952, 1953, 1954, 1956, 1957, 1958, 1959, 1961, 1962, 1963, 1964, 1965, 1966, 1967 and 1968. In other years, such as 1978, the tournament was scheduled close enough to Wimbledon to cause issues with player fields. (Note: Wimbledon was not conducted for 10 years, from 1915 to 1918 and from 1940 to 1945; Cincinnati was not conducted for three years: 1918, 1921 and 1935.)

The tournament began in 1899 as the Cincinnati Open at the Avondale Athletic Club. The land is now occupied by Xavier University, and the clubhouse in the photo becomes Xavier's first student center.

A 19th Century Beginning

The tournament starts at a suburban athletic club known for its natural seating capabilities, future International Tennis Hall of Famers enter the first year, and crowds flock to see them.

1899 – The Cincinnati Open begins at 9:30 a.m. on September 18 on the “elastic clay and brick dust” courts of the Avondale Athletic Club.

The first match played is a women's doubles tilt between Nellie Leaman and Marion Hunt of Cincinnati and the team of Hallie Champlin of St. Louis and Edith Parker of Chicago. Champlin and Parker win 6-0, 6-0.

It isn't a good start for the players from Cincinnati, but it is a start of a tournament which will stretch into the 21st century and become one of the biggest and most prestigious tournaments in tennis.

The tournament is billed as a national tournament from the very beginning. As the Kansas City Journal reports on August 27, 1899, “The Cincinnati Lawn Tennis Association, composed of a number of (Cincinnati tennis) clubs, will give a national tournament for the week, commencing Monday, September 18, on the courts of the Avondale Athletic Club.” And players of national caliber do enter that first year. In addition to Parker and Champlin, players include future International Tennis Hall of Famer Juliette Atkinson of Brooklyn, New York, Myrtle McAteer of Pittsburgh, Miriam Steever and L. Harry Waidner of Chicago, and Maud Banks of Philadelphia. The Cincinnati Enquirer reports that Parker and McAteer “rank among the first four women (tennis) experts in the country,” although national rankings for women do not start until 1913. As the Cincinnati Times-Star reports: “Just think of it! The leading tennis players of the United States are here!”

The women's singles field has 16 players, the same number as Wimbledon that year, and 36 players enter the men's singles field, making the men's draw larger than the 1899 U.S. National Championships, held a month earlier in Newport, Rhode Island.

Of the 36 men's players, four play in the preliminary rounds: Joseph Bryan Fenley, George DeCamp, Robert Mitchell and Nat Wright. DeCamp beats Fenley to advance, and Mitchell beats Wright. DeCamp and Mitchell then play each other in the first round, with Mitchell winning 6-2, 6-3.

Among those players who reach the men's singles round of 16 is Ralph Todd Kellogg, the great nephew of First Lady Mary Todd Lincoln, widow of the 16th President of the United States, Abraham Lincoln.

In women's singles, McAteer wins the title over Atkinson in the final. Banks, the women's singles finalist at the U.S. National Championships a month earlier, and Winona Closterman of Cincinnati are semifinalists.

Leaman shakes off her first-round doubles loss and reaches the round of 16 in singles. In 1904, she marries Hulbert Taft, and the wedding guests include Taft's uncle and fellow Cincinnati, William Howard Taft, then U.S. Secretary of War and the future President of the United States.

All men's and women's singles and doubles matches are “best-of-three-sets” until the finals, which are all best-of-five.

Emerson is the first men's singles champion; he defeats fellow Cincinnati Dudley V. Sutphin in the final. Sutphin defeats Ernest “Ernie” Diehl in the semifinals to reach the final, and Emerson defeats Robert Mitchell.

Diehl goes on to win two Cincinnati doubles titles with Emerson and then play Major League Baseball for the Boston Beaneaters (which later become the Boston Braves, and are now the Atlanta Braves). Later he becomes the head baseball coach at the University of Cincinnati.

Sutphin, who played tennis at Yale before graduating in 1897, goes on to become a lawyer and a judge. He wins the French Legion of Honor Medal for service in World War I.

McAteer, the reigning U.S. women's doubles champion, pairs with Atkinson to take the women's doubles title over Closterman and Julia Doherty (the women's singles winner of the 1891 Ohio State Championship).

To win the first men's doubles title, Emerson and Burton Hollister have to defeat a pair of Chicagoans in the final: Laurin Hamilton Turner and Charles Duffield Wrenn Halsey. Halsey is the first cousin of Robert Duffield Wrenn, four-time singles champion at the U.S. National Championships, and a member of Theodore Roosevelt's “Rough Riders” in 1898.

The tournament also includes mixed doubles, and Closterman teams with Robert Mitchell to take that title over Banks and John Hammond of Chicago. Also, in what would be a trend many years later, there are six men's “doubles-only” players.

Attendance over the week is described as “excellent,” and 2,000 spectators are estimated to be in attendance on the final day.

Several people rotate the position of tournament director during the week, and the first person to hold the title is Ralph Holterhoff, an insurance agent and Hyde Park resident who is later instrumental in establishing Cincinnati's Charter Committee.

He is followed during the week by Sutphin, Harry MacKoy, A. Bart Horton, Frank Williams and Frank Garrison. George DeCamp is in charge of the facilities, and John B. Keys is selected as the

There are no trophies, but players compete for these prizes:

Gentlemen's Singles:

1st prize: Rookwood ale set – a tankard and six mugs (the purchase price is $150, which equates to $5,500 in today's dollars. However, in today's highly collectable Rookwood pottery market, this set could sell for more than $15,000 if auctioned now)

2nd prize: Dress suit traveling case with toilet kit

Consolation prize: Rookwood tobacco jar

Ladies' Singles:

1st prize: Rookwood vase (cost: $100)

2nd prize: three-piece silver berry set

Gentlemen's Doubles:

1st prize: seven-piece silver toilet set

2nd prize: diamond scarf pins

Ladies' Doubles:

1st prize: gold belt buckles

2nd prize: cut glass silver toilet bottles

Mixed Doubles:

1st prize: pearl pendant, cut-glass decanter

2nd prize: "pim" tennis rackets

The 20th Century

Off-court squabbles about land and a proposed streetcar force the tournament to find a new home, Cincinnati quickly gains a national reputation for enthusiastic fans and high attendance, and Cincinnati tennis leaders find themselves in the eye of a national tennis storm.

1900 – After its successful inaugural year, anticipation and expectations are high for the second Cincinnati Open. "Lovers of lawn tennis in this section of the country were never so numerous or so enthusiastic as at the present time, and all are anxiously awaiting the Cincinnati Open tournament to be held next week," reports the Cincinnati Enquirer on August 26, 1900.

Myrtle McAteer of Pittsburgh, the singles champion at the 1900 U.S. National Championships (now called the US Open), wins her second women's singles title, becoming the first player – male or female – to retain a title in Cincinnati. She also pairs with Maud Banks of Philadelphia and repeats as doubles champion, another first.

Players in the 28-man men's singles draw include Raymond D. Little of New York, Nat Emerson of Cincinnati, and Fred Alexander of New York. Alexander and Little are the doubles champions of "the Western Section," a section of the United States Lawn Tennis Association now known as the USTA/Midwest Section. Those three men and John Roche of Chicago reach the semifinals, with Little and Emerson emerging to engage one another in the final. Little wins 6-2, 6-4, 6-2 to take the second men's singles title.

Most tennis tournaments at the time are situated on a flat piece of land where courts are constructed, and wooden bleachers for seating. One distinction of the Cincinnati Open is its use of the hilly terrain at the Avondale Athletic Club to create a more intimate and natural viewing point for fans.

Wright & Ditson's Tennis Annual states "The courts upon which the matches were held are perhaps the most beautifully situated in the country. Steep hills sloping upward on three sides form a natural amphitheater and offer a vantage ground for a perfect view of the play below."

Articles in newspapers across the nation state Cincinnati is offering prizes for winners totaling 1901 – The Cincinnati Lawn Tennis Association changes the name of the tournament to the “Tri-State Tennis Tournament.” The media refers to this year’s tournament as the “third-annual Tri-State,” retroactively applying the name “Tri-State” to the first two tournaments.

Along with a new name, the tournament now has a trophy: a sterling silver bowl called the “Governor’s Bowl” in honor of the board of governors of the Avondale Athletic Club, and the Cincinnati Enquirer reports, “The Governor’s Bowl is the best and most expensive trophy in the United States.”

The bowl is purchased by Cincinnati insurance agent Charles J. Iredell in 1900 for $500 ($18,300 today) at Theodore B. Starr’s in New York. It is a massive, gold-lined bowl, more than two feet in diameter with an embossed design of grapevines and Bacchus heads. It is inscribed with both names for the tournament: “The Cincinnati Open Tennis Tournament” and “Tri-State Championship.”

Raymond D. Little plays through the 32-man field and successfully defends his title, the first men’s singles player to do so. He becomes the first player to have his name inscribed on the bowl. Little is reportedly in awe of the trophy, telling the Cincinnati Post it is “the handsomest tennis trophy in the country.” The Post reports Little vows to “come back to Cincinnati every year until he wins the tournament the three times necessary to make it his permanent property.”

Fred Alexander and Little also defend their doubles title, becoming the first men’s doubles team to retain a title, and marking the first time in tournament history that both men’s titles are retained from the previous year.

Alexander also reaches the semifinals in singles before falling to Kreigh Collins of Chicago. In the quarterfinals, he defeats 20-year-old John A. Roche, Jr., the son of John A. Roche, a recent mayor of Chicago.

Future International Tennis Hall of Famer Juliette Atkinson of Brooklyn, New York, reaches her second singles final, only to lose for the second time. This year, she loses to Winona Closterman, the 23-year-old Ohio state singles champion. Atkinson pairs with fellow future Hall of Famer Marion Jones of Nevada (the daughter of Senator John P. Jones of that state), to take her second Cincinnati doubles crown.

1902 – The tournament moves from the control of the Cincinnati Lawn Tennis Association to the auspices of the Ohio Lawn Tennis Association, the organizer of the Ohio State Tennis Championship. Plans are to make the tournament bigger and better, as the Cincinnati Enquirer reports on June 22, 1902: “From the present indications the coming tennis tournament, which will take place at the Avondale Athletic Club courts next month, will, in all probability, prove the most successful ever held in this city. The affair will be given under the auspices of the Ohio Lawn Tennis Association, which is making great effort to have every crack player in America to try his or her skill on the local grounds.”

The article states commitments from players are being received, and the reception committee is hard at work “arranging for the entertainment of their distinguished visitors.” Winona Closterman is recruiting players at the women’s national championships where she also is competing, and the tournament trophy is on display for two weeks in New York to allow the public and prospective players a glimpse of the famous bowl. The budget to purchase other gifts for champions and finalists is doubled.

A new addition to the tournament is the “Challenge Round” in men’s singles. Under this arrangement, the singles champion from the previous year does not play until the tournament is over, and then plays against whomever wins the tournament.

Raymond D. Little, the 1901 singles champion, beats Kreigh Collins of Chicago, the top player in the United States Lawn Tennis Association’s Western Section, in the Challenge Round to win the title.

To reach that Challenge Round match, Collins has to play the tournament final against Reuben G. Hunt (father of future tennis champion Joe Hunt) in the morning and then play a five-set Challenge Round match with Little in the afternoon. In the Challenge Round match, Collins starts strong but breaks down, as the final score illustrates: 3-6, 6-8, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2. It is the first men’s singles final in tournament history to go all five sets. The Challenge Round format lasts at the tournament until 1917.

Twenty-one-year-old Ernest R. Patterson of Canada enters the men’s singles field and reaches the semifinals before falling to Collins, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1. He is the first non-American ever to enter the tournament.

Closterman wins the mixed doubles title and is a finalist in both the women’s doubles and singles. She loses to Maud Banks of Philadelphia in singles and Banks and Hallie Champlin of St. Louis in doubles. Three weeks earlier at the U.S. National Championships, Closterman reached the singles quarterfinals and teamed with Banks to reach the doubles final.

Also, the first men’s doubles finals match to last five sets is played. In the final, Ernie Diehl and Nat Emerson defeat Royal Miller and Mark Lincoln Mitchell 3-6, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-3.

1903 – The tournament moves from the Avondale Athletic Club to the Cincinnati Tennis Club at the corner of Wold and Dexter Avenues in East Walnut Hills. The reason for the move: a streetcar.

Caius Cobb Bragg, a real estate developer and member of the Avondale Athletic Club, wants a Little, 6-1, 6-4, 6-3, but they team up to win two other Cincinnati doubles championships: 1902 and 1903. Emerson goes on to win numerous singles and doubles titles in Cincinnati and elsewhere, and Diehl goes on to play Major League Baseball.

streetcar line to be constructed from Reading Road down Dana Avenue. The purpose is to provide easier access to the club, but also to aid in the development of a nearby subdivision Bragg owns. To secure the streetcar line, he needs a majority of the property owners in the area to agree, and he’s assured of success because he is the only property owner in the area at the time. But opposition exists to the idea, and another club member buys two lots near the club in order to block the streetcar plan. According to an article in the Cincinnati Enquirer on June 28, 1959, this move creates “such dissension in the club that it was considered inadvisable to hold the tournament” and the event is moved to the Cincinnati Tennis Club. The spat leads to the closing of Avondale Athletic Club by the end of the year.

Founded in 1880, the Cincinnati Tennis Club is still active today, making it today one of the oldest active clubs in the nation. Early members include future U.S. President William Howard Taft, inventor of Ivory Soap James Norris Gamble, yeast manufacturer Julius Fleischmann, and U.S. Minister to Bolivia and former Union Civil War Colonel Leopold Markbreit.

Kreigh Collins of Chicago slices through the 32-man men’s singles field (30 battled in the preliminary round) to win the title over Raymond D. Little of New York. On the final day, it is reported that “there was scarcely enough standing room for many who came to view the finals.”

In men’s doubles, every match is best-of-five sets, whereas in the past only the finals were best-of-five sets. This would be the format for men’s doubles until 1912 when only the semifinals and finals would be best-of-five.

On the women’s side, Winona Closterman of Cincinnati defeats Myrtle McAteer of Pittsburgh to take the singles title and a “silver-handled silken parasol.” McAteer wins a “silver belt” for her efforts.

1904 – On September 1, 1904, the Cincinnati Post prints a headline that sums up Cincinnati’s place in the tennis world: “Biggest Tennis Event of the Present Year.” The article states: “Those in charge of the Tri-State tennis tourney, to be given Saturday at the Cincinnati Tennis Club...predict that this will be the biggest tennis event of the year in the United States. They claim that this will even be a greater affair than the national tournament, recently held at Newport, Rhode Island.”

One player tournament officials hope will add to the prestige of the event is Kreigh Collins of Chicago. They wait in suspense as an ailing Collins decides if he is well enough to return to Cincinnati to defend his title. Finally, on Thursday, September 8, his wife, Mrs. Ruth Coffin Collins, sends a telegram to the tournament and to the Cincinnati Enquirer stating her husband is too ill to compete. In fact, her letter states he is so ill he will not play tennis again for the rest of the year.

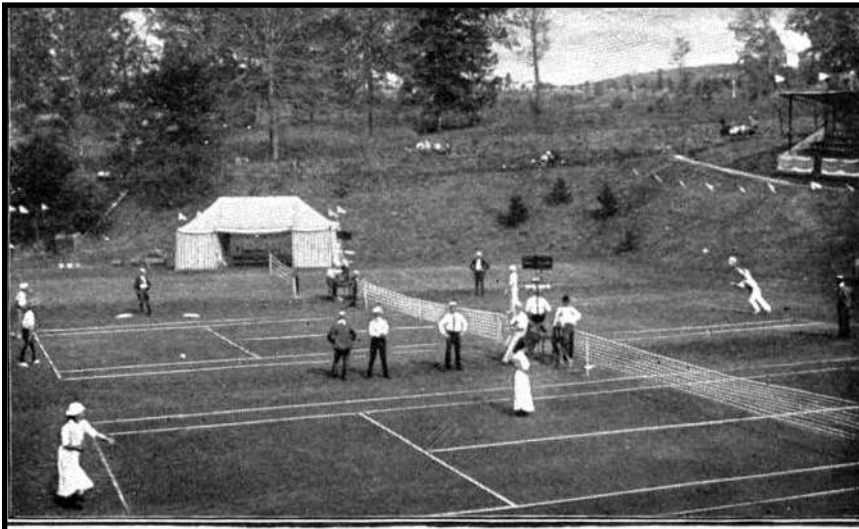

The tournament goes on, and the men’s All-Comer’s singles final is a battle of southpaws as Bels Wright of Boston (fresh off of winning gold medals in singles and doubles at the 1904 St. Louis Olympics) beats L. Harry Waidner of Chicago to take the title and his first “leg” on the Governor’s Bowl.

Waidner is a regular competitor at the Cincinnati tournament, often accompanied by his wife, Elizabeth “Bessie” Wood. Wood’s father, Joseph Hooker Wood, was a colonel in the Union Army during the Civil War, and his uncle (Bessie’s great uncle), is General Joseph “Fighting Joe” Hooker, a famous figure in the Civil War, who had his own Cincinnati connection. After the war, “Fighting Joe” moved to Cincinnati and married a local woman, Olivia Groesbeck, daughter of Congressman William S. Groesbeck. Joseph and Olivia are buried in Cincinnati’s Spring Grove Cemetery.

In a repeat of the 1903 women’s singles final, Myrtle McAteer keeps Winona Closterman from repeating as women’s singles champion by beating her in the final, 7-5, 6-3.

On Friday, September 9, McAteer spoke to the Cincinnati Post about her thoughts on the Cincinnati tournament and tennis in general. “I have been in tournaments for five years now, and I have decided to give up all save the Western States tournament and this one. This I do because I dislike to run about so much. The social side of the Tri-State and Western is most attractive to me, for at these events I never fail to have a glorious time. I shall continue to play in these for some time yet."

The Cincinnati Enquirer reports "Such a number of noted tennis players from cities throughout the United States has been entered that the Tri-State Tournament ranks very high, being only surpassed in importance by the tennis tournament of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association at Newport, Rhode Island."

The Cincinnati Commercial Tribune reports "The Cincinnati open tourney is now recognized as the largest event of its kind in the United States. It is far superior to the Western Championships held every year in Chicago."

Wright & Ditson's Tennis Annual calls Cincinnati "one of the chief centers of the United States." Ironically, the "Wright" of Wright & Ditson's is George Wright, the man who founded the Cincinnati Reds baseball club in 1869, along with his brother Harry Wright. George also is the father of Beals Wright, who would win the Cincinnati tournament each year between 1904 and 1906, and Irving C. Wright, who wins the mixed doubles title and reaches the doubles finals in 1907.

Cincinnati is not only becoming known as an outstanding tournament for all the players, it is gaining a particular reputation for the way it treats the players in its women's events.

In his book, Lawn Tennis at Home and Abroad, which is published in 1904, author A. Wallis Myers notes: "Women's events have not, until lately, been given the importance that they deserve. There are, however, three or four tournaments which most of the best women players enter – the Championship held near Philadelphia in June, the Western Championship held in Chicago in September, the Cincinnati event, and Longwood in October. In these tournaments women's events are given all due attention but in other tournaments they are, unfortunately, more or less a side issue."

1905 – After the tournament, Wright & Ditson's Tennis Annual states "The most brilliant and successful tournament ever held in the West was played August 26 to September 4 on the courts of the Cincinnati Tennis Club."

At the end of the tournament, the Cincinnati Enquirer reports "The week has been a strenuous one for the followers of the game. No less than 124 matches were played in all the events, not counting the consolation games. Apart from marvelous playing of Miss Sutton, the spectators had the opportunity of seeing some of the foremost players in the country, including Miss Homans, Miss McAteer, Robert Leroy, Raymond D. Little (and) Kreigh Collins.... It was the most successful tournament the city has ever known, and means that subsequent ones in the coming years will bring additional world-famed players to the local courts. In fact, it is the consensus of opinion among the visitors that Cincinnati will eventually become the Mecca for tennis players in this country."

The "Miss Sutton" mentioned by the Enquirer is

Winona Closterman

"Miss Winona Closterman is devoted to sweet peas (flowers) and always wears a huge bunch of the pink and white blossoms at her belt; Miss Carrie Neely is brisk and business-like and takes her tennis seriously; Miss Marie Weimer, of Washington D.C., is inseparable from her racquet; Miss Myrtle McAteer, Western States Champion and twice holder of the Tri-State championship, is the biggest person present in the eyes of the younger players. In reality she is a slim, dark-haired athletic girl, "quicker than greased lightning" on the tennis court. Miss Martha Kinsey, of Wyoming, although not a champion, ranks with the best women players in the tourney. Miss Hilda Von Steinwehr, Miss Margery Dodd, the Misses Mardi and Marion Hunt and Miss Trenna Hofer are pretty Cincinnati society girls who play excellent tennis, and manage to have a much better time between acts than all the professionals present. The men players have established headquarters near the water cooler on the opposite side of the porch, and Mrs. (Kreigh) Collins and Mrs. (L. Harry) Waidner frequently desert the iced tea for the water tank, gaining thereby frivolous conversation and passable jokes – an element utterly lacking in the iced tea corner." — The Cincinnati Post, July 22, 1903, describing the scene on the porch of the Cincinnati Tennis Club during the tournament.

Californian May Sutton, who comes to Cincinnati fresh from winning the Wimbledon title. Although she won the U.S. National Championships in 1904, she chooses to play in Cincinnati rather than defend that title in 1905. Sutton's decision is indicative of player sentiment at the time relative to the National Championships at Newport, and that sentiment would become more public in 1907.

Sutton arrives in Cincinnati a week before the tournament and it is reported that her "daily practice at the various local clubs aroused the enthusiasm" of those who witnessed them, according to Wright & Ditson's Tennis Annual.

Sutton plays six matches to win the women's singles title (including the Challenge Round) and loses only one game in all six. She wins 72 of 73 games – 56 in succession. She beats Frances Smith 6-0, 6-0, in the preliminary round, Ruth Cowing 6-0, 6-0 in the first round, Helen Ratterman 6-0, 6-0 in the second round, Marjorie Dodd 6-0, 6-0 in the semifinals, Helen Homans 6-0, 6-1 in the final round, and Myrtle McAteer 6-0, 6-0 in the Challenge Round. In that Challenge Round match, McAteer never reaches "40" in any game.

Little, who has two legs on the tournament trophy, arrives in Cincinnati and immediately states his intention for the week. "I'm going to take the Governor's Bowl home with me this time," he says. "Some wealthy Cincinnati had better begin to think of donating another."

Little does his best to live up to his pre-tournament prediction. He cuts through the all-comers tournament field, defeating former champion Nat Emerson in the semifinals, only to fall to Collins in the tournament final. In a rematch of the 1904 Challenge round final, Collins loses to Boston's Beals Wright who now also has two legs on the trophy.

Little and LeRoy of New York retain their doubles title. It is the second time in tournament history both men's titles have been successfully defended.

A spliced panoramic tournament scene in 1904.

May Sutton (right) causes a sensation when a rumor surfaces she may play in Cincinnati in 1905 rather than defend her singles title at the U.S. National Championships. The Cincinnati Post reports on May 19, 1905: "Tennis devotees in Cincinnati may get to see Miss May Sutton, national woman champion tennis player, if the efforts of the promoters of the Tri-State tennis tournament, to be held at the Cincinnati Tennis Club early in September, are rewarded. Miss Sutton is going to England to play...for the championship of the world, but is expected back by the end of the summer. Miss Sutton, although only 17 years of age, is the wonder of the tennis world, the most remarkable female wielder of a racquet ever seen in America." The young Californian does play in Cincinnati in 1905 and returns in 1906, 1907 and 1912, reaching 10 finals and winning seven titles: three singles, one doubles, and three mixed doubles titles. She brings her sister Florence along in 1906, and defeats her in the singles final in front of a crowd that is standing-room only. Two days after that match, Sutton tells the Cincinnati Post: "The crowds at the tourney were greater even than those at the national tourney in Newport. I believe these contests here draw greater crowds than any other tennis tournament in the country." In 1906, Sutton is quoted as saying the Cincinnati tournament is second only to Wimbledon in the world of tennis.

Crowds swarm the Cincinnati Tennis Club for the tournament that includes noted players Little, Collins and Wright. The men play in a 64-draw for the first time (not including preliminary rounds).

After the tournament, the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune, impressed by both the attendance in the stands and the play on the courts, reports, "The five thousand people that crowded and jammed into every seat, on every stair, on house tops and in trees left the grounds feeling that no shot in tennis is impossible."

1906 – Following the tournament, Wright & Ditson's Tennis Annual reports "Cincinnati's position as the foremost tennis center of the West was again evidenced" by the 1906 tournament. A total of 180 players enter the tournament in the various draws, making it "the largest lawn tennis tournament in the history of the game" according to the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

The April 11, 1906, edition of the Cincinnati Post includes an article concerning the building of a new clubhouse for the Cincinnati Tennis Club. The newspaper, without quoting him directly, states that

Elliott Middleton, secretary of the club, "expects this to be the greatest year in the game's history, and thinks Cincinnati will uphold the reputation which Miss May Sutton says it now bears – that of being second only to Wimbledon."

This year, both May and her sister Florence Sutton cause a stir by competing in the tournament together. Two weeks before the start of the tournament, California's Oakland Tribune reports, "In the ladies events, May Sutton will be on hand to defend her title, and her sister, Miss Florence Sutton, is coming all the way from Los Angeles to play in this one tournament.... This is Miss Florence Sutton's first appearance in any tournament east of the Pacific Coast, and tennis experts all over the country will watch her progress with interest."

It is August 30, and the 1905 Cincinnati tournament is in its fourth day when articles appear in the New York Times, the Washington DC Times Herald and other national publications concerning a suggestion from renowned player William Larned: He wants to move the U.S. National Championship from Newport, Rhode Island.

As a two-time singles champion at the U.S. Nationals, a member of the U.S. Davis Cup team, and a member of the Executive Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, Larned's words carry considerable weight. Larned cites the high expenses the players incur in Newport, but there are other reasons for the move as well. In the coming years, additional players will give voice to those reasons and support Larned's position.

On August 31, just a day after Larned's idea goes public, a guest column appears in the Cincinnati Post from none other than Myrtle McAteer of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Like Larned, she's a former singles champion at the U.S. Nationals, but she also is a winner of nine titles in Cincinnati, including women's singles titles in 1899 and 1904.

At the time, only the men's event is held in Newport – the women's event is held in Philadelphia, and the men and the women will not play together until 1917. Although McAteer hasn't played the U.S. Nationals in Newport, she knows the perfect spot for the tournament: Cincinnati.

Miss McAteer Says National Tourney Should Be Held in Cincinnati
Guest Column By Miss Myrtle McAteer
Cincinnati Post* – August 31, 1905

Every time I come to Cincinnati to play tennis, I am more firmly convinced that the Queen City is the proper place to hold the national tennis tournaments. None of the Western players care to take the long trip each year to play in the national tourney. We are always glad to get back to Cincinnati.

There is more enthusiasm and more appreciation of the fine points of the sport in Cincinnati than in either Philadelphia or Chicago, where the Western States tourney is held.

There is a cordiality and warm hospitality about the welcome Cincinnatians give to the visiting players that is particularly inspiring. We feel like playing our best tennis and making the tournament a success – so far as it lies in our power – just because Cincinnatians welcome us so heartily.

There is an absence of that grasping spirit, which makes the prize the object of winning, but a real love of the sport for its own sake is manifested in Cincinnati. In my opinion, the present tourney is the best ever held in the Cincinnati series. It is not only the presence of so many champions (and especially Miss May Sutton, the international champion), but the splendid game put up by the Cincinnati players, that makes the tournament interesting.

Miss Hilda Von Steinwehr has every requisite of a great tennis player, and, with a little more experience, will be heard from in the national tournaments. I have never seen any woman player improve so much in such a short time as Miss Lulu Belden. Among the Cincinnati men players, Nat Emerson and Mark Mitchell are the strongest, but there are so many really good players in Cincinnati, it is hard to pick the best.

The manner in which Cincinnatians rejoiced in my success when I won the championship last year, forces me to acknowledge their fairness. The Cincinnati tennis enthusiasts do not "root" for their own players exclusively, as in many cities, but applaud the best players impartially. I believe Miss Sutton will be the next champion, but I will try to win that honor back another year.

Florence arrives in Cincinnati in advance of her sister May, and when May arrives in Cincinnati on Thursday, August 30, aboard the C&O Flier from Newport, Rhode Island, she is met by Florence and Cincinnati Louise "Lulu" Belden. May Sutton always stays in the Belden home while in Cincinnati.

"I'm so glad to get back to Cincinnati!" she tells the Cincinnati Post. "I had a fine time in England and in Newport, but I am glad to get back. I shall try to defend my title here this year. I enjoy coming back every year to play for it."

The sisters eventually meet in the tournament, with May defeating Florence for her second consecutive singles title. May then pairs with Marjorie Dodd to beat Florence for the doubles title as well.

Another future Hall of Famer, Karl Behr of New York, "plays in sensational form," according to a report in American Lawn Tennis magazine. He reaches the singles semifinals and wins the doubles title with Raymond D. Little.

Beals Wright wins the men's singles title, beating Raymond D. Little in five sets. It is the first time there are repeat champions in both men's and women's singles in tournament history.

It is the third singles title for Wright, and in winning that title he "retires" the Governor's Bowl. At most tournaments at the time, it is customary that a player can retain the tournament trophy only after winning the tournament three times, not necessarily in succession.

The practice is called "retiring a trophy" and each title constitutes a "leg" of the trophy. When a player wins three "legs" he or she is allowed to keep the trophy. With his wins in 1904 and 1905, Wright's title this year allows him to retire and take possession of the Bowl.

The bowl is particularly attractive to players, according to the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune, which reports on Sunday, September 9: "Shortly after the Wright-LeRoy match, the presentation of prizes was made, and Wright took permanent possession of the far-famed elusive Governor's Bowl, and it is now up to the Cincinnati Tennis Club to find a man with the goodwill of tennis at heart, like Colonel Bragg, the donator of the Governor's Bowl, who will hang up another trophy that will attract the stars of the East as this bowl has attracted them."

When Sutton wins the title, she is given possession of the women's trophy, described by American Lawn Tennis magazine as "massive and valuable," to keep for a year. She will be given permanent possession of the cup if she wins the title in 1907.

Unfortunately, Sutton placed it in a car and then "lost trace of it." It hasn't been found to this day. The tournament purchases another trophy and sends it to Sutton.

During the week, Ohio Congressman Nicholas Longworth of Cincinnati is a regular attendee with his bride, Alice Roosevelt Longworth. Mrs. Longworth is the daughter of then-President Theodore Roosevelt, and the two were married only six months earlier in a grand ceremony in the White House.

Ads for the Cincinnati tournament call it "the most important tournament in the West," and newspaper accounts call it "second in importance in the United States, the National Championship being first."

Crowds for the 1906 tournament are larger than expected and many are turned away at the gate. The event is highly popular with the players as well. In post-tournament remarks published by the Cincinnati Post on September 10, 1906, Beals Wright says "I'll come back even (though) I have won the Governor's Bowl for keeps. I like to play here in Cincinnati, better even than at the National tournament, and I'll be here next year to play both in doubles and singles." In the same article, Robert LeRoy echoes Wright's remarks: "You can't keep me away," he says.

May Sutton says "The crowds at the Cincinnati tourney were greater even than those at the national tourney in Newport. I believe these contests here draw greater crowds than any other tennis tournament in the country." The Post concludes by stating "the opening day crowds were bigger than the finals of the 1906 Western Championship in Chicago, and they were greater each day by 100 to 200 spectators than the attendance at the 1905 Tri-State tournament."

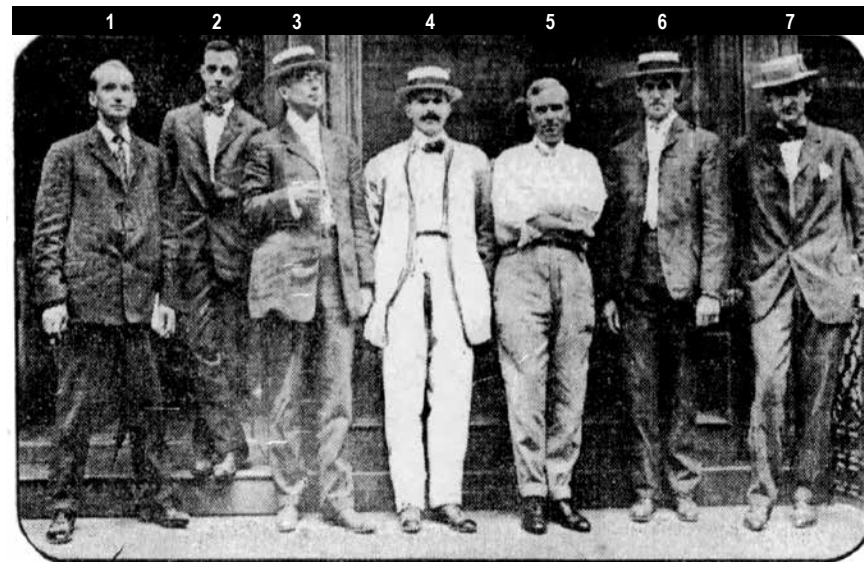

These comments not only show player support for the Cincinnati tournament, but also highlight a growing issue with the National tournament in Newport. The players soon begin calling for a change in the venue for the National event, and in 1907 Cincinnati will play the role of power-broker in the saga of where the National Championships will be held.

1907 – When the tournament gets underway on August 31, a new trophy is in place. Is it named in honor of George DeCamp, the tournament's correspondence secretary, attorney, and ardent player.

DeCamp plays tennis in late April and then becomes ill. He dies on May 11, with pneumonia listed as the cause of death.

The new bowl is a "tribute to the man to whose energy and loyal work the success of past Tri-State tournaments had been largely due," according to a report in American Lawn Tennis magazine. It is made of solid silver, weighs 17.11 pounds, is 10.5 inches high, and 16 inches in diameter. The cost in 1907 dollars is $500 (approximately $15,800 when adjusted to today's dollars).

May Sutton wins her third women's singles title and retires the Ladies Trophy. She also wins the

The 1906 tournament committee members as seen in the August 27 edition of the Cincinnati Post of that year. 1. Hugh H. Bates (a Cincinnati attorney); 2. Newell Hargrave (an executive in the oil and food industries); 3. William Tyler (the recording secretary of the committee and the namesake of the tournament trophy which would be added the following year); 4. Frederick W. Pickard (a future vice president of DuPont); 5. George DeCamp (a stock broker who would die the next year); 6. Nathaniel C. "Nat" Emerson (Cincinnati's first men's singles champion and a nationally ranked player at the time); 7. James P. Kidney (the secretary of the Ohio Lawn Tennis Association).

mixed doubles crown with partner Irving C. Wright, brother of Beals Wright.

The Cincinnati Commercial Tribune reports "The Tri-State tournament, while it carries with it the title of champion of Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky, brings to Cincinnati the foremost tennis players of the country, and is in fact the largest tournament in the West, outranking all others but the National Tournament which is held at Newport, Rhode Island."

Total attendance for the week is estimated at 6,000, with 2,000 people attending on the final day. The tournament adds 800 seats for the 1907 event after overflowing crowds in 1906.

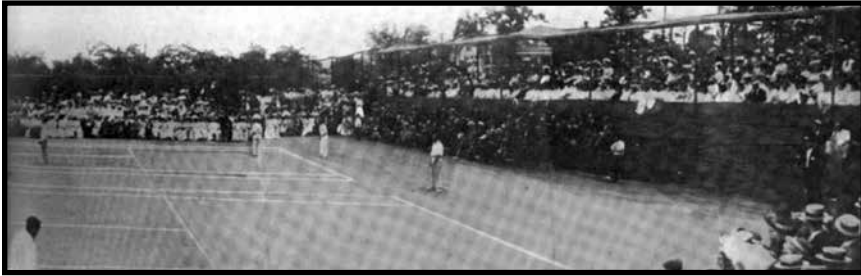

Originally scheduled for August 31 to September 7, rain forces the tournament to extend until September 9. The extension is a first for the tournament, but there are multiple occurrences of extensions in future years. In 1955, the men's singles final is suspended for two months due to rain and scheduling conflicts with the two finalists, Tony Trabert and Bernard "Tut" Bartzten.

By December, complaints from players about the National Championship in Newport, Rhode Island, become impossible to ignore. Two different factions form on the future of the tournament: one group desires to play the tournament in Bayridge,

New York (on Long Island), while another seeks to keep the event in Newport. Both factions seek the endorsement of one particular group to bolster their cause: the organizers of the Cincinnati tournament.

The LaCrosse Tribune in Wisconsin reports: "That Newport, R.I., may lose the national lawn tennis tournament, which has been a feature of that fashionable resort for many years, is suggested by a contest now under way which became public when it was learned that the Tri-State Tennis Association of Cincinnati had been approached in the interest of a transfer of the famous tourney to Bayridge, Long Island. Lack of real interest in the play is the chief objection...and the opposition is said to be strong."

The Nashville Banner puts a finer point on player complaints: "Tennis experts who played in Newport have indulged in vigorous criticism for the past few years because of the fact that the crowds who attended the tourneys there paid more attention to each other's clothes than they did to the games that they were supposed to be watching. Everybody got up late and play didn't start until noon, then stopped after about an hour and a half and wasn't resumed till late in the afternoon. As a result, many of the best racquet wielders feel that Newport should be shelved as far as tennis is concerned."

The July 1, 1908 edition of American Lawn Tennis Magazine included this photo of the courts at the Cincinnati tournament. The article marveled at how the spectators completely encircled the players.

The issue would be decided at the January 1907 meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, and Cincinnati sends Nat Emerson as its delegate to the meeting. The meeting also addresses the issue of Challenge Rounds, according to the Nashville Banner: "...the Newport-Bayridge controversy isn't the only national quibble, for there is a big argument over the effort to make champions play through tourneys instead of continuing the present arrangement, whereby champions wait till somebody wins a tourney, then play the winner in a final challenge round for the championship."

In the end, Cincinnati's position on moving the National Championship is neutrality: it backs neither faction. Both Newport and the Challenge Round survive the meeting, but only for the time being. The men's National Championship moves to Forest Hills, New York, in 1915 (the women join the men at Forest Hills in 1921), and the Challenge Round as the standard for tournaments ends in 1917.

1908 – Five separate draws hold 160 entrants for the 1908 edition of the tournament, but May Sutton isn't among them. She decides she won't play outside the state of California this year, to the consternation of fans in the Midwest.

Miss Sutton's absence notwithstanding, Wright & Ditson's Tennis Annual describes the tournament this way: "No matter how many miles separate you from Cincinnati, the last of August should see you on your way to the (Cincinnati tournament) if you wish to experience one of the richest of lawn tennis experiences."

Nat Emerson beats Robert Chauncey Seaver of Boston in the all-comers final but loses in straight sets to defending champion Robert LeRoy of New York in the Challenge Round.

Martha Kinsey defeats Ruth Sanders in the quarterfinals, Helen McLaughlin in the semifinals, and Marjorie Dodd in the final to win the women's singles title. It is the first appearance in the tournament for the 18-year-old Sanders, who will go on to be one of the winningest players in the history of women's singles and doubles in Cincinnati.

Philemon "Phil" Beecher Stanbery is tournament director, and the crowd for the men's singles final is estimated at 3,000 by American Lawn Tennis magazine.

According to Wright & Ditson's Tennis Annual: "In this Middle West feature we find a gallery which for numbers, enthusiasm and 'tennis sense' is certainly not surpassed by any tournament in the United States."

1909 – Once again Robert LeRoy of New York defeats Nat Emerson to take the men's singles title, but unlike 1908 the match goes the distance with LeRoy eventually winning 6-3, 3-6, 6-0, 1-6, 6-3. It is LeRoy's third Cincinnati title and he retires the DeCamp Bowl, which was in competition for only three years.

En route to the final, Emerson makes his seventh and final appearance in the semifinals. He's moved away from Cincinnati, and is now growing apples in Washington state. He returns in 1911 and 1915 and reaches the quarterfinals.

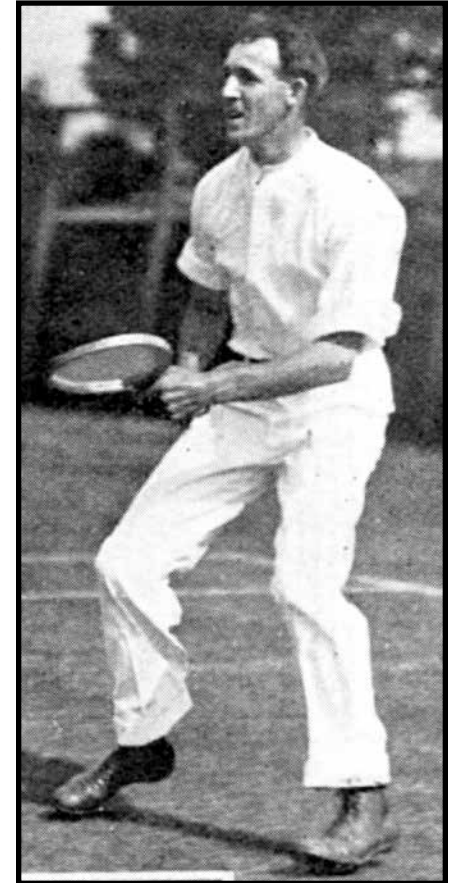

Edith Hannam, a 20-year-old British citizen living in Canada, wins the ladies singles title, becoming Cincinnati's first non-American women's singles champion. She would go on to win gold medals in singles and mixed doubles at the 1912 Olympics in Stockholm.

The tournament stretches its legs to other cities in the region, Cincinnati's clay courts become the nation's clay courts, a global conflict causes both a pause and a patriotic response from the tournament, and the scions of what would become a global consumer products company offer the event a new trophy.

1910 – Tournament officials tell the Cincinnati Post

Nat Emerson (right) was the first men's singles champion at the Cincinnati Open, and he spent time ranked in the Top 10 in the United States. But Emerson also was instrumental to the sport off the court. He was part of the organizing committee for the Cincinnati tournament, and in 1908 he played a crucial role in mediating a dispute about where the U.S. National Championships should be played, a dispute which first flared up during the 1905 Cincinnati tournament.

on August 3 this year's list of entries "will far exceed any other year, both in quality and quantity." But even with a stellar field in place, the tournament still needs one element: a trophy.

With Robert LeRoy's retiring of the DeCamp Bowl in 1909, a new trophy is needed. Tournament officials commission world-famous Tiffany of New York to create a new trophy, and the result is an impressively huge bowl christened simply the "Cincinnati Trophy". It arrives in Cincinnati from New York on August 17, and is trusted to the care of Ralph Holterhoff of the tournament committee.

The cost for the trophy is $550 (approximately $18,000 in today's currency). The money is donated by two of the world's most recognizable names in consumer products: James Norris Gamble and William Cooper Procter. Procter, a grandson of Procter & Gamble founder William Procter, is president of the company at the time. (He was president from 1907 to 1930 and chairman of the board from 1930 until 1934.) Gamble, a son of founder James Gamble, creates P&G's employee profit-sharing plan, takes the company international, and begins the "soap opera" by sponsoring the "Ma Perkins" radio program. He is a trained chemist, and early in his P&G career he develops an inexpensive white soap that is equal to the finest imported soaps of the day. It is called "Ivory Soap".

Both Gamble and Procter are tennis fans, and Gamble also is credited with donating the money to build tennis courts on the west side of Cincinnati where five-time singles champion Ruth Sanders learns to play.

Before it is retired in 1927 by George Lott, the bowl will be inscribed with the names of four Hall of Famers (Clarence Griffin, William Johnston, Bill Tilden and Lott) and a US Davis Cupper (John Hennessey).

Tournament officials announce mixed doubles will be eliminated from the tournament for the first time since 1900, but then later reconsider and reinstate the mixed doubles draw. Jane Craven and H. Truxtun

Emerson win the mixed doubles title over Martha Kinsey and Mark Lincoln Mitchell.

Thirty-four-year-old Richard Palmer of Ridgewood, New Jersey, captures the first of his two men's singles titles. In the final he defeats 21-year-old Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, the reigning NCAA men's tennis champion from the University of Pennsylvania.

The other two men's singles semifinalists are Richard Bishop of Boston and Reuben Holden of Cincinnati. After his final match, Holden, a member of the Yale tennis team, leaves immediately for the NCAA championship in Philadelphia, which he wins.

Marian "Miriam" Steever of Chicago defeats Rhea Fairbairn of Toronto to take the women's singles title.

1911 – When the tournament opens on September 2, players and fans are greeted with a headline in the Cincinnati Post: "The Eyes of the Tennis World Are Now on Cincinnati." The article touted the

The crowd, estimated to number about 3,000, are sitting around a clubhouse which was relatively new at the time. It was built in 1906 and had been remodeled and enhanced throughout the years. Below is a more recent view of the clubhouse at the Cincinnati Tennis Club without the crowd and as it substantially appears today. The Cincinnati Tennis Club was founded in 1880 and is today one of the oldest active tennis clubs in the nation.

players who hail from Washington to New York, as did Alabama's Birmingham News which reports: "Celebrated racquet wielders from all parts of the country have assembled here" and the Cincinnati Post says the tournament "will be the greatest ever held west of Newport, Rhode Island" (the national championship).

Hazel Hotchkiss enters the women's field but is a walkover in her first-round match. Harold Hackett commits to the tournament and then withdraws. One player who reaches the round of 16 is C. Drummond Jones of St. Louis, who in 1915 would wed Marie Busch, the daughter of August A. Busch, the beer baron.

Richard Palmer, the "New Jersey southpaw," wins the men's singles title over Richard Bishop of Boston. Marjorie Dodd and Helen McLaughlin tussle in the women's singles final, with Dodd taking her first of two Cincinnati singles titles.

One of the semifinalists in women's singles is 29-year-old Helen Ratterman of Cincinnati. She goes on to become a physician and serve in a high office with the U.S. Public Health Service during the influenza pandemic of 1918. Later, she becomes president of the American Medical Women's Association.

Former Cincinnati and U.S. top-ten-ranked player Nat Emerson returns to his hometown to play the tournament and reaches the quarterfinals. Emerson is now 36 years old and living in Yakima, Washington. As a warm-up for Cincinnati, he enters the Pacific Northwest Championships in Tacoma. He wins the men's singles title and pairs with Mary K. Browne to reach the finals in mixed doubles.

voyage from England to New York in April 1912, two future Tennis Hall of Fame enshrinees are on board. Both have connections to the Cincinnati tournament.

Karl Behr, a singles semifinalist and doubles champion (with Raymond D. Little) in Cincinnati in 1906, is on the ship that night. In Europe ostensibly for business, he actually is in pursuit of a love interest, Helen Morypeny Newsom. Behr is a Yale educated lawyer, yet Miss Newsom's mother doesn't approve of him and she takes her daughter to Europe in an attempt to stifle the romance. When

Behr discovers the two in England and learns they are returning to the States aboard the Titanic, he books passage on the ship himself. He is still awake when the ship hits the iceberg. When informed of the situation, he quickly runs below deck and rouses the Newsoms' from their cabin. He gets them up on deck so quickly they are among the first placed in lifeboats. Bruce Ismay, chairman of the White Star Line, is aiding the effort to put people in boats. He places the two women into a boat, and allows Behr a seat as well. All three survive. Mrs. Newsom obviously changes her mind: Mr. Behr and Miss Newsom are married 11 months later.

The other player, Richard Norris Williams II, is on the ship with his father. As the ship is sinking, Williams sees his father die when the forward funnel falls from the vessel and crushes him and many others. Williams then jumps into the icy Atlantic and manages to survive by hanging on to a partially submerged collapsible raft. He is alive, but in freezing water up to his waist. Others are dying all around him – freezing to death, not drowning – but he hangs on for six hours. When pulled from the water and put aboard the Carpathia, a doctor examines his legs and suggests amputation to fight hypothermia and prevent gangrene. Williams refuses. The doctor warns him he'll lose the legs if he doesn't work very hard to get the proper circulation back in them. Within weeks he is playing tennis again, and three months after the disaster he enters the Cincinnati tournament.

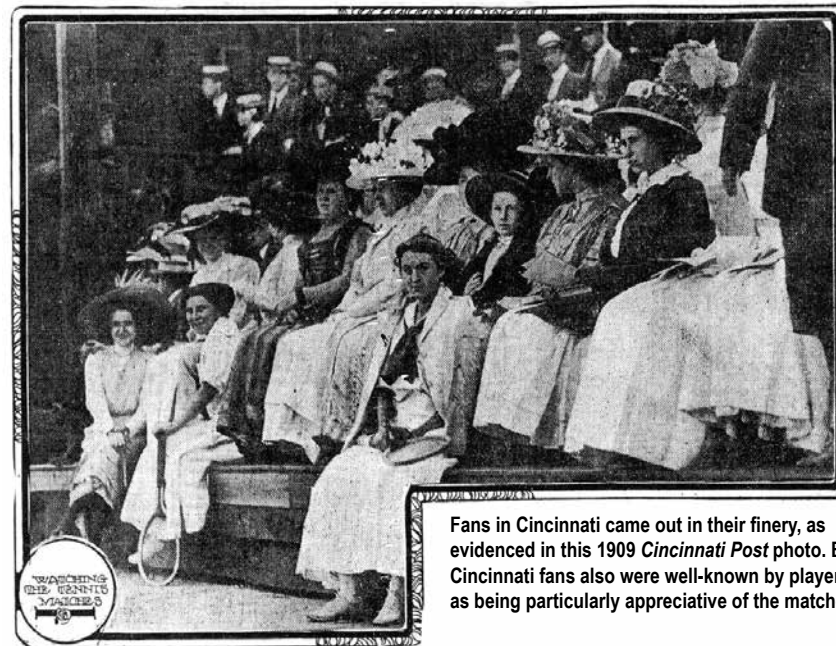

Over its first 13 years, Cincinnati gains a national reputation as a model tournament. In 1906, May Sutton is indirectly quoted in a newspaper as saying the Cincinnati tournament is second only to Wimbledon, and for many years several players say they prefer to play Cincinnati than the National Championship in Newport, Rhode Island, because of the enthusiastic and knowledgeable fans and the efficiency of tournament management.

In 1912, perhaps because of the reputation the Cincinnati tournament earns, the tournament finds itself scheduled in a new slot on the U.S. calendar: its new date is in June (the earliest it had ever been played) and in direct conflict with the dates for Wimbledon. Over the next 57 years (between 1912 and 1969), Cincinnati is scheduled at the same time as Wimbledon a total of 33 times, making it impossible for the world's best players to play both events in those years.

That new development notwithstanding, Cincinnati assembles an excellent field of players in 1912. Gustave Touchard of New York wins the men's singles title over Richard Palmer of New Jersey in the Challenge Round. Palmer is 36, and he would remain the oldest men's runner-up in tournament history until 2018 when a 37-year-old Roger Federer is defeated in the final by Novak Djokovic.

En route to the title, Touchard had to defeat

Fans in Cincinnati came out in their finery, as evidenced in this 1909 Cincinnati Post photo. But Cincinnati fans also were well-known by players as being particularly appreciative of the matches.

Cincinnati Reuben Holden, the 1910 intercollegiate champion from Yale, in the All-Comers tournament to reach the Challenge Round.

In women's singles, two Hall of Famers reach the final round as May Sutton defeats Mary K. Browne 6-2, 6-2. In the Challenge round that followed, Sutton leads Marjorie Dodd 1-0 when heavy rain sets in. The forecast indicates the rain will last until the following day when Sutton is committed to being in Louisville, so Sutton retires from the match.

On July 2, 1912, the Cincinnati Post reports "There is only one May Sutton. The tennis world has never seen her like. Stars may come and stars depart, but none will ever play the game with the remarkable speed, agility and strength of May Sutton."

Browne pairs with future Canadian Hall of Famer Lois Moyes to take the ladies doubles crown over Emiline Holmes (Mrs. Gus Touchard) and Sutton.

1913 – Ruth Sanders, a 22-year-old school teacher from the west side of Cincinnati and former champion at the University of Cincinnati (from which she graduated in 1912), wins the first of her five Cincinnati titles. In the final, she upsets heavily favored Elizabeth C. Bunce of New York, the doubles champion of the 1911 National Indoor Championship. Rhea Fairbairn Marty and Helen McLaughlin win the women's doubles title over Marjorie Dodd and Elizabeth Cleaney.

William S. McElroy, a 19-year-old from Pittsburgh, wins the men's crown. He defeats Joseph J. Armstrong of Minnesota in five sets in the quarterfinals, Reuben Holden in four sets in the semifinals, Cliff Lockhorn in four sets in the final, and then wins the title in the Challenge Round over Gustave Touchard in a walkover.

McElroy also pairs with Armstrong to take the men's doubles title over William Hopple and Lockhorn.

The tournament is scheduled for June 28 to July 4, but rain forces the addition of two extra days.

1914 – Because the Tri-State represents the championship of three states (Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky), playing it in other states is considered appropriate. The tournament is first played outside of Cincinnati in 1914 when it moves to Indianapolis.

This move has the added benefit of allowing the National Clay Court Championship to be held at the Cincinnati Tennis Club.

Both defending champions, William S. McElroy of Pittsburgh and Ruth Sanders of Cincinnati, win the Tri-State titles in Indianapolis. In Cincinnati, Clarence "Peck" Griffin and Mary K. Browne win the national clay court titles.

1915 – Molla Bjurstedt is a 1912 Olympic bronze

medalist in singles for Norway but is a relative unknown when she arrives in the United States in 1915. The 31-year-old future International Tennis Hall of Famer enters many tennis events, and quickly makes a name for herself. In Cincinnati, she runs through the field, losing exactly 15 games in six matches. Her most challenging match is in the final when she beats defending champion Ruth Sanders of Cincinnati, 6-0, 6-4.

On the men's side, players include William "Little Bill" Johnston, Clarence Griffin (men's champion) and Irving Wright. Johnston decides to play only doubles, and wins the doubles title with Griffin over H. Truxtun Emerson and Reuben Holden. Maurice McLoughlin and Elia Fottrell (who reaches the final of the tournament but loses in the Challenge round) play an exhibition match against Griffin and Johnston to cap off the tournament.

1916 – William "Little Bill" Johnston wins the singles title and teams with Clarence Griffin to take the doubles crown. Actually, Johnston wins the All-Comers event and is to face the defending champion, Griffin, in the Challenge round. However, Griffin refuses to defend his title against his close friend Johnston, and Johnston wins the title in a walkover.

Willis Davis, who has a top-10 world ranking (although at this time world rankings are not generally considered credible), is a finalist and pairs with Princeton's Dean Mathey to reach the doubles final. Martha Guthrie of Pittsburgh defeats Margaret "Ruth" Davis of St. Paul to take the women's title.

Another player of note is James Gamble Nippert, grandson of James Norris Gamble of Procter & Gamble (the inventor of Ivory soap and the purchaser of the tournament trophy in competition at the time). The young Nippert loses in the first round but goes on to play football for the University of Cincinnati. On Thanksgiving Day in 1923 in the Bearcats' season-ending clash with rival Miami of Ohio, Nippert sustains a spike wound injury. He dies a month later of blood poisoning. The stadium in which he played is renamed in his honor, and the James Gamble Nippert Memorial Stadium is dedicated on November 8, 1924.

1917 – The tournament is once again moved to Indianapolis so that Cincinnati may host the National Clay Court Championship for a second time.

In support of World War I, and through the urging of the U.S. Secretary of War, the U.S. Championships is renamed the National Patriotic Championships. Following that lead, the National Clay Court Championship is renamed "The National Clay Court Patriotic Championship." Festivities during the tournament include "Surgical Dressing Day." Money from the tournament – $2,699.99 (about $64,000 in today's dollars) – is donated to equip an ambulance for service in France. On the court, Ruth Sanders wins the singles title, the women's doubles title and the mixed doubles title with her fiancé, Howard Cordes. Sam Hardy of Chicago wins the singles title over Charles Garland of Pittsburgh.

In Indianapolis, 18-year-old Frederick Ellison "Fritz" Bastian of Indianapolis wins the men's singles title in four sets over John G. MacKay, and Katharine Brown wins the women's singles title over Louise Ostheimer Adams.

1918 – The tournament is scheduled for September 7-14, but in August tournament officials announce the suspension of the tournament. The world is in the grip of the first World War, and many Cincinnati tennis leaders are involved in the war effort and unable to devote time to organizing the tournament. According to the June 5, 1918, edition of the Cincinnati Post, tournament chairman William Hopple is "so busy with

"I have seen tennis tournaments all over the country, but none like Cincinnati. Nowhere in the country does the public appreciate the game as the Cincinnati public. No tournament that I have attended has attracted the magnificent crowds that attend the Cincinnati tournament.

We do not attract the crowds on the Coast that are drawn in Cincinnati. Californians will only come out to see a match between May Sutton and Miss Hotchkiss, or one of equal importance.

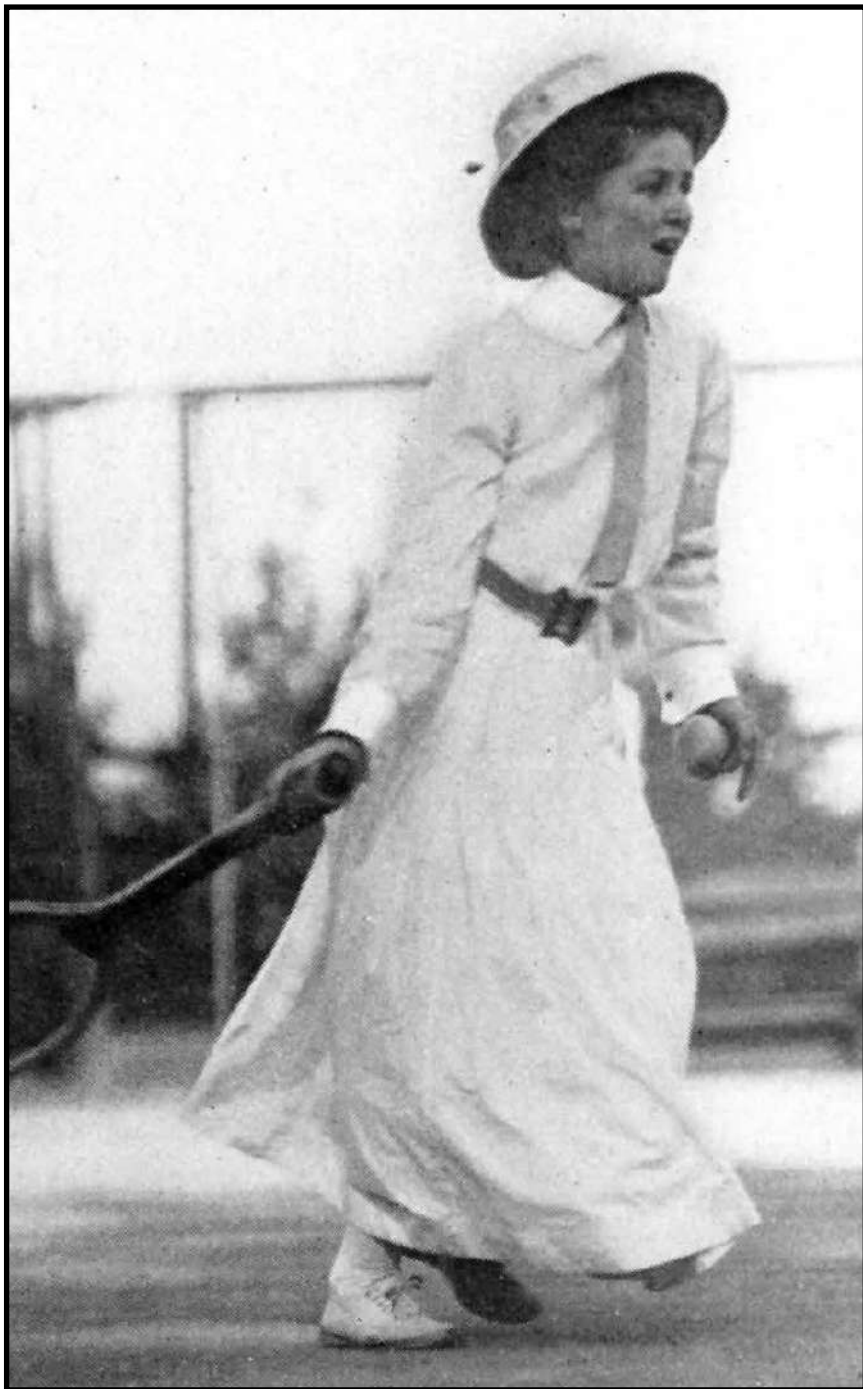

No wonder this tournament is talked about by tennis players all over the country. Every tennis player in the United States that amounts to anything is anxious to come to Cincinnati, for he knows his playing will be appreciated. Your spectators are always fair. They applaud the clever work of a visiting player as well as that of Cincinnati boys, and there is no sweeter music to a tennis player's ears playing on foreign courts than applause.

And nowhere is a tournament run with more precision. There is absolutely no delay and one need not sit around before an important matching waiting for his turn to play, showing that those who are conducting the Cincinnati tournament know their business."

– Carlton R. Gardner of San Francisco as quoted in the Cincinnati Post on September 4, 1909. On the court, Gardner, a U.S. top-ten player, reaches the quarterfinals in 1909 but falls to Nat Thornton of Georgia.

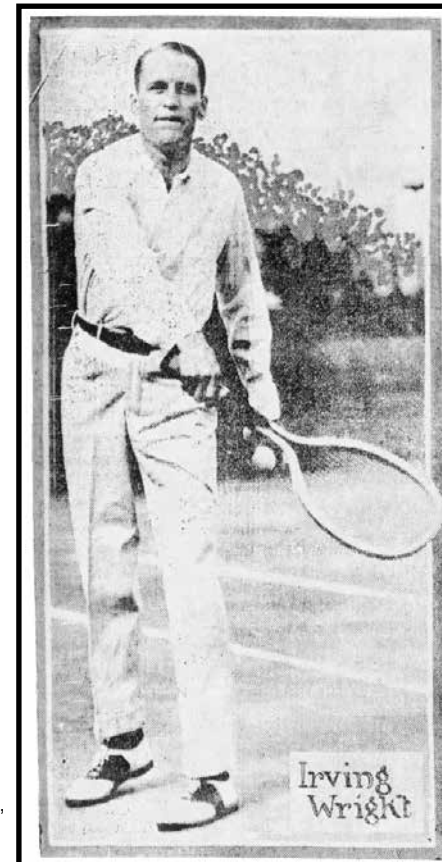

When the tournament needs a new trophy in 1910 it turns to Tiffany of New York to create it, and Procter & Gamble for the funds to purchase it. A Cincinnati Post article from July 20, 1910, calls the new bowl "a thing of beauty" and says the tournament "will offer a bowl to the champion of which the winner can be proud. (It) will be the finest trophy ever offered by any tennis association in the West".

Fashions in tennis wear have changed considerably since Marjorie Dodd (right) won the 1911 women's singles title.

Irving C. Wright of Boston as seen in the September 15, 1915, edition of the Cincinnati Post, the year he reached the singles semifinals. His brother was future Hall of Famer Beals Wright, and his father was George Wright who was the shortstop on the 1869 Cincinnati Reds team which went undefeated.

ordnance production in Cincinnati he no longer has time to give to tennis."

1919 – The tournament is awarded to Indianapolis for a third time and the National Sectional Championship is held in Cincinnati.

This is the first year in tournament history there is no women's draw of any kind.

It is also the first year that no player from Cincinnati reaches the round of 16 in men's singles.

On the courts of the Indianapolis Tennis Association, 20-year-old Frederick Ellison "Fritz" Bastian retains his title over 18-year-old John Hennessey of Indianapolis. Bastian wins 2-6, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4. Paul Voorheis of Toledo, Ohio, and Alfred Weller of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, win the men's doubles title over Bastian and 35-year-old Albrecht Kipp of Indianapolis.

In Cincinnati, the National Sectional pits an Eastern team versus a Western team. The Eastern team consists of Bill Tilden, Vincent Richards, R. Murray Lindley, Wallace Johnson, S. Howard Voshell, and Itchya Kumagae.

The Western team is made up of William Johnston, Sam Hardy, Robert Kinsey, Ralph Burdick, A.L. Green and Axel Graven. The East wins, 6-3.

The tournament splits time between two venues within a few miles of each other, the seeding of players is introduced, the tournament is paused for a year due to scheduling conflicts, and the players respond to the death of a U.S. President.

1920 – For a fourth time, the tournament is awarded to Indiana and is played in Fort Wayne. On July 27, 1920, the Indiana Daily Times of Indianapolis, Indiana, reports "It is the consensus of opinion among tennis enthusiasts of Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky that the Tri-State Tennis Championship tournament to be held in (Fort Wayne) during the week of July 31-August 7, will be the biggest and most successful net meet ever played on an Indiana court."

John Hennessey, a 19-year-old who would play for the U.S. Davis Cup team in 1928, reaches the best-of-five set men's singles final and faces 22-year-old Walter Wesbrook of the University of Michigan. Hennessey drops the first set 8-10, but wins the next three to take the title.

This year the women return, and 29-year-old Ruth Sanders Cordes of Cincinnati marks the occasion by winning her fourth singles title by beating Ruth King of Cleveland in the women's singles final.

The tournament is scheduled to return to Cincinnati for 1921, and is played there (with only two interruptions) until the next century when a global pandemic forces its next relocation: this time to New York, in 2020.

1921 – With World War I now over and the nation in the "new normal" of prohibition, tennis leaders in Cincinnati contemplate the tournament's future. The event is scheduled for July 25-31, but leaders struggle with whether to host the Tri-State or make Cincinnati the permanent home of either the National Clay Court Championship or the National Sectional Championship. As local and national officials debate, the Tri-State is suspended for one year.

1922 – After a one-year suspension, the tournament is revived in Cincinnati after having been played in Indiana since 1917. There is a new venue as the tournament moves from its previous Cincinnati home, the Cincinnati Tennis Club, to the Hyde Park Tennis Club, which is just two miles away. The event is played at Hyde Park until 1927.

The men's singles field boasts a then-record of 88 players, and Louis Kuhler (ranked in the top ten in the Midwest), Ray Kunkel (a player at Georgetown University), Howard Cordes of Cincinnati and the University of Colorado, and Edwin Haupt of Cincinnati reach the semifinals. Kuhler defeats Kunkel in the semifinals and then Haupt in the final to win his first Cincinnati men's singles title. In women's singles, Ruth Sanders Cordes defeats Olga Strashun in the final to take the title.

Reuben Holden of Cincinnati, who won the 1910 intercollegiate singles crown while at Yale, teams up with H. Truxtun Emerson to take the doubles title over brothers and Georgetown University teammates Ray Kunkel and Paul Kunkel.

Loving cups are presented to the champions. Louis J. Tuke donates the cup for the men's champion, and other cups are donated by machine tool magnates Richard and John LeBlond and George H. Phillips.

1923 – Fourteen-year-old Clara Louise Zinke makes her first appearance in the women's singles finals but falls to Ruth Sanders Cordes. It will be 10 years before Zinke fails to appear in a women's singles final.

On Friday, August 10, the tournament is stopped between 3:45 p.m. and 5 p.m. to honor the funeral of President Warren G. Harding, who died of a stroke on August 2 and is being buried at the same time in Marion, Ohio. Those in attendance face east and observe silence for two minutes. Afterward, Ruth Sanders Cordes, the eventual women's singles finalist that year, sings the President's favorite hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," followed by the singing of other hymns and the reading of meditations by players and fans alike.

The tournament is scheduled for August 4-11, but rain makes this year the longest Cincinnati tournament in history. All rounds but the finals are finished by Tuesday, August 14, but the finals are not held until Saturday, August 18.

On Saturday, August 11, a men's singles semifinal and a men's doubles semifinal match are in progress when rain washes out the day. All matches resume on Sunday, August 12, but rain interrupts again. The men's semifinals are finally complete on Monday, August 13, and the tournament must decide to play the finals either Tuesday, August 14, or Saturday, August 18.

Eventually, the decision is made to wait until Saturday and Louis Kuhler wins the singles title by beating Paul Kunkel 6-3, 6-3, 6-2 in the final.

One player Kuhler defeats en route to the men's title is Cincinnati Truman Aldrich "Bud" Herron, the nephew of First Lady Helen Louise "Nellie" Herron, wife of the 27th President of the United States, William Howard Taft. Herron, who loses to Kuhler in the round of 16, goes on to have a highly successful career as a patent attorney.

1924 – The men's singles field includes 90 players, and George Lott, a 17-year-old from Chicago, emerges to win the first of his four singles titles. Lott also teams with fellow Chicagoan Jack Harris to take the doubles title over Charles Garland (Pittsburgh) and Paul Kunkel.

Defending champion Louis Kuhler reaches the quarterfinals before falling to Julius Sagalowsky. Kuhler, a ranked player in the Midwest who is called "a rising star in tennis," will not get the chance the following year to earn his third Cincinnati title. He dies in March 1925, four months shy of his 23rd birthday after a brief illness.

The women's field includes 28 players, including Olga Strashun, Clara Louise Zinke, Hermina Hoppe and Edith Meyer. Strashun defeats Zinke in the final to claim her only Cincinnati title.

1925 – There are 81 men and 28 women in the singles draws, according to American Lawn Tennis magazine, and despite a rain-soaked week that makes scheduling extremely challenging, the tournament is finished on time.

Eighteen-year-old George Lott of Chicago wins his second Cincinnati singles title, defeating 20-year-old Julius Sagalowsky of Indianapolis, the former boys national champion, in the final 6-3, 7-5, 6-1.

Lott also defends his doubles title by pairing with Thomas McGlenn of Philadelphia. In the final they defeat the team of Reuben Holden and H. Truxtun Emerson, who won the doubles title in 1922.

Marion Leighton of Chicago takes the women's singles title over 16-year-old Clara Louise Zinke of Cincinnati. Zinke, in her third consecutive singles finals appearance, has a 3-1 lead in the first set before Leighton comes back to take the set and eventually the match, 6-3, 6-2.

1926 – William "Big Bill" Tilden is a surprise late addition to the men's field and takes the men's title over George Lott, the first time two future Hall of Famers square off in a men's final in Cincinnati.

Tilden (age 33) is 13 years and eight months older than Lott (age 19), and the match holds the record for the greatest age differential of any men's singles final in tournament history until 2023 when Novak Djokovic (age 36) defeats Carlos Alcaraz (age 20).

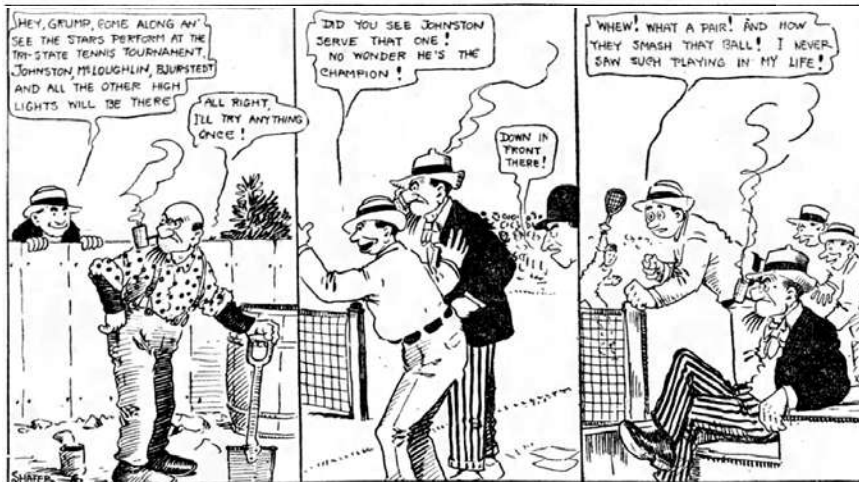

History also is made when Francisco Aragon and Guillermo Aragon, the Philippine Davis Cuppers, win the men's doubles crown to become the first non-American doubles team to win that title. They defeat Paul and Ray Kunkel, who are brothers and teammates on the Georgetown University tennis team.

Clara Louise Zinke wins her first of five women's singles titles. She defeats Olga Strashun in the final, in a rematch of the 1924 women's singles final.

The tournament, which is celebrating its 25th Anniversary, adds junior events this year (boys singles and doubles and girls singles) for players under the age of 18 who aren't in the main draws.

AS A TENNIS PLAYER, GRUMP

IS A GOOD FISHERMAN

Even non-tennis fans are excited by the appearance of such stars as William Johnston, Molla Bjurstedt, and Maurice McLoughlin at the 1915 tournament. This edition of Grump, a popular local comic strip of the time, appears in the September 13, 1915 edition of the Cincinnati Post.

Organizing committee of the 1916 tournament: 1. H. Truxtun Emerson (winner of two doubles titles and one mixed-doubles title in Cincinnati); 2. Eshelby F. Lunken (namesake of Cincinnati's Lunken Airport); 3. Marmion K. Lewis (Harvard educated stock broker and veteran of World War I, brother of Stanley Lewis); 4. Elmer Vordenberg (one-time employee of the National Recreational Association); 5. Charles O. Rose (Cincinnati City Council member and attorney); 6. Lawrence C. Minor (an executive with Procter & Gamble); 7. Joseph H. O'Connell (Cincinnati attorney who later moved to Virginia); 8. Stanley W. Lewis (Harvard educated attorney, past president of USTA/Midwest, brother of Marmion Lewis); 9. Philemon Beecher "Phil" Stanbery (attorney, grandson of Ohio's first Attorney General, and 1916 tournament director); 10. An unidentified man; 11. William H. Hopple (industrialist, mixed doubles finalist in 1908 with Martha Kinsey).

of Kansas City, Missouri, defeats Fred Brace of Pontiac, Michigan, to win the boys singles title, and teams with Brace to take the boys doubles title over the Cincinnati team of Joe Field and R. Ferris. Evelyn Youkey defeats Elinor Small to take the girls title.

1927 – After five years at the Hyde Park Tennis Club, the tournament returns to the Cincinnati Tennis Club. George Lott, ranked third in the U.S., wins his third Cincinnati title, retiring the massive Tiffany-made "Cincinnati Trophy" (which was purchased in 1910 by William Cooper Procter and James Norris Gamble).

In keeping with custom, a player keeps the tournament trophy after winning a third title. Together with his wins in 1924 and 1925, Lott now has his third title and permanent possession of the valuable bowl. But he doesn't keep it forever.

Lott, who turns pro in 1936, retains possession of the bowl until 1938. That year, he wins a pro tournament in White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, at the Greenbrier Resort. Rumors drift back to Cincinnati that Lott has left a good portion of his winnings at a casino there. It seemed a good time to negotiate with him for the purchase of the bowl. Tournament officials drive 350 miles to White Sulphur Springs, negotiate with Lott, and return with the trophy. It is not placed back into competition but remains tournament property.

This is the first year in tournament history players are seeded. The men's seeds and hometowns are:

1. Lott (Chicago)
2. Emmett Paré (Chicago)
3. Jose Alonso (former captain of the Spanish Davis Cup team, now living in Philadelphia)
4. Paul Kunkel (Cincinnati)
5. Ray Kunkel (Cincinnati)
6. Sidney Meyers (Cincinnati)
7. Ellis Flax (Cincinnati)
8. Archie McCallum (Cincinnati)
9. Willard Beckman (Cincinnati)
10. Ellis Klingeman (Chicago)

Three foreign players are seeded separately in men's singles and all are from Canada:

1. Charles Leslie (Montreal)
2. Brian Doherty (Montreal)
3. Lorn McLean (Toronto)

Seven women are seeded in the women's singles, and all are from the Midwest:

1. Marion Leighton (Chicago)
2. Clara Louise Zinke (Cincinnati)
3. Ruth Riese (Saginaw, Michigan)
4. Olga Strashun Weil (Cincinnati)
5. Margarite Kommenda (Chicago)
6. Helen Canfield (Detroit)
7. Marion Pearson (Detroit)

The concept of seeding was introduced at Wimbledon in 1924 to separate the best players in the draw, thereby helping to ensure their success. The U.S. National Championships begins seeding in 1927 as well.

In women's singles, 18-year-old Zinke beats 28-year-old Leighton (ranked No. 20 in the U.S. and No. 1 in the Western section) in the final to collect her second Cincinnati singles title.

In addition to the "Cincinnati Trophy" in competition, other trophies are donated by individuals and businesses:

Men's Singles Champion – Hotel Sinton Trophy: a 15-inch solid bronze cup

Men's Singles Finalist – The Taylor Stanley Trophy: a solid bronze cigarette humidor

Men's Doubles Champions – The Hotel Gibson Trophy & The Hotel Alms Trophy: Each is a London-made Gladstone bag

Men's Doubles Finalists – The W.E. Hutton & Co. Trophies: Bronze, silver-encrusted cigarette boxes with tennis figures raised in sterling.

Ladies' Singles Champion – The Swiss Garden Trophy: a 14-inch solid bronze lamp

Ladies' Finalist – The Miller Jewelry Co. Trophy: a 15-inch brocade-gold vase

Juniors Singles – Phillips Swimming Pools Trophy: a 15-inch silver cup

Junior Singles Finalist – Hotel Metropole Trophy: a bronze tennis figure on stone base

Junior Doubles Finalists – The B.F. Keith Theatre Trophies: two ebonized plaques (silver plates)

1928 – Marjorie "Midge" Gladman of Santa Monica, California, and the University of Southern California, wins the women's singles title and Emmett Paré of Chicago takes the men's title. Ruth Oexman of Cincinnati wins the first of five doubles titles, all with Clara Louise Zinke. In 1923, Zinke is called "the next Helen Wills Moody" and in 1927 she's ranked No. 2 in the nation in the junior girls rankings.

The men's singles field includes 113 players. Jose Alonso, of the Spanish Davis Cup team, enters but loses in the first round. Gordon Lum, a Chinese Davis Cup star, also enters and reaches the fourth round.

Rain interrupts play on Thursday, July 12, and again on Friday, July 13. Tournament director Taylor Stanley is forced to move matches indoors to the Cincinnati Indoor Tennis Club at the Freeman Avenue Armory, marking the first time tournament matches are played indoors.

Heat also is an issue. As noted in the Cincinnati Enquirer on Monday, July 9, 1928: "(Players) were on and off the clay battleground from time to time, and after the matches were swathed in Turkish toweling, drenched by perspiration, as though ready for the count and the bell of the prize-fighting ring. Afternoon tea, iced and most delicious, was served on the verandas, and tasted like nectar to the dripping players who caught up a tea glass, en passant, on their way to get a rub-down."

There is a new men's singles trophy this year: The Wilfred M. Tyler Bowl. Tyler was actively involved in Cincinnati tennis circles and served as an officer of the Ohio Lawn Tennis Association for many years until about 1915.

Tyler dies in 1923, and when a new trophy is needed for 1928, a tournament official remembers a mention of tennis in Tyler's will. Tyler's estate executor is consulted, and it is discovered that Tyler left $500 with which to purchase a new trophy should it ever become necessary. That occasion having now arisen, the tournament purchases a new bowl, naming it after the benefactor. It is constructed to be somewhat similar to the newly retired bowl.

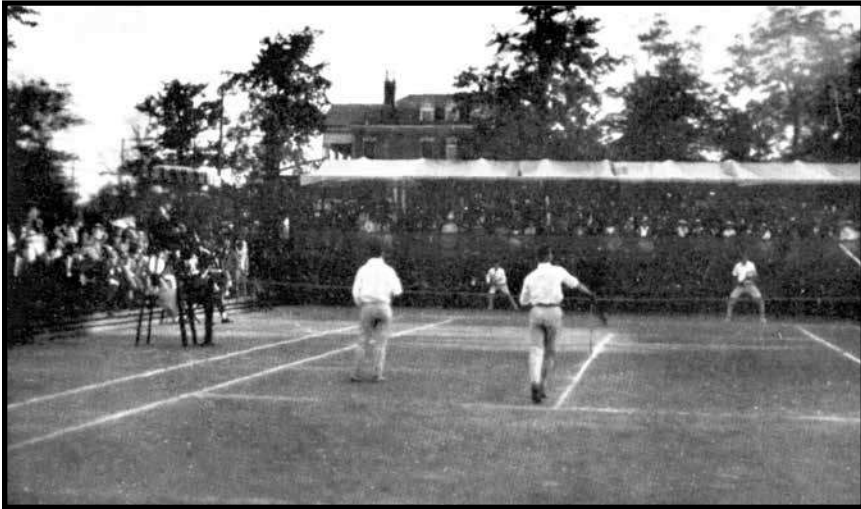

1929 – The tournament includes six divisions: singles and doubles for men, women's and juniors. Once again rain is a pestilence despite a recently installed system to quickly drain the courts.

Eighty players are in the men's singles draw, and the title goes to 31-year-old Herbert Lee Bowman of New York and formerly of Cornell University. In the men's singles final he beats another New Yorker: 19-year-old Julius Seligson, the 1928 national collegiate champion from Lehigh and the No. 9 player in the country. It is the second-largest (after 1926) age differential in a men's singles final in tournament history at the time.

In women's singles, all eight quarterfinalists are from three Midwestern states: Ohio (5), Indiana (2) and Michigan (1). Clara Louise Zinke of Cincinnati wins the third of her five singles titles by defeating 37-year-old Ruth Frances Smith Riese of Saginaw, Michigan, in the final.

to Cincinnati in exchange for the settling of gambling debts.

1930 – In the 30th edition of the tournament (and its 32nd year of operation), Frank Shields of New York, grandfather of actress Brooke Shields, wins the men's title over National Clay Court Champion Emmett Paré of Chicago. Shields defeats the No. 5 seed George Jennings in the quarterfinals, No. 6 seed Paul Kunkel in the semifinals, and No. 2 seed Paré in the final.

Clara Louise Zinke, the 21-year-old No. 1 seed, makes her eighth consecutive appearance in the women's finals. She defeats Ruth Riese of Saginaw, Michigan, to collect her fourth singles title. Zinke also pairs with Ruth Oexman to win her third women's doubles title.

Fourteen-year-old Frank Parker of Milwaukee wins the junior boys title over 15-year-old Jay Cohn of Santa Monica, California. Parker will go on to reach four men's singles finals before winning the men's title in 1941. Cohn goes on to play tennis for the University of Southern California.

1931 – One hundred and eight players are in the men's draw when play gets underway on June 6. The top seed is Cliff Sutter of New Orleans, and he slices through the field to meet No. 2 seed Bruce Barnes of Texas in the final. Sutter wins in a four-set clash.

Sutter, the No. 5 player in the U.S., is a descendant of John Sutter, who, in 1848, was operating his mill on the American Fork River, near San Francisco, when gold is found on the property.

That discovery at Sutter's Mill touched off the Gold Rush that started that year and exploded the next year, 1849. Those who came to the area looking for gold were called "49ers."

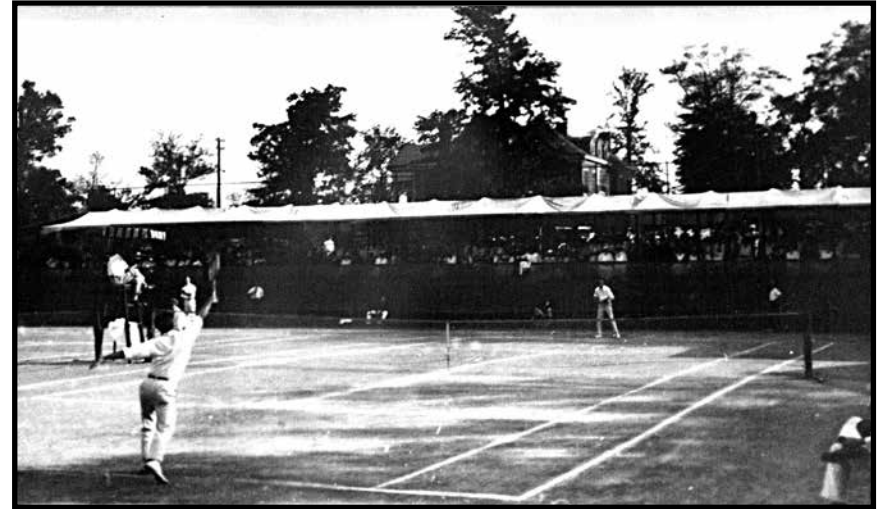

The top two seeds meet in the women's singles final as well. No. 1 seed Clara Louise Zinke wins her fifth and final title, beating No. 2 seed Ruth Frances Smith Riese of Saginaw, Michigan. It is the third consecutive finals meeting between the two players. Zinke pairs with Ruth Oexman to take the doubles title over Josephine Gray and Barbara Killey Duffy.

1932 – Ten players are seeded on the men's side and four on the women's when the draws are made to start the tournament. The top men's seeds are George Lott (No. 1) of Chicago, J. Gilbert Hall (No. 2) of New York, Frederick "Fritz" Mercur (No. 3) of Pennsylvania, Herbert Bowman (No. 4) of New York, and 16-year-old national boys singles champion Frank Parker (No. 5) of Wisconsin.

Lott, Mercur, Parker and Hall reach the semifinals, where Lott, ranked No. 2 in the nation, knocks off Mercur in four sets, and Parker defeats 33-year-old Hall by the same set score.

That sets the stage for a Lott / Parker final, the second men's all-future-Hall-of-Famer final in tournament history. Lott meets Parker on Sunday, June 19, and secures his fourth and final Cincinnati singles title. Parker settles for his first of four singles runner-up finishes in Cincinnati.

Dorothy Weisel Hack, wife of Chicago Cubs third baseman Stan Hack and the No. 11 ranked woman in the country, is the No. 1 seed in women's singles.

Eventual singles champion William "Little Bill" Johnston (forecourt) in action in front of the shaded grandstand in 1916.

Catherine Wolf of Indiana, who's playing in only her second Cincinnati tournament, is the No. 2 seed. Clara Louise Zinke, playing in her 11th tournament, is the No. 3 seed, and Naomi Thompson of Philadelphia is No. 4.

Hack, described before the tournament begins as "a formidable match for Helen Wills Moody," reaches the final and meets Zinke, who in 1923 was referred to as "a future Helen Wills Moody". Hack defeats Zinke to collect her only Cincinnati title.

1933 – The tournament officially becomes a princely affair with the entry of His Serene Highness Prince Prasobsukh Sukhsvasti of Siam (today known as Thailand). His highness, known simply as "Ned" by his college friends, loses in the first round to William Ruxton, a recent transplant to Cincinnati from New York, 6-0, 6-0. In his defense, the prince grew up playing on grass, and may have had difficulty on the clay courts of the Cincinnati Tennis Club. "Tennis is the national sport in Siam," he says. "We play all the year 'round over there. Practically all of our playing is done on turf courts back home, as climatic conditions are ideal for grass." "Ned" left Princeton University in March and is a student at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, earning a degree in economics. He dies in Bangkok in 1985, having never ascended to the throne.

Despite the lack of an actual prince in the later rounds, they were nonetheless star-studded. The semifinalists are top-seeded Frank Parker of Milwaukee, No. 2 seed Bryan "Bitsy" Grant of Atlanta, fourth-seeded Robert "Lefty" Bryan of Chattanooga, Tennessee, John McDiarmid of Beckley, West Virginia, the No. 8 seed.

Grant and Parker both defeat their opponents in straight sets to set up the third all-future-Hall-of-Famer men's singles final in Cincinnati history. Grant makes Parker a runner-up for the second consecutive year by winning 11-9, 6-2, 1-6, 7-5.

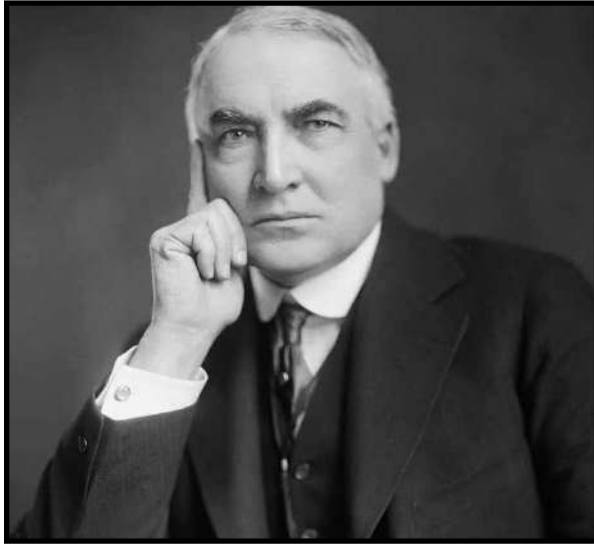

In women's singles, Muriel Adams of Indianapolis knocks off three seeds en route to the singles title. She beats No. 4 seed Ruth Oexman of Cincinnati in the quarterfinals (by the score of 6-4, 4-6, 6-1), No. 2 seed Katherine Pearson of Houston in the semifinals (6-2, 6-3), and No. 1 seed Helen Fulton of Chicago in the final (6-4, 6-4).

The men's doubles competition begins in Cincinnati and concludes in Chicago at the Chicago Town & Tennis Club, due to rain on the final day, July 2. Grant and Fred Mercur of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, are leading Bryan and McDiarmid 6-5 in the third set when rain hits Cincinnati. Since all four players are entered into the National Clay Court Championship, set to begin in Chicago on July 3, the final is moved to the Windy City. Grant and Mercur win 2-6, 7-5, 7-5, 12-14, 6-4.

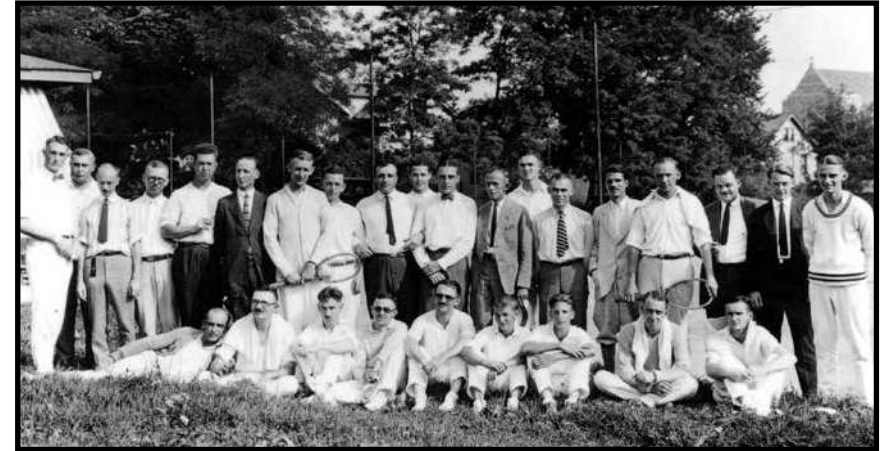

1934 – Several local tennis clubs petition to host the tournament, and eventually Cincinnati's Kenwood Country Club is chosen.

Kenwood was the site of the 1933 National Amateur Golf Championship and the club had recently constructed four new tennis courts with more seating capacity than the Cincinnati Tennis Club.

On May 24, 1934, the Cincinnati Post reports

Rain stoppages or interruptions are common during the tournament, but 1923 is the only year the tournament is stopped for a memorial service for a fallen U.S. president. At 3:45 p.m. on Friday, August 10, 1923, players and fans pause to honor President Warren G. Harding, who died August 2 of what was believed to be a stroke, but is now believed to be a heart attack. The ceremony is timed to coincide with Harding's burial in his hometown of Marion, Ohio.

Above is a photo of a portion of the men's field for the 1923 tournament. The player standing on the far right in the white sweater is eventual champion Louis Kuhler. At the time, he is called "a rising star in tennis." Sadly, his time would not last long.

"Kenwood Country Club will be the site of the 1934 Tri-State Tennis Tournament. Acting on petitions of several clubs interested in the affair, the association awarded the meet to Kenwood in view of the manner in which that club co-operated with the National Golfers' Association in sponsoring the National Amateur last summer. Since four new courts have been erected at Kenwood this spring, ample facilities for handling audiences will be available."

But while the tournament is played at Kenwood, ironically rain forces the singles finals to be played back at the Cincinnati Tennis Club, with its faster-drying courts.

The four men's semifinalists are future Canadian Tennis Hall of Fame inductee Marcel Rainville of Montreal, Arthur Hendrix of Florida, Henry Prusoff of Seattle, and James Halverstadt of Cincinnati. Prusoff defeats Halverstadt and Hendrix defeats Rainville to set up the men's final, which Prusoff wins in four sets over Hendrix.

All four semifinalists in women's singles are living at the time in Los Angeles: Gracy Wheeler, Dr. Esther Bartosh, Marianne Hunt, and Theodosia Smith (a native of Chicago). Wheeler of Santa Monica wins the women's singles title in a walkover when Dr. Bartosh, the "reigning queen of the Los Angeles courts" and a one-time coach of Bobby Riggs, is too ill to compete.

Rain forces the men's and women's doubles final to be decided by coin flip. Rainville and countryman Walter Martin (Toronto) win the toss and defeat Karl Kamrath (Austin, Texas) and Prusoff for the men's title. Helen Fulton of Chicago and Elizabeth Kesting of St. Paul, Minnesota, win the coin flip over Bartosh and Hunt for the women's title.

1935 – The tournament is scheduled for June 24-30 at the Cincinnati Tennis Club, but with the nation in the throes of the Great Depression, it is suspended for a year. It is the third and last suspension of the tournament in Cincinnati history.

1936 – The tournament is revived with a men's singles draw featuring 72 entrants. The top seed is an 18-year-old from Los Angeles named Bobby Riggs. Riggs will finish the week with the first of four Cincinnati singles titles under his belt. He defeats 22-year-old Charles Harris of West Palm Beach, Florida, the No. 4 seed, in the final.

In women's singles, Lila Glennon Porter of Mobile, Alabama, wins the title over Virginia Hollinger of Dayton, Ohio. It is Hollinger's first of four consecutive women's singles finals appearances.

The second-seeded team of John McDiarmid of Chicago and Eugene McCauliff of New York upset top seeds Riggs and Wayne Sabin to take the doubles title.

Future Hall of Famer Don McNeill of Oklahoma is the No. 8 seed. McNeill is 18 years old and a student at Ohio's Kenyon College. He reaches the quarterfinals before falling to Harris.

1937 – Top seeded for a second consecutive year, 19-year-old Bobby Riggs successfully defends his singles crown by beating 25-year-old John McDiarmid of Chicago in the final. McDiarmid then teams with Eugene McCauliff of New York to defend their doubles crown and become the first repeat doubles champions since 1901. No other doubles team would repeat as champions until 2006 when Jonas Bjorkman and Max Mirnyi take their second consecutive men's doubles title in Cincinnati.

All four top seeds in the women's singles reach the semifinals. Virginia Hollinger, the No. 3 seed, meets Cincinnati's Monica Nolan (the No. 2 seed) in the final, with Hollinger prevailing 6-3, 6-2.

One player receiving a seed for the first time is Cincinnati and future International Tennis Hall of Fame enshrinee William "Bill" Talbert. Talbert is 18 years old, seeded No. 7, and reaches the semifinals. Talbert would be seeded a total of nine times in Cincinnati, making him one of the most-often seeded players in Cincinnati men's singles history.

1938 – Bobby Riggs, now of Chicago and the No. 2 ranked player in the nation, conquers a 99-player men's singles draw, defeating Frank Parker of Milwaukee in the final match to collect his third Cincinnati title. That match also is the fourth all-future-Hall-of-Famer men's final in Cincinnati history.

With that victory, Riggs retires the Wilfred M. Tyler Bowl. That trophy is now on display at the Bobby Riggs Tennis Club in San Diego, California.

The No. 10 men's seed this year is 25-year-old Joe O'Brien. O'Brien was a scholarship player at the

In 1926, William "Big Bill" Tilden is a late entrant at the tournament. He signs in (as seen at left in the July 14, 1926, edition of the Cincinnati Post), then races through the field to meet George Lott in the final. It is the first all future Hall of Fame men's singles final in Cincinnati history, and one of the longest as Tilden prevails 4-6, 6-3, 7-9, 6-4, 6-3. It also features the biggest age differential in a men's singles final in tournament history to that point (Tilden is 33 and Lott is 19). That record stands until 2023 when Novak Djokovic (age 36) defeats Carlos Alcaraz (age 20).

James "Jimmie" Dodd is an emerging tennis player in Cincinnati in the 1930s. He plays tournaments in Ohio and Kentucky, and reaches the Round of 16 twice at the Cincinnati tournament (falling in 1930 to Cliff Sutter and in 1932 to Edward McKnight). Dodd also is well known in Cincinnati for entertaining others off the court with his singing and guitar playing. Eventually he would become famous for being the host of the original Mickey Mouse Club, and as the writer of its theme song.

University of Kentucky, and is a renown baseball and basketball player as well, despite being born with a left arm that ends at the elbow. O'Brien reaches the round of 16 before falling to the No. 4 seed John McDiarmid of Beckley, West Virginia.

Virginia Hollinger of Dayton, Ohio, the reigning U.S. Indoor singles champion, doesn't lose a set all week and successfully defends her 1937 Cincinnati title, knocking off No. 3 seed Virginia Wolfenden in the semifinals and No. 4 seed Margaret Jessee of Sacramento, California, in the final. Jessee is only 16 years old and goes on to play for the University of California Berkeley.

1939 – The tournament now has a new trophy, a silver bowl named "The Cincinnati Trophy," the second trophy so named in tournament history. It is donated to the tournament by Charles Tobias. By the time it is retired in 1947, it will be inscribed with the names of six champions: Bryan "Bitsy" Grant, Bobby Riggs, Frank Parker, Pancho Segura, William "Bill" Talbert and Clarence D. "Nick" Carter.

The fifth meeting between two future Hall of Famers in the men's final takes place as Grant defeats Parker. The quarterfinals in men's singles contain three future Hall of Famers: John Doeg makes the Final Eight in addition to Grant and Parker.

In the round of 16, 38-year old Doeg easily defeats 16-year-old James Neare Gamble, the grandson of the Gamble who co-founded Procter & Gamble. Doeg then takes on another 16-year-old Cincinnati in the quarterfinals: Marshall Chambers.

The match begins at 3 p.m. on Thursday, June 29, and Chambers wins the first set 6-4, but loses the second 2-6. As the third set begins, thunder and lightning appear overhead, and the skies darken. Doeg is up 4-3 in the third when rain forces the players off the court. When the match resumes at 11 a.m. on Friday, June 30, Doeg wins another game and leads 5-3. He reaches match point at 40-15 and then retires, giving Chambers the win.

He also presumably gives Chambers a semifinal matchup with the 24-year-old Parker. Parker is slated to play his quarterfinal match later that day but is expected to win.

Doeg, who prefers to play on grass and is less-accustomed to playing on clay, retires to Chambers rather than beating him so that Chambers may have the win and so that he may leave early for his next event: a grass-court tournament on Long Island, New York. Doeg praises the talent of Chambers and then leaves town, and Chambers is left to take on Parker in the semifinals in a best-of-five set match. Parker wins 6-1, 6-2, 6-1. Doeg is not completely finished with clay and Cincinnati. He returns the following year and reaches the round of 16 before falling to eventual finalist Arthur Marx.

One player making his second consecutive appearance in the men's singles quarterfinals this year is 18-year-old Charles Edward "Ted" Olewine, the National Interscholastic Champion from Santa Monica High School in California.

Olewine goes on to play at the University of Southern California where at the 1941 NCAA Championships he reaches the singles final and wins the doubles title. In August of 1942, he enlists to fight in World War II and serves in the unit that raises the flag at Iwo Jima.

Virginia Hollinger is the No. 2 seed in the women's singles draw, while the top seed goes to recent U.S. top-ten player Catherine Wolf of Indiana. The top four seeds make the semifinals, and Hollinger defeats the No. 3 seed, Monica Nolan, to make her fourth consecutive singles final in Cincinnati. She meets Wolf in that final and falls in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3.

Originally scheduled for June 24 to July 1, rain forces an extension of two additional days.

A Cincinnati and his young student begin their march to the Hall of Fame, the tournament aids another war effort, a major anniversary is celebrated, a woman reaches a men's final, mixed doubles makes its last stand, two players win two women's doubles titles in a single week, and another new trophy is needed.

1940 – It's a year for future Hall of Famers and players from California as Bobby Riggs and Alice Marble take all the titles (men's singles and doubles and women's singles and doubles).

The men's singles field includes 81 players, and top-seeded Riggs beats Jimmy Evert, father of 1973 singles finalist Chris Evert, in the quarterfinals, Harris Everett of Georgia in the semifinals, and then the No. 9 seed, Arthur Marx of Los Angeles, in the final. Marx, the son of comedian Groucho Marx, reaches that final by upsetting Californian John Doeg in the round of 16, Frank Froehling of Chicago in the quarterfinals, and Charles Garland of Pittsburgh in the semifinals.

Riggs then pairs with Charles Hare, British Davis Cupper, for the doubles title over Ron Lubin of Los Angeles and Froehling.

Marble defeats Jane Wagner of Cincinnati in the round of 16, and Mary Arnold of Los Angeles in the quarterfinals to set up a semifinal showdown with third-seeded Helen Bernhard of New York. Marble wins the first set 6-3, loses the second 1-6, and saves seven match points in the third set before winning 7-5. Marble then beats second-seeded Gracyn Wheeler of Los Angeles for the singles title.

Defending champion, Catherine Wolf of Elkhart, Indiana, is in the field but is not seeded. She reaches the quarterfinals before falling to Wheeler, the No. 2 seed and the 1934 Cincinnati women's singles champion.

Marble and Arnold win two doubles titles during the week. They take the Cincinnati doubles title over the team from Great Britain, Mary Hardwick and Nina Brown, and win the National Clay Court Championship women's doubles title over Bernhard and Wheeler. The National Clay Court Championship women's doubles final was rained out the previous week at Chicago, but as all four members of the two final teams were scheduled to be in Cincinnati the following week the match was moved to the Cincinnati Tennis Club. The match gets underway at 5 p.m. on June 27, and Marble and Arnold prevail, 6-3, 6-4.

1941 – The sixth all-Hall-of-Famer men's singles final takes place as top-seed Frank Parker takes the title over William "Bill" Talbert, the No. 2 seed, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4. It is Parker's first Cincinnati men's singles title after finishing as the runner-up four times: in 1932, 1933, 1938 and 1939.

Parker wins the first two sets easily and is up 3-1

On June 27, 1934, both No. 3 seed Karl Kamrath of Austin, Texas, and unseeded Eugenie Sampson of Chicago, win their singles matches. They celebrate by slipping off to a nearby church to get married. They return to the tournament and both reach the quarterfinals. Their son, Jack, plays in the Cincinnati tournament in the 1950s.

in the third when Talbert battles back to tie the set at 3-3. The next game goes to deuce eight times before Talbert takes a 4-3 lead. But Talbert can't maintain the intensity – at one point he hits 12 consecutive unforced errors – and Parker finally takes the third set and the match.

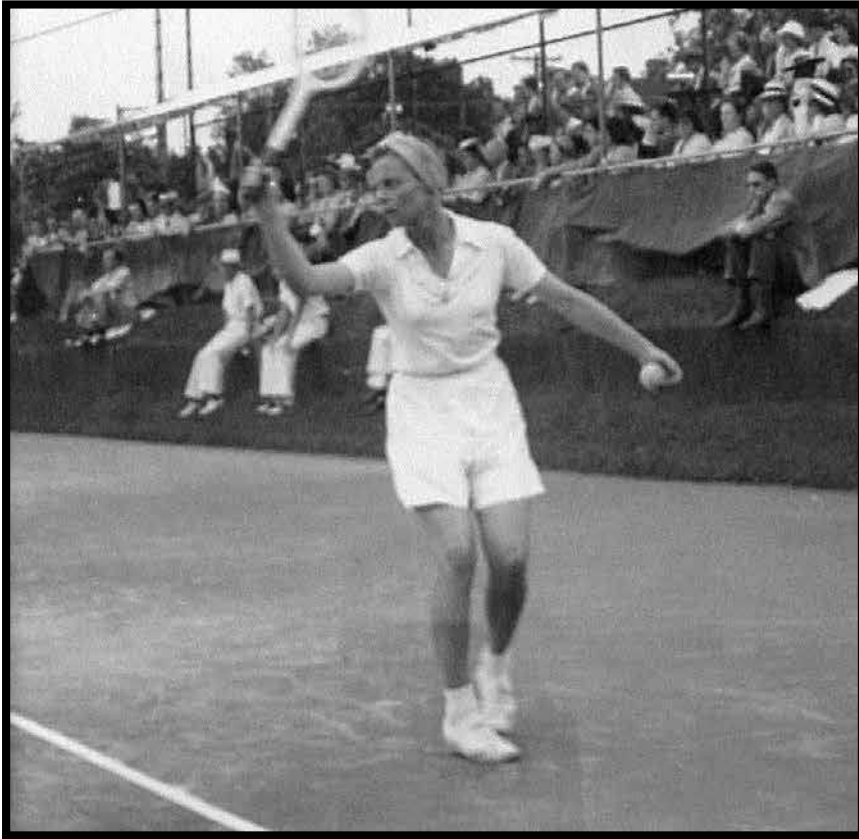

The straight set win is convincing for Parker, and Talbert, who will finish the year in the U.S. top ten for the first time in his career, is said to be less of a match for Parker, the "former boy wonder". But it is Talbert's first appearance in a Cincinnati men's singles final, and Parker's last.

To reach that final, Talbert has to notch a win over Gene Mako in the semifinals, while Parker defeats No. 3 seed Edward Alloo of Alameda, California. Both win in straight sets in best-of-five matches.

Parker and Talbert meet again in the men's doubles final when Parker and Mako pair up to take the title over Talbert and Alloo, 6-2, 6-3.

Pauline Betz, a native of Dayton, Ohio, who grew up in Los Angeles, beats 1939 singles winner Catherine Wolf of Indiana in the quarterfinals and Jane Stanton of Los Angeles in the semifinals before taking on Mary Arnold in the singles final. Arnold relies heavily on drop shots to give herself an edge in the match, but Betz prevails 6-4, 6-3.

Californians Jane Stanton and Barbara Bradley take the doubles title over a team from Miami: Doris Hart and Nellie Sheer.

Alice Marble of California plays in front of a bulging crowd in Cincinnati in 1940. Marble is a dominant force in women's tennis before World War II, winning four U.S. Championships and one Wimbledon singles title. She reveals in her memoir, published after her death in 1990, that during WWII she was recruited to engage in espionage for the U.S. Army. The mission ended when her target, a Nazi collaborator, shot her in the back.

1942 – The U.S. enters World War II in December, 1941, and when the 1942 tournament starts on June 22 it has a field that is called “as formidable as can be obtained in wartime.”

Pancho Segura of Ecuador becomes the first non-American men's singles champion in tournament history when he defeats U.S. top-tenner and Cincinnati William “Bill” Talbert in the men's final. It is the seventh time two future Hall of Famers meet in a men's singles final in Cincinnati.

The tournament is the first “Patriotic” event (tournaments in which money is raised for a war effort) in Cincinnati since 1917. The Patriotic point is driven home when Joe Davis of Nashville is ordered to report immediately to the Navy after his semifinal loss to Segura.

At the end of the tournament, $1,300

(about $24,600 today) is given to the Emergency War Relief Fund.

Segura also pairs with 17-year-old Fred Kovaleski of New York to win the doubles crown. They beat Talbert and Robert Smidl in the semifinals en route to that win. Later that year, Smidl, ranked No. 21 in singles in the U.S., joins the Army to fight in World War II. He is killed, making him the first tennis player with a national ranking to perish in the war.

Kovaleski goes on to play tennis at the College of William & Mary, but leaves to enlist in the Army as an air cadet. In World War II, he helps liberate a Japanese prisoner of war camp. Returning to William & Mary after the war, he pairs with Bernard “Tut” Bartzten to win the 1948 NCAA Doubles title.

After college, he continues to play tennis and reaches the fourth round at Wimbledon in 1950. The Central Intelligence Agency recruits him, considering his international travel to be good cover for a spy, and he becomes a U.S. spy during the Cold War.

Catherine Wolf of Elkhart, Indiana, the 1939 women's singles champion, is top-seeded in the women's singles draw and earns her second Cincinnati singles title, defeating Monica Nolan of Cincinnati in the final.

This is the last year for mixed doubles at the tournament until 1999 when the Seniors event format is switched to all-mixed doubles. A pair of Philadelphians, Peggy Welsh of Rollins College and William Vogt of Princeton, pair up to take the title over Catherine Wolf and J. Gilbert Hall.

1943 – William “Bill” Talbert, a 24-year-old Cincinnati ranked No. 4 in the nation, wins the singles title over Seymour Greenberg, a former standout player at Northwestern who is ranked No. 5 in the nation. Each player has to beat a Cincinnati to reach the final: Talbert defeats Chalmers Ratliff, while Greenberg knocks off Alvin Bunis.

Talbert pairs with Bunis to win the doubles title over Greenburg and Joe Scherr. In 1972, Bunis starts the first senior tennis tour – the first senior tour in either tennis or golf. Bunis sold his Tennis Grand Masters to International Management Group in 1981, which stops holding events a few years later. Bunis then starts the World Senior Tennis Open. Bunis's senior tour predates the Senior PGA Tour which begins in 1980.

Top-seeded and 1941 singles champion Pauline Betz rolls through the tournament, losing only two games en route to the finals (she lost one game to Jane Wagner in the quarterfinals and one to Gloria Thompson in the semifinals).

In the final against former U.S. top-tenner and two-time Cincinnati singles champion Catherine Wolf, Betz scores a rare "golden bagel." She beats the 34-year-old Wolf 6-0 in the first set, taking all 24 points, and hitting 18 winners. She wins the second set 6-2 to take her second Cincinnati title.

Betz also takes the women's doubles title. She and Nancy Corbett of Chicago defeat Wolf and Wagner, 6-3, 9-7, in the final.

This year marks the third "Patriotic" tournament to be held, and $800 is given to the USO at the end of the week (the equivalent of $14,200 today) with the promise of more to follow.

1944 – When the tournament gets underway on June 17, one particular match captures the attention of fans: a first round men's singles clash between the defending champion and his young protege, a player who seems destined to make a name for himself in the future.

As Cincinnati Post sports columnist Joe Aston reports on June 21: "Bill Talbert's opponent was 14-year-old Tony Trabert, playing in the men's division for the first time, and it was rather amazing the way young Tony performed. The experts called him the best player in Greater Cincinnati for his age, and predicted that some day he would go even further than the man he was playing." Talbert wins the match over his pupil, 6-2, 6-2.

Akron, Ohio, native and future Hall of Famer Shirley Fry plays in her first Cincinnati tournament, reaching the semifinals before falling to eventual champion Dorothy Bundy. The 17-year-old pushes Bundy, daughter of May Sutton, to three sets before losing 3-6, 6-2, 9-7.

Two Hall of Famers square off in the men's final for an eighth time, and it is a rematch of the 1942 final. Pancho Segura wins 9-11, 6-2, 7-5, 2-6, 7-5 over Talbert in a match that lasts more than four hours.

While Segura is winning his second title in Cincinnati, Gloria Thompson, playing in her third Cincinnati tournament, is playing well enough to reach the quarterfinals in singles and the finals in doubles. In addition to having a Cincinnati connection, Thompson and Segura would develop another connection over time.

After their playing days are over, both Thompson and Segura stay close to the game by teaching tennis. Segura teaches in Los Angeles, while Thompson teaches in her hometown of East St. Louis. Eventually, one of her tennis students, her star pupil, is her own son, James. James thrives under Gloria's tutelage, but eventually she realizes he needs additional help to reach the next level. For that help, she turns to Segura.

Gloria Thompson, now Gloria Thompson Connors, packs up her son and her mother and moves to Los Angeles, where Segura takes the reins of the boy's tennis development. Gloria's son, and Pancho Segura's student, develops into one of the greatest players of all time: Jimmy Connors. Not only does Connors follow Segura and his mother in playing Cincinnati, he also follows Segura into the International Tennis Hall of Fame.

BILLY, THE KID, SHOOTS HIS WAY INTO FINALS

The Cincinnati Enquirer cartoon above appears on June 29, 1941, commemorating the rise of Cincinnati and future International Tennis Hall of Famer William "Bill" Talbert. Talbert reaches 14 finals in Cincinnati, winning six doubles titles, and three singles titles (in 1943, 1945 and 1947). After he retires from playing, he authors tennis books, is a tennis commentator for NBC Sports, and is tournament director of the US Open. He appears on the cover of Sports Illustrated on April 20, 1959 and again on July 5, 1965 (left).

In a move necessitated in part by the realities of World War II, Sarah Palfrey Cooke (second from left) pairs with her husband, Elwood, to play in the men's doubles draw in 1945. She is the only female finalist of a men's event in tournament history. This line-up of seven players at the 1945 tournament includes four future Hall of Famers. headlines. George Ratterman, who is recovering from "ptomaine poisoning" (commonly known as food poisoning), loses to Leonard Schiff of Columbus, 8-6, 6-3. Ratterman is the No. 1 junior in the Ohio Valley Tennis Association and the loss is considered an upset.

Ratterman also is a football standout at Cincinnati's St. Xavier High School. He goes on to Notre Dame and the NFL, playing with the Buffalo Bills and the Cleveland Browns. In 1954, under the direction of Browns' head coach Paul Brown, Ratterman wears the famous "electrified helmet" into a game against the Detroit Lions – a helmet rigged with a radio so Ratterman can hear Brown's instructions from the sideline. The suspicious Lions twice rip the helmet off Ratterman's head, attempting to break the device.

After his playing days, Ratterman earns a law degree, becomes counsel for the NFL players association, and is later a television broadcaster. The tournament is the fourth "Patriotic" event in tournament history. More than $1,500 ($26,300 today) is raised for the Navy League.

1945 – William "Bill" Talbert and Elwood Cooke are seeded No. 1 and No. 2 respectively, but the women's field includes the most stars. Five of the top 10 women in the United States are in the field. The women, like the men, are seeded based on their 1944 rankings.

The women's seeds are 1. Pauline Betz (ranked No. 1 in the U.S. in 1944); 2. Dorothy Bundy (U.S. No. 4); 3. Mary Arnold (U.S. No. 5); 4. Shirley Fry (U.S. No. 8); and 5. Sarah Palfrey Cooke (who isn't ranked in 1944 due to minimal play, but is ranked No. 1 for 1945).

Since the 1942 tournament, World War II makes fielding the men's draws difficult and, as a result, this year Palfrey Cooke asks to enter the men's doubles draw with her husband, Elwood Cooke.

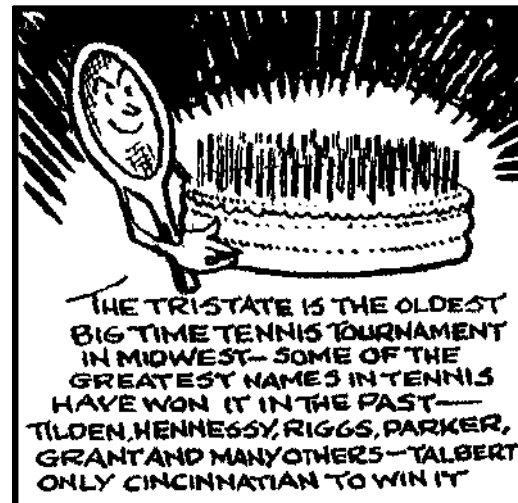

The rule book is consulted, and no rule is found that forbids a woman from playing in a men's draw. Accordingly, Tournament Director William Ruxton allows Palfrey Cooke to become the only woman in tournament history to compete in a men's draw as well as the women's draw.

All those draws made for a very busy Palfrey Cooke. On Thursday, June 28, she plays Fry in a ladies singles quarterfinal match at 2 p.m., then teams with Bundy in a ladies doubles match, then plays a men's doubles match at 5 p.m. She loses to Fry, but wins both doubles matches.

Talbert goes on to win the men's singles title over Mr. Cooke, and Betz wins her third singles title, this year over Bundy.

Palfrey Cooke and Bundy win the women's doubles title, beating Arnold and Fry.

The husband and wife team of Sarah and Elwood Cooke ("Mr. & Mrs. Tennis" as the newspapers refer to them) reach the men's doubles final before falling to Talbert and Lt. Hal Surface.

This year marks the fifth and final "Patriotic" event in tournament history. The Navy League receives $1,000 (approximately $17,100 today) from event proceeds.

1946 – Cincinnati becomes "San Francisco East" as three players from that city – Clarence D. "Nick" Carter, Norman Brooks, and Virginia Wolfenden Kovacs – win titles at the tournament.

Carter, seeded No. 5 in men's singles, takes on a field of 103 players to win the singles title, dropping only one set along the way. He easily defeats top seed George Richards of Los Angeles in the final, 6-1, 6-1. He then teams with Brooks to take the doubles title over George Ball of El Paso, Texas, and Glenn Gardner of New Orleans.

On the women's side, 19-year-old Rollins College student Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, is the No. 1 seed, followed by Kovacs at No. 2, Mary Arnold Prentiss of Los Angeles at No. 3, and Barbara Krase, also of San Francisco, at No. 4.

All four make the semifinals, with Kovacs and Fry advancing to the final. Kovacs and Fry are knotted up at four games all in the first set in the final, when Kovacs finds another gear and rolls on to upset Fry, 6-4, 6-1. Fry rebounds by teaming with Prentiss to take the ladies doubles crown over Kovacs and Barbara Scofield (also of San Francisco).

1947 – William "Bill" Talbert enters the tournament as the No. 1 men's singles seed, a two-time men's singles champion, and the only player in the field with the opportunity to retire the current tournament trophy.

George Pero enters the tournament as a member of the University of Miami tennis team, the No. 2 seed, and the husband of the No. 1 seed in the women's draw, Mercedes "Baba" Madden Lewis.

Talbert and Pero meet on Final Sunday, and the gap between the two top seeds appears to be further apart than anticipated: Talbert wins 6-1, 6-0, 6-0 to produce the most lopsided men's singles final in tournament history.

Also in the men's field is Dean Mathey Jr. and Richard Hart. Mathey is seeded No. 9, and reaches the semifinals, following in the footsteps of his father who was a Cincinnati semifinalist in 1916. Hart is seeded No. 4 and reaches the quarterfinals, following in the footsteps of his sister Doris Hart who was a quarterfinalist in 1941.

It is Talbert's third Cincinnati men's singles title, and, as is the custom, he retires, or takes permanent possession of, the "Cincinnati Trophy" (the second so-named). In later years, he donates the trophy back to the tournament.

The tournament contracts for the creation of a new trophy, and the "Boyd B. Chambers Memorial Trophy" is constructed. It is named to honor a former Tri-State competitor who died in World War II, who also was the brother of 1939 singles semifinalist Marshall Chambers.

In women's singles, four women are seeded and all four reach the semifinals: Madden Lewis of Birmingham, Alabama, Nancy Corbett of Chicago, Betty Hulbert James of Miami, Florida, and Betty Rosenquest of Minnesota and Rollins College. Rosenquest, in her first Cincinnati appearance, takes the singles title over James, 9-7, 6-2.

1948 – Third-seeded Herbert "Buddy" Behrens, a 19-year-old from Fort Lauderdale, Florida, and a student at Rollins College, upsets No. 1 seed Pancho Gonzales in the semifinals in a five-set marathon, 6-3, 2-6, 6-0, 2-6, 6-2.

Second-seeded Irvin Dorfman of New York has a similar struggle in the semifinals with unseeded Vinnie Rurac of Romania, the husband of the women's number one foreign seed Magda Rurac. Dorfman escapes with a 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, 6-3 win.

But when Dorfman and Behrens meet on Final Sunday, they both still have enough in their tanks to put on a show: a 7-5, 11-9, 2-6, 6-8, 6-4 masterpiece that is the longest five-set final in Cincinnati history. His victory also makes Behrens the tournament's sixth-youngest champion at the time; today he is the eighth-youngest champion of all time.

On the women's side, Rurac reaches the semifinals before falling to second-seeded Mercedes "Baba" Madden Lewis of Birmingham, Alabama. Top-seeded Dorothy Head of Alameda, California, defeats Margaret Varner of Austin, Texas, to set up the Head / Madden Lewis final.

Head wins the title 6-4, 6-4 against Madden Lewis on Sunday, July 4: her 23rd birthday.

1949 – The tournament reaches a major milestone and celebrates its 50th or "Golden Anniversary." In celebration, the tournament unveils what's called an "innovation": the creation of a separate qualifying tournament for both the men's and women's singles draws to allow local and regional players to compete for slots in the "main draw" rather than have extensive preliminary rounds.

The new qualifier draw also allows the main draws to be capped at 64 for men singles and 26 for women singles.

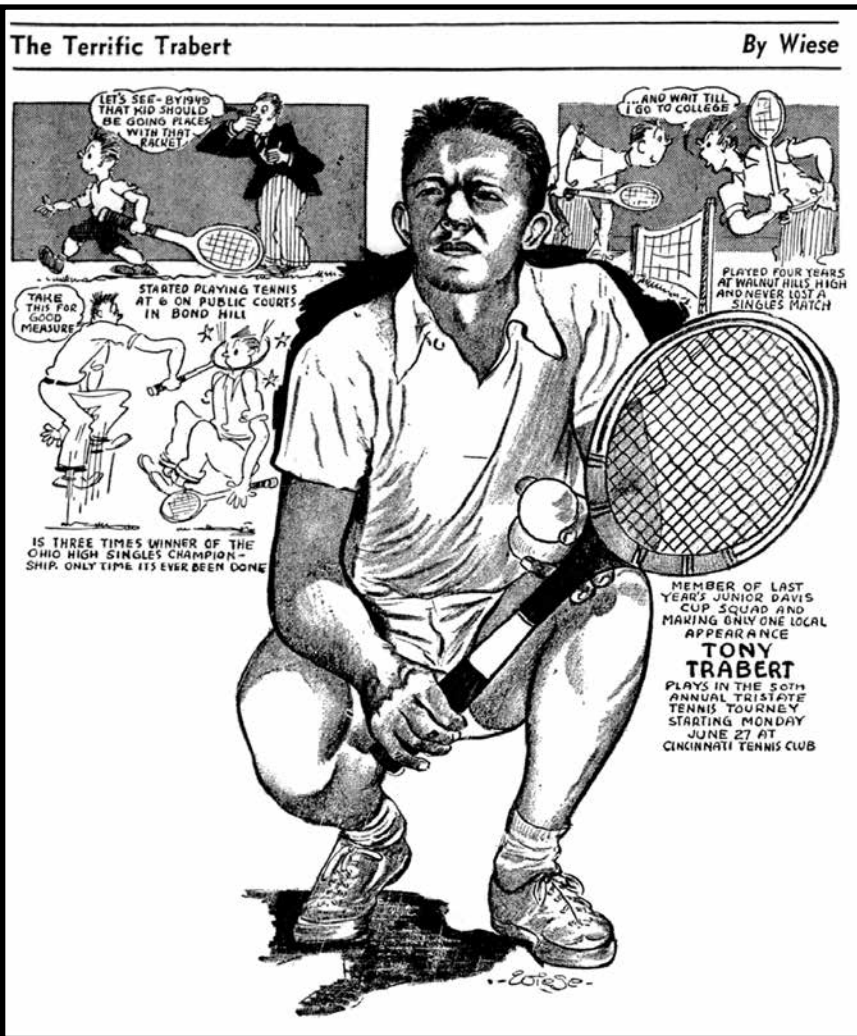

Barry MacKay, a native Cincinnati and future Davis Cup player, is just 13 years old and plays in the qualifier but loses in the first round and does not reach the main draw.

Second-seeded James Brink, formerly of the University of Washington, knocks out four seeds en route to the men's singles title. He defeats No. 10 seed Andy Paton of the University of Michigan in the round of 16, No. 5 Gilbert Shea of California in the quarterfinals, No. 4 seed Straight Clark of Des Moines, Iowa, in the semifinals, and No. 3 Arnold Saul of the University of Southern California in a five-set final.

Defending champion and top seed Herbert "Buddy" Behrens is eliminated by Saul in the semifinals, 6-8, 8-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1.

After round of 16 finishes in 1945 and 1947, Cincinnati Tony Trabert, a freshman at the University of Cincinnati, reaches his first Cincinnati quarterfinal but falls to Clark.

Magda Rurac, the second foreign seed and one of the greatest female tennis players in Romanian history, turns in a stunning performance, knocking off three seeds to collect her one and only Cincinnati title. She defeats the No. 4 seed Ewing McAllister of Chattanooga in the quarterfinals, the No. 2 seed Nancy Morrison of Palm Beach, Florida, in the semifinals, and the No. 1 seed Beverly Baker of Santa Monica, California, in the finals.

Rurac also pairs with Dorothy Head to take the doubles title over the Chicago team of Catherine Malcolm and Barbara Beckel.

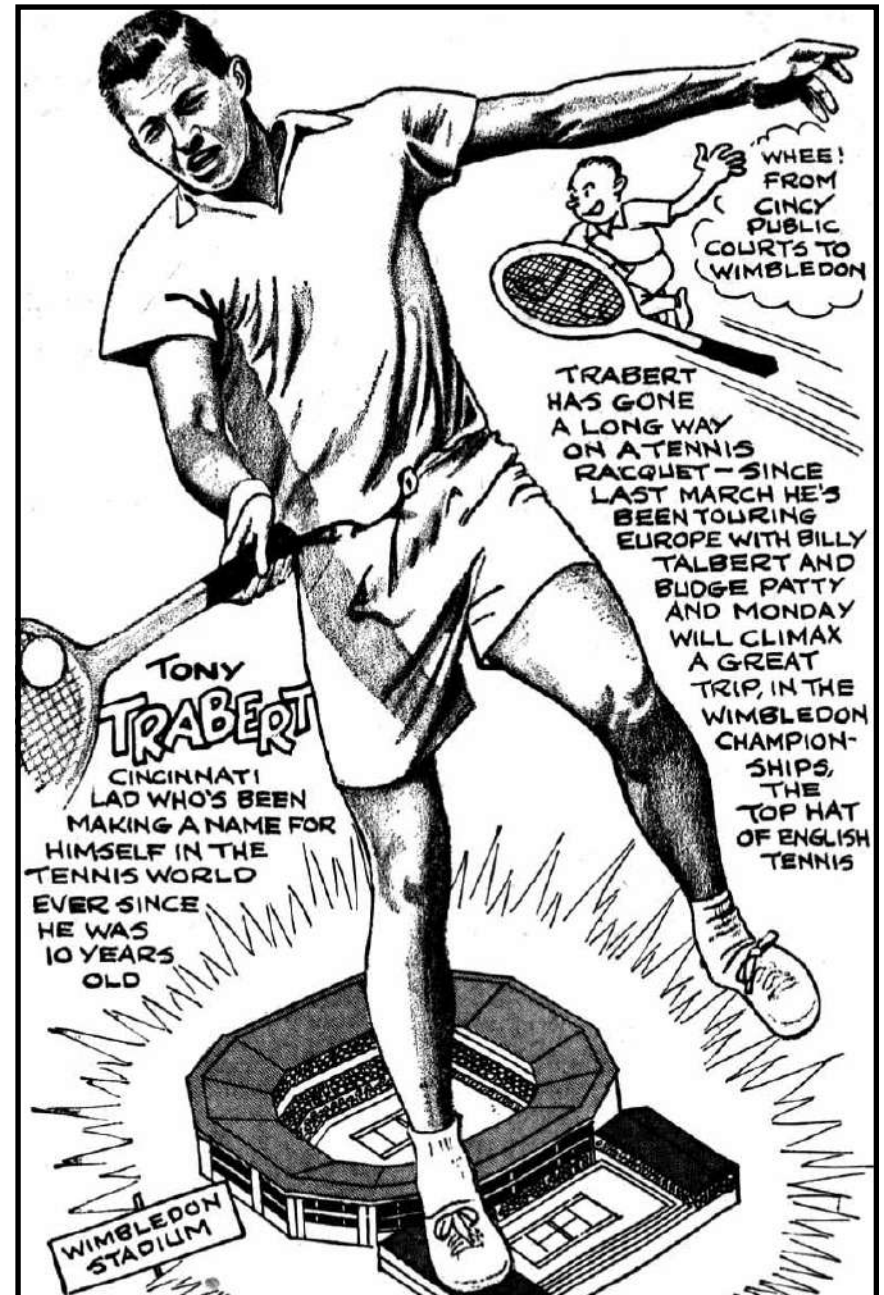

One thing that isn't new: rain halts play entirely on the qualifying Saturday and interrupts play for half of the next day. The tournament is scheduled for June 24 to July 1, but the rain forces play in the main draws to be extended for one additional day.

For the first time the organizing and sponsoring body of the tournament is the Cincinnati Tennis Club itself, rather than the Ohio Valley Tennis Association.

A student earns his first win over his mentor and then turns professional, the tournament is combined with another Midwest tennis tournament, the women's singles trophy is lifted by both its oldest and youngest champions of all time, the Davis Cup is played in Cincinnati, and yet another trophy is retired.

The Cincinnati Enquirer cartoon above appears one year to the day (June 25, 1950) after the cartoon on the previous page from the Cincinnati Post. The cartoon above celebrates 19-year-old Tony Trabert who at the time is playing tournaments in Europe with fellow Cincinnati William "Bill" Talbert. The pair wins the French doubles title before moving on to Wimbledon where Talbert plays doubles with Gardnar Mulloy. In singles Trabert loses in the second round and Talbert reaches the quarterfinals. At the time, Trabert is a student at the University of Cincinnati.

In 1951, Tony Trabert (left) and William Talbert (right) square off in the men's singles final. Trabert's five-set win is his first over his mentor. The two also pair up to take the doubles title.

1950 – When play gets underway, 73 players are in the men's field and 40 are in the women's field. Qualifying tournaments return for both men and women, and 84 players – 62 men and 22 women – compete for a chance to make the main draws.

Defending champion Jim Brink of Seattle is the top seed in the men's draw when the tournament opens, but he sprains two fingers in his semifinal match with the No. 3 seed, Glenn Bassett of Los Angeles, and loses the match. Bassett goes on to defeat unseeded 16-year-old Hamilton Farrar "Ham" Richardson of Baton Rouge, Louisiana, in the final to win the title.

Beverly Baker, ranked No. 8 in the U.S. and seeded No. 2, upsets defending champion and No. 1 seed Magda Rurac of Romania for the ladies crown.

The qualifying rounds are played on Saturday and Sunday, July 1 and 2. There is no admission charge for those days, but starting on Monday, July 3, general admission is 65 cents per person, with reserved seats going for $1.85 each. Those prices last through Thursday, but Friday through the final Sunday, general admission goes to $1.25 per person with reserved seats at $2.50. A reserved seat for the entire tournament is $4.90.

For the 17th time since 1912, the Cincinnati tournament is played at the same time as Wimbledon. On July 9, the final day of the tournament, the Cincinnati Enquirer laments the fact that player fields in Cincinnati suffer due to the USLTA's insistence on scheduling the tournament against Wimbledon. "By simple deduction, no great tennis player can play in Cincinnati and Wimbledon at the same time."

1951 – Tony Trabert of the University of Cincinnati wins the NCAA singles title in Evanston, Illinois, and reaches the final in doubles with classmate Bud Igel. That tournament ends on July 1, the day before the start of the Cincinnati tournament. Both men rush back to Cincinnati to take their places in the men's singles draw, where Trabert is seeded No. 2.

The No. 1 seed is his friend, mentor, and fellow Cincinnati William "Bill" Talbert, a player Trabert has never beaten. Both men reach the final, and Trabert finally gets his first win over his mentor in a five-set stunner: 5-7, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4. It is the ninth all-future Hall-of-Famer final in Cincinnati history. The two then pair up to take the doubles title over Hugh Stewart of Los Angeles and Grant Golden of Chicago.

Top seeded Pat Canning Todd of San Francisco takes the women's singles title over the No. 3 seed Tony Trabert (above left) accepting the trophy for winning the Cincinnati men's singles title in 1953 by defeating Ham Richardson in the final. By 1955 he is on the cover of Sports Illustrated (above right) as the top player in the world. He wins three Grand Slams in 1955 – the French, Wimbledon and the U.S. National Championships. He is the last American to win the French title until Michael Chang wins in 1989. Trabert also reaches the Cincinnati singles finals in 1955, his last appearance as a player in the tournament. The following year, 1956, he turns professional.

Magda Rurac. Todd also pairs with Dorothy Head to take the doubles title over Rurac and Suzanne Herr of Miami, Florida. Herr's father, Eddie Herr, is the founder of the Junior Orange Bowl Championships in Miami. He started the tournament in 1947 when Suzanne began playing junior tennis to provide her and others with more competition.

1952 – In the men's singles final, No. 4 seed Noel Brown of Los Angeles loses more games than he wins but still wins the match and the title.

With the match at 6-4, 0-6, 2-0, Brown's opponent, third-seeded Fred Hagist of the University of California Berkeley, suffers a muscle strain to his right side and is unable to serve. Hagist is forced to retire the match, the only retirement in a men's singles match in tournament history to that point. It would remain the only retirement in a men's singles final until 2011 when Novak Djokovic retires in the final against Andy Murray due to a shoulder injury.

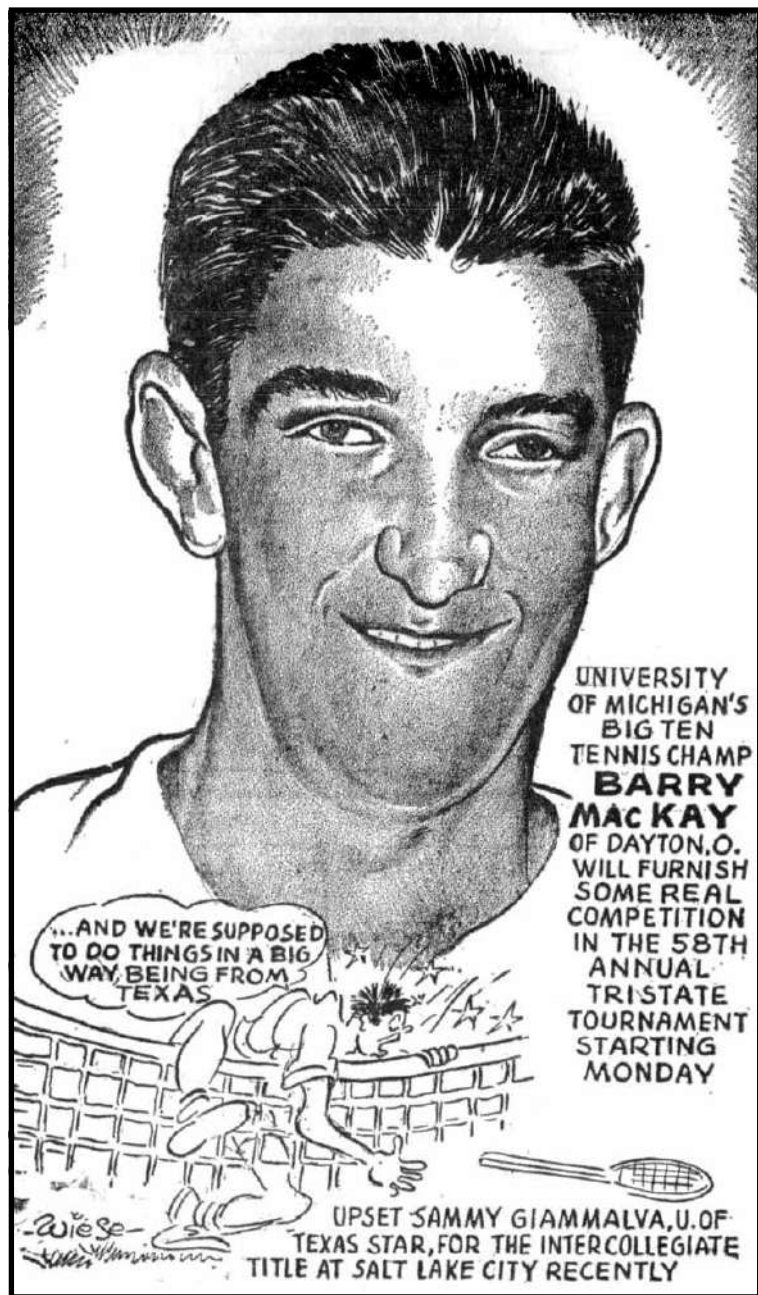

There is even more chaos in the women's draw. Five players are seeded, and all five reach the round of 16. That's when the upsets begin. Only two are left in the quarterfinals, and only one seed, top-seeded Anita Kanter of San Francisco, reaches the semifinals. Kanter defeats Joan Mercuriadis of California in the semifinals and then defeats Doris Pople of Des Moines, Iowa, in the final to take the women's crown.

Three weeks after the tournament, a Davis Cup tie is held (July 25-27) at the Cincinnati Tennis Club, pitting the United States against Japan. Behind player/captain William "Bill" Talbert and players Tony Trabert, Art Larsen, Gardnar Mulloy, and Vic Seixas, the U.S. wins 5-0.

1953 – The tournament is scheduled to start on June 29, and on June 22 Tony Trabert becomes a surprise entry. On that day he calls the Cincinnati tournament referee, who also happens to be his father, Arch Trabert. He says he will receive his discharge from the Navy in San Diego in two days and that he plans to play a three-day tournament in Coronado, California, and then fly to Cincinnati for the tournament on June 27 or 28.

Trabert arrives on time, and races through the tournament in his customary style. He wins every match in straight sets, knocking off the seventh and eighth seeds along the way, to set up a finals showdown with fellow Davis Cupper Hamilton Farrar Cincinnati native Barry MacKay lived in the Cincinnati suburb of Wyoming as a child before his family moves to Dayton, Ohio. After graduating from Oakwood High School he goes on to the University of Michigan where he wins the 1957 NCAA men's singles title by defeating Sam Giammalva of the University of Texas in the final. The cartoon above appears in the Cincinnati Post on July 1, 1957 to commemorate that victory. After a successful amateur career, MacKay turns professional in 1961 and later is a tournament promoter and tennis television broadcaster.

"Ham" Richardson of Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

Trabert defeats Richardson and wins the title in a five-set match, 10-8, 6-3, 6-4. It is Trabert's second and last men's singles title in Cincinnati, and it is Richardson's second loss in a Cincinnati men's singles final.

It is announced in May that Australian Thelma Coyne Long, a former Australian National champion, may be in the field, but her appearance is not confirmed until June 23. Like Trabert, Long likes to work quickly. The tournament's only foreign seed doesn't lose a set en route to the women's singles final, and defeats second-seeded Joan Mercuris of California in the semifinals in just 35 minutes.

Anita Kanter of San Francisco enters the tournament on a roll. She's won the last three tournaments she's played, and has won five titles since April. Kanter, the No. 1 seed, rolls through the tournament as well, defeating third-seeded Laura Lou Jahn of Clearwater, Florida, in the semifinals.

That sets the stage for a clash between the 35-year-old Long and the 20-year-old Kanter. It is the fourth-biggest age differential in a Cincinnati women's singles final of all time, and Long wins 7-5, 6-2, to take the ladies title.

1954 – Twenty-nine-year-old Straight Clark, who was a Cincinnati semifinalist in 1949, returns this year as the No. 5 ranked player in the U.S. The 29-year-old from Des Moines, now living in Baltimore, is given the top seed, while 35-year-old William "Bill" Talbert, a three-time Cincinnati singles champion, is seeded No. 2. Talbert is now ranked No. 11, the first time he's been out of the U.S. Top Ten in 13 years.

However, only four seeds reach the quarterfinals for only the second time since seeding began in 1927, and Talbert isn't among them. He loses in the round of 16 to Ed Rubinoff of Florida. It is Talbert's earliest exit in nine appearances in the tournament.

Clark does survive to the quarterfinals, where he meets and defeats unseeded Mike Green of University of California Los Angeles. He then defeats unseeded 19-year-old Sam Giammalva of Houston, Texas in the final to take the title.

Barry MacKay of Cincinnati loses in the second round while his sister, Bonnie, loses in the third round to eventual finalist Ethel Norton of San Antonio, Texas.

Cincinnati Alvin Bunis upsets the No. 8 seed, Les Longshore, in the second round. Don Fontana, future Canadian Tennis Hall of Fame enshrinee, is seeded third among foreign players and loses in the third round.

The lack of seeds in the later rounds is not an issue on the women's side. Four players are seeded and all four reach the semifinals. The top seed is Pat Stewart of Indianapolis, while Lois Felix of Meriden, Connecticut, is the No. 2 seed and the nation's 13th best player. Norton is the No. 3 seed, and Karol Fageros of Miami is No. 4.

The veterans beat the youngsters in the semifinals: Felix (who is 27) takes out Fageros (20) and Norton (32) knocks off Stewart (19). Then Felix and Norton craft a barn-burner in the final, with Felix emerging with a 3-6, 7-5, 6-3 win.

Following the tournament, on July 7, Cincinnati Enquirer sports columnist Dick Forbes sums up where the tournament fits in the Cincinnati sports landscape.

"Of all the sports events that take place in

In the Pre-Open Era, some of America's best tennis players go to college rather than simply traveling tournament to tournament, and many played in Cincinnati. In 1962, two teammates at UCLA were in the men's singles field: Charles Pasarell (left) was the No. 6 seed and reached the round of 32, while Arthur Ashe (right) was the No. 7 seed and reached the semifinals.

Cincinnati each year, only three can be recognized as 'classics' in the true sense of the word," he writes. "A 'classic' is an event that is held traditionally and is recognized on a national scale. The Metropolitan Golf Championship would not come under this definition as it involves only local people and is newsworthy only in Cincinnati. The "big three" here are, unquestionably, the University of Cincinnati / Miami football game, the Reds Opening Day, and the Cincinnati tennis tournament. We've just concluded eight days covering the Tri-State and think Cincinnati justly can be proud of this wonderful tennis affair. The members of the Cincinnati Tennis Club have kept the Tri-State very much alive...despite all kinds of difficulties."

Also this year, Jack Kramer and Frank Sedgman stage an exhibition indoors at the Cincinnati Gardens. They play before 5,000, said to be the biggest crowd to see a tennis match in Cincinnati to that date. At the time, the Cincinnati Tennis Club can seat approximately 3,000 people to watch a match.

1955 – The Western Tennis Association, the section of the USTA now known as USTA/Midwest, accepts the offer of the Cincinnati Tennis Club to combine the Tri-State with the Western Tennis Championship, as the Western is without a site that year. The combined event is played at the Cincinnati Tennis Club, and for the first time in 12 years the tournament dates do not conflict with Wimbledon.

When 16-year-old Miriam "Mimi" Arnold of Redwood City, California, enters the Cincinnati tournament she is a relative unknown. The winner of a U.S. Hardcourt junior title at age 11, the current holder of both the women's and junior singles titles at the California State Championship, and the daughter of California tennis star Ethel Burkhardt doesn't generate much buzz among fans. When five players are seeded in the women's field, Arnold is not among them.

Over the course of the week, she receives little to no attention. Her first match (against Barbara Jackson of Cincinnati) is a walkover. Little notice is given. She defeats the No. 4 seed Sara Mae Turber in the round of 16. No one notices. But on Wednesday, July 6, when she knocks off the sole foreign seed, Yola Ramirez, in straight sets in the quarterfinals and sets up a match against No. 2 seed Karol Fageros in the semifinals, fans begin to mention her name.

But no one expects the result: a decisive 6-0, 6-3 win against Fageros, a 21-year-old, three-time Cincinnati semifinalist. Arnold then does the impossible: She beats the No. 1 seed and the sixth-ranked player in the U.S., Barbara Breit, 6-4, 6-4. It is her fourth win over a seed that week, and makes Arnold the youngest women's singles champion in Cincinnati history, a record she still holds today.

Arnold has a complicated route to the title, but determining the men's champion is even more complicated.

Tony Trabert arrives home in Cincinnati

Arthur Ashe in 1969, en route to his second singles semifinal in Cincinnati.

immediately after winning the Wimbledon men's singles title (and a few weeks after winning the French title). Seeded No. 1, he blasts his way through the field and into the final. He's joined there by the No. 2 seed, Bernard "Tut" Bartzten, and on Sunday, July 10, they begin their best-of-five match.

Each player wins a set and Trabert is up 2-1 in the third when rain halts play. The rain is relentless, and with both men needing to be elsewhere the following day, they agree to return in September after the U.S. National Championship (now known as the U.S. Open).

Trabert wins the 1955 U.S. National Championship singles title – his third consecutive Grand Slam title that year – and then returns to Cincinnati to meet Bartzten on September 13. Instead of picking up where they left off in July, the match is restarted completely. Bartzten defeats Trabert 7-9, 11-9, 6-4 to win his first of three Cincinnati titles.

The match is Trabert's last in Cincinnati as an amateur. He turns pro the following year. His appearance in his hometown in 1955 and the grace with which he conducts himself on and off the court is not lost on fans and members of the media alike.

Pat Harmon, sports editor and columnist for the Cincinnati Post, writes "In so many editions of the sports pages these days, the columns are filled with stories of broken contracts, unfulfilled commitments, or carelessness toward private or public obligations. That makes it a great pleasure to write about a young man who goes so far out of his way to make things attractive for his friends back home. It isn't often we get to see a Wimbledon champion this close, and it's even more rare to find a Wimbledon champion, or a champion of any sort, like Tony Trabert."

1956 – Bernard "Tut" Bartzten enters the tournament as the No. 1 seed, the defending champion, and the No. 4 player in the nation. Tony Trabert is ranked No. 1 in the U.S. but has already defected to the pro ranks, so Bartzten is effectively No. 3. Furthermore, Bartzten, a 28-year-old Texan, is generally regarded as the world's greatest clay court player.

Seeded No. 2 is Eddie Moylan, a 32-year-old from Trenton, New Jersey. He's given the second seed because he's just behind Bartzten in the national rankings, and he's considered to be the world's second-best clay court player behind Bartzten.

To reach the final, Bartzten knocks off the No. 7 seed (Pancho Contreras) in the quarterfinals and the No. 4 seed (Johann Kupperburger of South Africa) in the semifinals. He wins both matches without losing a set.

Moylan is stretched to three sets in beating sixth-seeded Alex Olmedo in the quarters. Semifinal matches at the time were best-of-five, and Moylan needs all five to take out third-seeded Grant Golden of Chicago, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

On Final Sunday, despite his struggles in the tournament to date, Moylan wins the first set 6-0, losing only 13 points along the way. Bartzten rebounds, takes a 3-1 lead in both the second and third sets, but loses the lead both times and loses each set 6-3. It is a shocking straight set win for Moylan, and today he is one of only 15 men over the age of 30 ever to win the Cincinnati title.

In 1969, rain washes out Final Sunday (July 20), with only the women's doubles final completed that day as it is moved indoors at the Cincinnati Indoor Courts in Indian Hill. The other three finals – women's singles, men's singles and doubles – are postponed until Monday, July 21.

Yola Ramirez of Mexico City, the No. 1 foreign seed, beats No. 4 seed and 17-year-old Mary Ann Mitchell of California in the final to win the women's singles title. Karol Fageros of New York is a singles semifinalist for a third consecutive year, and teams with Janet Hopps, a three-time NCAA women's singles champion at Seattle University, to take the doubles title over Ramirez and Julie Copeland of Massachusetts.

Also in the men's field is Richard Raskind, who would later transition to Rene Richards. Raskind reaches the round of 16 in singles, beating Bill Long in the first round and Alvin Bunis in the second before losing to Contreras.

1957 – In his Cincinnati Enquirer column on the Thursday before the start of the tournament, journalist Al Schottelkotte makes his prediction for the eventual men's semifinal lineup: Bernard "Tut" Bartzten, Grant Golden, Sam Giammalva and Barry MacKay. He's half right.

Bartzten is top seeded for the second consecutive year. He's the No. 5 player in the nation and is seeking a third consecutive appearance in the men's singles final. He doesn't lose a set en route to the semifinals where he meets and defeats No. 4 seed Armando Vieira of Brazil, 7-5, 6-2, 6-3.

In the other semifinal, Golden, the No. 3 seed from Chicago, faces Bill Quillian of Seattle, the No. 5 seed. Golden needs four sets to knock off Quillian and punch his ticket to the final. The final score is 6-1, 6-8, 6-4, 6-4.

As for MacKay and Giammalva: Cincinnati native MacKay enters the tournament after winning the NCAA singles championship for the University of Michigan. He reaches the round of 16 in Cincinnati before falling to Jose Ochoa, the No. 2 foreign seed. The player he beats in the NCAA singles final, Giammalva (of the University of Texas), reaches the quarterfinals in Cincinnati before falling to Quillian.

On Sunday, July 7, Bartzten defeats Golden 6-4, 7-5, 6-4 to win his second Cincinnati singles title.

In the women's singles, top seed Lois Felix of Meriden, Connecticut, (ranked No. 14 in the U.S.) wins her second Cincinnati women's title, this time over No. 2 seed Pat Naud of San Mateo, California.

Bill Bowrey (left), Lesley Turner Bowrey (middle) and Jim McManus (right) in Cincinnati in 1969. Turner Bowrey wins the women's singles title, her husband Bill reaches the round of 16 in both singles and doubles, and McManus reaches the quarterfinals in doubles with partner Jim Osborne.

1958 – The men's draw this year includes the entire University of Southern California men's tennis team, including Alex Olmedo who is only weeks removed from his second NCAA title. Olmedo's opponent in that NCAA final – Jon Douglas of Stanford, who also plays quarterback for the Cardinal football team – follows him to Cincinnati.

Olmedo loses in the quarterfinals to another collegian, Donald Dell of Yale, but Douglas gets to the semifinals only to fall to defending champion and top seed Bernard "Tut" Bartzten.

Bartzten goes on to the final where he defeats fellow Texan Sam Giammalva in straight sets to earn his third Cincinnati title. With that win, Bartzten retires the massive Boyd B. Chambers Memorial Bowl.

Bartzten takes the doubles title as well, pairing with Chicagoan Grant Golden to defeat Giammalva and Olmedo.

Collegians fill the brackets on the men's side, but the women's title is won by a player who has just graduated from high school. Gwyneth Thomas of Cleveland is 17-years-old, the tournament's No. 1 seed, and the No. 2 junior in the nation.

She defeats third-seeded Maria Elena 'Baby' Vivanco of Mexico in the quarterfinals, and second-seeded Martha Hernandez in the final to win the women's singles title. Hernandez teams up with Marilyn Montgomery of Texas to take the women's doubles title over Thomas and 39-year-old Sara Mae Turber of Indiana.

1959 – The men's NCAA final is "replayed" one week later in Cincinnati as Whitney Reed (San Jose State) faces Donald Dell (Yale) once again. The result is the same as top-seeded Reed beats second-seeded Dell in the men's singles final to take the Cincinnati title.

In women's singles, No. 1 seed Donna Floyd of Virginia beats second-seeded and 16-year-old Carol Hanks of St. Louis in three sets to take the title. In the men's doubles final, the top-seeded tandem of Reed and Grant Golden have match point in the third set against the unseeded team of John Powless and John Skogstad, but can't prevent the upset.

Gene Scott, future publisher of Tennis Week magazine and U.S. top five player, makes the quarterfinals in doubles with Ronnie Fisher.

The tournament also has a new trophy: The Stanley Lewis Bowl, a silver bowl made in Mexico and named in honor of a former tournament director and Cincinnati tennis historian.

The tournament officially adds the word “international” to its name, Cincinnati hosts the world’s first combined professional/amateur tennis event, one player sets a record that would stand for 62 years, one year is just peachy, and the Open Era arrives.

1960 – Miguel Olvera of Ecuador becomes the second non-American men’s singles champion in the history of the tournament with a 4-6, 9-7, 6-4 victory in the final over No. 10 seed Crawford Henry of Georgia. He also becomes the first unseeded men’s champion in tournament history since seeding began in 1927. He holds that record for 62 years until Borna Coric wins the singles title in 2022.

It is only the third time since 1899 that the men’s final is best-of-three sets rather than best-of-five. Tournament referee Arch Trabert, father of Tony Trabert, makes the decision to play a best-of-three-sets final on Sunday, July 10, due to impending rain. The rain comes nonetheless, and the match is postponed until Monday, July 11.

In women’s singles, only four players are seeded and 17-year-old Carol Hanks of St. Louis, the finalist in 1959, is not one of them. However, she beats top seed Farel Footman of San Francisco for the ladies title. Hanks defeats 14-year-old Julie Heldman in the quarterfinals and Justina Bricka in the semifinals to reach that finals showdown with Footman.

Just before the tournament starts, a Jack Kramer Pro Tour event is held at the Cincinnati Tennis Club featuring Tony Trabert, Lew Hoad, Ashley Cooper and Alex Olmedo.

1961 – Twenty-two-year-old Allen Fox of the University of California Los Angeles, the newly minted NCAA singles champion, takes the men’s title over 18-year-old Bill Lenior of Tucson, Arizona. Fox, the No. 3 seed, defeats the No. 2 foreign seed Pancho Contreras of Mexico in the quarterfinals and No. 5 seed John Powless in the semifinals to reach the final.

In that final, Fox loses the first set 3-6, claws back to win the second set 8-6, then holds his serve for the rest of the match, winning the final two sets 6-2, 6-1.

In the women’s final, second-seeded Fern “Peachy” Kellmeyer, a 17-year-old from Charleston, West Virginia, upsets top-seeded Carole Caldwell, an 18-year-old from Pittsburgh ranked No. 12 in the U.S. Kellmeyer pairs with Lynn Haines of Dallas, Texas, to reach the women’s doubles final, but they lose to Caldwell and Cathie Gagel of Dayton, Ohio.

Bud Wagner is the tournament director, and he immediately recognizes the tournament’s antiquated name. “The Tri-State Tennis Tournament is the most mis-named affair in sports,” Wagner said to the Cincinnati Enquirer on June 11, 1961. “We have players from around the world – from four continents, many more countries and all over the United States. The Tri-State has long since outgrown its original name. Almost all of the world’s greatest tennis players have played in the Tri-State at one time or another, and many have won our championship as a look at the Tri-State cup will show.” The tournament adds “international” to its name the following year.

1962 – Arthur Ashe makes his first appearance in Cincinnati and becomes the first African American to play the tournament. He reaches the semifinals before falling to eventual champion Marty Riessen of Northwestern University.

Riessen, the No. 3 seed, beats defending champion and top-seed Allen Fox in the final to claim his first of three men’s singles titles in Cincinnati – two in the Pre-Open Era, and one in the Open Era.

Sixteen-year-old Julie Heldman of Santa Monica, California, beats top-seeded Roberta Alison of Alabama for the women’s singles title. Heldman is the second youngest women’s champion in tournament history after Miriam “Mimi” Arnold in 1955.

Also this year, the tournament officially adds the word “International” to its name, a year after tournament director Bud Wagner first suggests the name change.

1963 – In men’s singles, all but one of the players who reach the round of 16 is a current or former collegiate player. Marty Riessen, ranked No. 5 in the nation and a former Northwestern player, repeats as singles champion by beating Herbert Fitzgibbon, a senior at Princeton, in three straight sets in a best-of-five singles final.

Riessen then teams up with his former Northwestern teammate, Clark Graebner of Cleveland to win the doubles title over Jerry Moss of Miami and Norm Perry of Virginia.

Riessen has to defeat John Powless of Madison, Wisconsin, in the semifinals to reach the men’s singles final. As the tournament is getting under way, Powless reflects on the strength of the field relative to other tournaments he’s been playing. “There are 16 players in this one with national rankings,” Powless tells the Cincinnati Post. “That’s more than we’ve been getting in the tournaments I’ve played so far.”

Seventeen-year-old Stephanie DeFina of Hollywood, Florida, the No. 3 seed and the nation’s eighth-ranked junior, beats 14-year-old Jane “Peaches” Bartkowicz 7-5, 6-4 for the ladies title. It is Defina’s first of two Cincinnati women’s singles titles.

1964 – Cliff Buchholz of St. Louis is seeded No. 1 and receives a bye in the first round. His first match is a second-round meeting with Bob Sprenghelmeyer, a Southern Illinois University senior from Dubuque, Iowa, who is coming off a title run at the South Carolina Open. When the two meet on Monday, June 29, Buchholz wins the first set 7-5 and has a 4-1 lead in the second when the wheels fall off. Buchholz loses the second set and is broken three times in the third to lose the match, becoming the first Cincinnati men's top seed to lose his first match since seeding began in 1927. Interviewed after the match, Sprengelmeyer has no explanation for his performance. "I just don't know how I did it," he says.

Unfortunately for Sprengelmeyer, the win does not translate into a deep run in the draw. He tumbles in his next match to his college teammate, Lance Lumsden, 6-3, 6-2.

Ronnie Fisher, the No. 2 seed from the University of Houston, also loses in the second round, falling in three sets to Horst Ritter, a native of Germany who plays for the University of Southern California.

With the top two seeds out of the draw, the No. 3 seed is the highest seed to reach the round of 16. He is 22-year-old Herbert Fitzgibbon, a former captain of the Princeton tennis team who is ranked No. 14 in the U.S. He defeats unseeded Dave Power of Indiana University in straight sets in the round of 16, and then defeats seventh-seeded George Sokol in the quarterfinals. Sokol, who escaped communist Czechoslovakia with his parents in 1949, plays for the University of North Carolina.

Fitzgibbon then takes out fifth-seeded Dave Sanderlin of UCLA in the semifinals to reach the final where he routs Robert Brien of Australia in straight sets, 6-1, 6-3, 6-1, to take the title.

The No. 1 in the women's draw is 1962 champion and U.S. No. 10 Julie Heldman. Her run to another title is interrupted in the semifinals by fourth-seeded Jean Danilovich of Jackson, California. Their match is one of the wildest of the tournament, with Heldman winning the first set 8-6 before Danilovich storms back to take the final two sets 9-7, 6-2. Seventeen-year-old Danilovich then beats 21-year-old Alice Tym of Peoria, Illinois, and the University of Florida, 6-1, 6-2 in the final to take the women's crown.

1965 – Stephanie DeFina of Hollywood, Florida, enters the tournament as the No. 1 seed. She is seeking her second Cincinnati title after winning it all in 1963. Three other players are seeded: 1961 winner Fern "Peachy" Kellmeyer is seeded No. 2, Patsy Rippy of Oklahoma is seeded No. 3, and Roberta Alison of Alabama, a singles finalist in 1962, is seeded fourth. All seeded players reach the semifinals except for Rippy, who loses in the quarterfinals to Faye Urban, a 19-year-old future Canadian Tennis Hall of Fame enshrinee.

In the semifinals, DeFina knocks off Urban and Alison surprises Kellmeyer to set up a showdown in the finals between the 19-year-old Alabamian and the 21-year-old Floridian. The final is a three-hour, bitterly fought battle, with DeFina winning the first set 10-8, losing the second 5-7, and taking the third, 6-4 to claim her second Cincinnati singles title.

For the first time since 1959, the top two men's seeds meet in the final as Bill Lenior of Arizona, the 1961 Cincinnati men's singles finalist and No. 2 seed, prevents defending champion and No. 1 seed Herb Fitzgibbon from getting his second Cincinnati singles title. Lenior defeats Fitzgibbon in the final 1-6, 6-3, 6-3, 9-7.

Also this year, Paul Flory begins his association with the tournament as a volunteer in player recruitment and housing. Bud Wagner is tournament director.

During the tournament, Tony Trabert talks about the need to bring amateurs and professionals together in the same events for "open tennis," to generate more interest in the sport. "You'd see a lot more kids hitting tennis balls against the side of buildings," he says.

1966 – The top two seeds, Bill Lenior and Cliff Buchholz, go down in the round of 16 leaving the door open for third-seeded Dave Power of Fort Collins, Colorado, formerly of Indiana University. He defeats Tom Gorman in the semifinals to set up a finals match against No. 4 seed William Harris, the son of 1937 singles finalist Charles Harris. Powers defeats Harris 7-5, 3-6, 0-6, 6-1, 6-2 in the last five-set men's singles final in tournament history.

It is a "peachy" year in women's singles as 17-year-old Jane "Peaches" Bartkowicz of Detroit, the No. 2 seed, takes the title over top-seeded, 22-year-old Fern "Peachy" Kellmeyer of West Virginia. Third-seeded Patsy Rippy of Oklahoma reaches the semifinals before falling to Kellmeyer, and fourth-seeded Mimi Heinreid of Hollywood, California, the daughter of actor Paul Heinreid who played Victor Lazlo in the 1942 classic film "Casablanca", reaches the quarterfinals before falling to unseeded 18-year-old Becky Vest of Mississippi.

On Final Sunday, July 3, the women's singles final is completed, and the men's final begins. Power and Harris are tied 5-5 in the first set of their best-of-five-set match when rain hits. After a two-hour delay, the decision is made to finish the match and the men's doubles final on the following Saturday, July 9, as all the finalists must be in Indianapolis for a tournament beginning July 5. It is hoped all will be available the following Saturday.

The men's final resumes on Saturday, July 9 in Cincinnati, with Power winning the last best-of-five men's singles final ever played in Cincinnati, 7-5, 3-6, 0-6, 6-1, 6-2. The men's doubles final is played on July 10 in Indianapolis because Joaquin Loyo-Mayo (one of the four doubles finalists) is a semifinalist there.

The day after the scheduled last day of the tournament, the tournament stages a pro exhibition between Lew Hoad, Rod Laver, Ken Rosewall and Pierre Barthes. Hoad beats Barthes 8-5 in one singles match, and Rosewall beats Laver by the same score in another. Then Laver and Rosewall square off in an exhibition match using the new way to score a tennis match called VASSS (Van Alen Simplified Scoring System). In this match, Laver beats Rosewall 21-18. In doubles, Barthes & Laver defeat Hoad & Rosewall, 10-7.

In the 1973 men's singles final, Ilie Nastase (top photo) becomes one of the most heavily fined players in Cincinnati tournament history due to his arguments with umpires and linespeople throughout his match with Manuel Orantes (shaking hands with Nastase at net in lower photo). All but $1,000 of his $9,150 winnings (singles and doubles) is withheld pending an appeal to the US Tennis Association, which is later upheld. Although Nastase is reluctant to accept the trophy, he eventually does.

1967 – Cincinnati hosts the world's first amateur/professional combination event. The "Cincinnati Professional Tennis Championship" is held simultaneously with the all-amateur Tri-State on the hardcourts of the University of Cincinnati, which can seat 3,000 versus the smaller Cincinnati Tennis Club.

It is held, in part, as an answer to the problem of amateur and "open tennis" (as in "open to professionals as well as amateurs"). "The amateurs play for trophies, the pros for $15,000," says Pat Harmon of the Cincinnati Post on May 10, 1967.

The pro event features a 12-man field and is won by Spain's Andres Gimeno, who upsets Rod Laver in the semifinals and Ken Rosewall in the finals. Other players include Dennis Ralston, Fred Stolle, Pancho Segura, Alex Olmedo, Mal Anderson, Earl "Butch" Buchholz, Mike Davies, Barry MacKay and Pierre Barthes. Gimeno earns $2,850 for the win; Rosewall takes home $1,800. In the consolation match, Laver defeats Ralston to collect the $1,500 prize. Ralston gets $1,200. In doubles, Stolle and Laver take the title over Ralston and Rosewall. Stolle and Laver split

$1,050 and Ralston and Rosewall split $750.

On the amateur side, Joaquin Loyo-Mayo of Mexico City wins the men's title over Santiago, Chile's Jaime Fillol. Loyo-Mayo is the No. 3 foreign seed and Fillol is the No. 2 foreign seed.

Eighteen-year-old Jane "Peaches" Bartkowicz of Hamtramck, Michigan, is ranked No. 5 in the U.S. and is the No. 1 seed. She defeats second-seeded Patsy Rippey of Shawnee, Oklahoma, for her second consecutive Cincinnati title.

Both tournaments are held on the University of Cincinnati's Boyd B. Chambers Courts. It is the first time in history the tournament is played on hardcourts.

The late Chambers was a former basketball, baseball and football coach at UC, and was its first Athletic Director. He also played in the Cincinnati tournament and served as referee. The tournament trophy in competition between 1948 and 1958, which is retired by Bernard "Tut" Bartzten, was named in honor of his son, Boyd Chambers Jr., who died during World War II. Another son, Marshall Chambers, was a men's singles semifinalist in 1939.

1968 – Cincinnati innovates in 1967 when it stages the world's first amateur/professional tennis tournament. It innovates again in 1968 in an attempt to mitigate its long-standing scheduling-conflict issue with Wimbledon.

This year, the tournament allows players eliminated at Wimbledon to come to Cincinnati after the tournament starts and "fill-in" following the quarterfinal stage of the men's draw.

The tournament finds a home along the Ohio River from 1975 to 1978. Above, a packed crowd takes in a night session singles match.

The plan is this: eight players play the quarterfinal round, and then the four winners meet four new players, effectively repeating the quarterfinal round.

The four players who arrive from England are Allen Stone (Australia's fifth-ranked player), Premjit Lall (India's No. 1 player), Ramanathan Krishnan (India's No. 2 player), and Colin Stubs (Australia's tenth-ranked player).

These four meet the following four players who have emerged from the quarterfinals: Joaquin Loyo-Mayo, the No. 1 seed and the defending champion; Jaime Fillol, the No. 2 seed and 1967 men's singles runner-up; William A. Harris, the No. 4 seed and 1966 men's singles runner-up; and Tom Gorman, the No. 7 seed from Seattle.

Stone defeats Loyo-Mayo, but Fillol defeats Stubs, Harris defeats Lall, and Gorman defeats Krishnan.

"Fill ins": 1; players already in the draw: 3.

As Joe Quinn of the Cincinnati Post observes, "The new arrivals had some excuse. They have not played on clay courts in some time and the change from Wimbledon's grass was probably a handicap although none of the losers had any alibis."

The four winners then play each other: Harris defeats Stone and Gorman defeats Fillol to set up a Harris / Gorman final.

Harris, the son of 1937 singles finalist Charles Harris, takes the title over Gorman in a best-of-three final: 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

The players in the women's field do not have to deal with "fill-ins" or new arrivals from Wimbledon. At the end of the week, 17-year-old Linda Tuero of Metairie, Louisiana, the No. 2 seed, upsets top-seed

Tory Fretz of Pennsylvania for the ladies title. Tuero's coach is Emmett Paré, who won the Cincinnati men's singles crown 40 years earlier. It is the last tournament where only amateurs play. She is the last teenager to win the women's singles title in Cincinnati until Coco Gauff in 2023.

Although 1968 marks the beginning of open tennis in the tennis world, Cincinnati's event would not join the "Open Era" (where professionals play with amateurs) until 1969. That's because the United States Tennis Association did not vote to allow open tennis until February, 1968. By that time, plans for the July event in Cincinnati already were well underway, and it was too late to change.

The tournament returns this year to the Cincinnati Tennis Club after a year at the University of Cincinnati, and thus returns to a clay court surface. This also is the last of 33 years the Cincinnati tournament is played at the same time as Wimbledon. In 1969, as part of the bargain to become known as the Western Tennis Championship, Cincinnati accepts new dates on the calendar that do not conflict with Wimbledon.

1969 – A new era is born in Cincinnati as "Open" tennis arrives and professional players take over. But even as players are arriving in Cincinnati, tournament organizers struggle with the distribution of the $17,500 purse. Upon hearing this, a few of the players approach tournament officials with their ideas. According to the July 15 edition of the Cincinnati Post, the tournament committee agrees "to give the question consideration over the next 48 hours and arrive at a decision”.

In addition to adding prize money, the tournament also endures its second name change. The “Tri-State” is now called the Western Tennis Championships. Changing the name is a minor consideration. The real change (and the real reason for the change) is the swapping of a week on the tennis calendar. The week the Western occupied (the third week of July) is far superior to the week the Tri-State had (the first week of July) because the dates often conflicted with Wimbledon.

The Western was so named because it was the Championship of the United States Tennis Association district known as the Western Section. That section, which includes Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and parts of Illinois, Wisconsin, Kentucky and West Virginia, is renamed “USTA/Midwest” in 1997 after 102 years.

The name changes, but not the venue – it’s still played at the Cincinnati Tennis Club. Eight of the top 10 players in the U.S. enter on the men’s side, and Cliff Richey walks away with the title by beating Allan Stone of Australia in 55 minutes. Richey pockets $5,000 ($42,000 in today’s dollars) and Stone gets $2,500.

After the match, a reporter told Richey “you won’t often make a quicker $5,000 than that.” Richey replied “Yeah, 55 minutes today, and 10 years of hard work to get to these courts.”

The women’s final, however, is no short affair. Lesley Turner Bowrey of Australia takes the women’s title and the $500 first prize ($4,200 in today’s dollars) by beating Gail Sherriff Chanfreau of France in a three-hour-and-20-minute final that ends when Chanfreau, who is suffering from leg and stomach cramps, hits a forehand, lets out a shriek and falls to the court. Chanfreau is attended to where she drops, and eventually gets to her feet and retires from the match. “We’re both alike,” she says later. “Neither would give up.” The final score is 1-6, 7-5, 10-10, retired.

Seating capacity stands at 2,500 for the tournament. John S. Parke, Jr., is tournament director, and publicly thanks the tournament’s 200 volunteers in media reports.

The tournament reaches a financial turning point

In 1979 the tournament moves once again, this time north to the Cincinnati suburb of Mason, where it remains today. The date on the calendar is the same, even the seats are the same: they’re packed up at Old Coney and transported up Interstate 71 to the new venue. But those seats do not last long: within a few years the first of multiple additions to the facility begins. The surface is new (the tournament switches from clay to hardcourt) and the name is new: The ATP Championship. The name signifies a new partnership between the tournament and the Association of Tennis Professionals, the union for professional players on the men’s tour.

and a new leader is found to meet the challenge, five venue changes are made with the last being just right, the women depart, and the tournament distinguishes itself as the players championship.

1970 – Cliff Richey returns to defend his title but loses to Ken Rosewall, who’s 11 years older, in the final. It is the first meeting ever between the two players, and the match lasts 46 games, the longest Cincinnati best-of-three-sets final ever: 7-9, 9-7, 8-6. Two weeks later, the tiebreak is introduced to tennis.

Cliff’s sister Nancy Richey reaches the women’s singles final. She’s undefeated in three matches against her opponent, Rosie Casals, but fails to get her fourth straight win. Casals defeats Nancy 6-3, 6-3 to collect the women’s singles title.

One of the most anticipated matches in men’s singles is a semifinal between relative youngster Ilie Nastase and elder statesman Rosewall. If Nastase thought his youth would help him carry the day against Rosewall, he was mistaken.

As was reported in the Cincinnati Enquirer after a 6-0, 6-3 win for Rosewall: “Sitting in the Cincinnati Tennis Club locker room...Ilie Nastase was beside himself. ‘Look at him, and look at me,’ he said excitedly, nodding toward Ken Rosewall, who sat with only tickles of water on his body as he talked to writers. ‘I’m 24 and he’s 35 or something,’ Nastase said. ‘And look at me; I’m all wet. I play two games in this heat and I can’t grip the racket or anything. And he doesn’t look any different.’”

The Tournament Director is J. Howard “Bumpy” Frazer, who would serve in this role for four years (1970 to 1973). Frazer would go on to become the President of the United States Tennis Association, the only Ohioan to hold that office.

1971 – In the last year at the Cincinnati Tennis Club, Stan Smith wins the men’s title and $5,000 ($38,000 in today’s money). Still an amateur, he donates the money to the Davis Cup Fund. He later takes the doubles title with Erik van Dillen.

Virginia Wade of Great Britain defeats 1968 champion Linda Tuero 6-3, 6-3, in the women’s singles final to take the ladies crown.

In his first appearance in Cincinnati, future Cincinnati singles champion Harold Solomon reaches the quarterfinals, beating Frank Sedgman in the first round, and defending champion, No. 2 seed Cliff Richey in the second round, and Jim Osborne in the third round before falling to van Dillen in the quarterfinals.

To reach that quarterfinal against Solomon, van Dillen had to play a third-round match against No. 7 seed Frank Froehling. The box score of that match reflects the 6-2, 6-4 elimination of Froehling, but doesn't include two other eliminations: one chair umpire and one linesperson. Arguments with van Dillen causes 36-year-old veteran chair umpire Bill Macassin of Pompano Beach, Florida, to depart his post, while clashes with Froehling causes an unnamed linesperson to leave in the middle of the match.

“I just couldn't put up with that constant bickering,” Macassin tells the Cincinnati Enquirer. “I felt like I would antagonize his play more if I continued, so I told him, ‘If you want another umpire, I'll get you one.’ He said ‘I'd like that.’ It's the first time I ever left the chair before a match was completed.” John Humphrey of Cincinnati is the replacement for Macassin in the chair.

1972 – The tournament moves to the new Queen City Racquet Club in the suburb of Sharonville. The new tournament home has facilities allowing night matches for the first time in tournament history. The first match on the new stadium court is between No. 13 seed Alex Olmedo and unseeded Jim Delaney, which Olmedo wins 1-6, 7-5, 6-4. The first night match in tournament history comes on Monday, July 31 when Onny Parun of New Zealand, the No. 11 seed, defeats Butch Seewagen of New York, 6-3, 6-4.

The men's singles final is a battle between two left-handed 19-year-olds who would both eventually land in the Hall of Fame. Jimmy Connors beats Guillermo Vilas to take the singles title in the 10th all future Hall of Fame final in Cincinnati.

Margaret Court beats countrywoman Evonne Goolagong for the ladies title. They also pair up to take the women's doubles crown. The men's doubles crown goes to Frew McMillan and Bob Hewitt.

Five married couples play the tournament: Anna Maria and Jaime Pinto-Bravo (Chile), Patrick and Maria Proisy (France), Andrew and Daphne Pattison (Rhodesia, now Zimbabwe), Barry and Ann Phillips-Moore (Australia) and Gail and Jean Baptiste Chanfreau (France).

1973 – This is the last year the tournament is held at the Queen City Racquet Club. Ilie Nastase

(“Nasty Nastase”) lives up to his name, due in part to his lengthy arguments with the chair umpire in the process of besting Manuel Orantes 5-7, 6-3, 6-4 in the final. All but $1,000 of his $9,150 winnings (singles and doubles) is withheld pending an appeal to the USTA, which was later upheld. Although Nastase is reluctant to accept the trophy, he eventually does.

Nastase enters the tournament in an effort to maintain his No. 1 ranking in the Grand Prix standings. “I cannot afford to pass up Cincinnati,” he says prior to his final match against Orantes. “I miss too many Grand Prix tournaments because of the Davis Cup. I cannot miss any more.”

In women's singles, top-seed Chris Evert loses in the final to second-seeded Evonne Goolagong, 6-2, 7-5. It would be six years before Evert would lose another match on clay. After her final with Goolagong, Evert wins 125 straight matches on clay, finally losing on May 12, 1979, when Tracy Austin beats her in the semifinals at the tournament in Rome.

Linda Tuero, the No. 3 seed in the women's singles draw and the 1968 women's singles champion, reaches the round of 16 before falling to Sharon Walsh of San Francisco. This also is the year Tuero works as an extra on the film, “The Exorcist”. While on the film set, she meets the author of the book on which the film is based, William Peter Blatty. The two are married in July, 1975, and have two children together.

Tuero's first round opponent is “ice cream heiress” Kathy Graeter, a member of the family which owns Graeter's Ice Cream. The “French-pot” ice cream the family produces is a Cincinnati staple and is known for its massive chunks of chocolate. Graeter, who has competed on the international tennis tour, loses to Tuero, 6-1, 6-0.

Fifteen-year-old Jeanne Evert makes her professional debut in Cincinnati. The sister of Chris Evert defeats Laurie Tenney in a round of 16 match that lasts two hours and 46 minutes. Evert would finish the week by reaching the women's singles semifinals before falling to Goolagong, and is today still the youngest women's semifinalist in the Open Era in Cincinnati.

Although attendance is increasing, the tournament, which has lost money for years, faces financial problems with the loss of its principal sponsor. Cincinnati businessman Robert Harpenau, who retires to Florida. Prior to the tournament, an exhibition is held at the Queen City Racquet Club to raise money for the tournament. Fresh off a victory over Margaret Court (but prior to his loss to Billie Jean King), Bobby Riggs returns to Cincinnati to play an exhibition fundraiser.

1974 – For the first time since 1919, the tournament is men-only and, for the first and only time, it is played entirely indoors. It's not that Cincinnati tournament officials don't want a women's draw. A scheduling conflict the same week with World Team Tennis makes it impossible.

Although the tournament moves back outdoors the following year, it would be 14 years before the tournament has a women's field.

The 1974 tournament is held on two specially constructed Supreme courts at the downtown Cincinnati Convention Center, with noon-hour matches scheduled to attract the lunch crowd. Also, the tournament begins its involvement with Children's Hospital Medical Center as profits of $15,000 ($95,000 today) are contributed to the new beneficiary.

Jack Guggenheim, director of personnel relations for the U.S. Shoe Corporation, is the new tournament director, taking over for J. Howard "Bumpy" Frazer. A Saturday, June 15 Cincinnati Enquirer article quotes Frazer as saying, "There's a time when the reins should be turned over to someone else in the community, and I think that time has come."

Vice Chairman Don Fovel is quoted in the same article as saying "This is the year when the tournament turns around and becomes financially successful, or goes away for good."

The $30,000 Cincinnati tournament faces competition in the form of a $100,000 event in Louisville, Kentucky, which is played the same week. To help attract players, the singles champion's check is made the same in Cincinnati as it is in Louisville ($8,000), despite the overall smaller purse.

Paul Flory is in charge of player recruitment. His big recruit, top-seed Marty Riessen, wins the singles title and the $8,000 first-place prize ($50,000 in today's money). Bob Lutz, the finalist, gets $4,500. The doubles champions, Dick Dell and Sherwood Stewart, earn $1,400. The doubles finalists, Jim Delaney and John Whitlinger do not collect their $800 prize money: they're both in college and are therefore amateurs. (Also, this is the first year players are awarded points based on doubles matches.)

Jack Kramer, director of the Association of Tennis Professionals, comments to the Cincinnati Post about the level of play: "Many of the first- and second-round losers today are better players than most of the fellows who were playing during my career."

1975 – The tournament moves to the hardcourts of the Sunlite Swim and Tennis Club at Old Coney, which is east of Cincinnati on the Ohio River. Six hardcourts are built for the tournament, but the tournament would return to play the following year.

This is a turning point in the tournament as Paul Flory, an executive with Procter & Gamble, becomes tournament director. He immediately enlists the co-sponsorship of the Cincinnati Enquirer and Taft Broadcasting, and increases the number of individual sponsors (at $1,000 each) to 30. He raises that number to 50 the following year.

On the court, Tom Gorman of Seattle, the 1968 men's singles finalist, wins the singles title over Texan Sherwood Stewart. Stewart dismisses No. 2 seed and 1971 singles champion Stan Smith in the semifinals en route to that final. Rain twice interrupts the singles championship match, which needs four hours to complete.

The relentless rain forces the doubles final to be moved indoors to the Eastern Hills Indoor Tennis Club near Luken Airport. Phil Dent and Cliff Drysdale beat Marcello Lara and Joaquin Loyo-Mayo for the title.

1976 – Cincinnati gets a new date on the calendar which remove conflicts it has had in the past with two different tournaments. The new dates, July 12-18, are two weeks after Wimbledon and two weeks ahead of Louisville.

After one year on hardcourts, the tournament returns to play and four new clay courts are added to the facility at Old Coney. In addition, seats are added to the main court to hold 5,400 fans, and the draw expands back to 64 players after three years as a 32-man draw.

Tom Gorman comes to Cincinnati with high hopes of repeating as singles champion. "I want to do well here and hopefully show that it wasn't just a fluke last year," Gorman tells the Cincinnati Post. Standing in his way of securing a second consecutive Cincinnati men's singles title is not only the other players in the field, which include former champions Stan Smith (1971) and Cliff Richey (1969), but also his unease with playing on clay. He tells the Cincinnati Enquirer "Anytime I win a match on clay I feel like I've won a tournament."

Gorman beats Nick Saviano and Bob Webb in the first two rounds but loses to qualifier Trey Walke in the round of 16.

No. 2 seed Roscoe Tanner, a 24-year-old from Lookout Mountain, Tennessee, beats top seed Eddie Dibbs of Miami, Florida, in the singles final to collect his only professional clay court title. Smith reaches the quarterfinals in singles and pairs with Erik van Dillen to take the doubles title over Dibbs and Harold Solomon.

1977 – An 18-year-old John McEnroe makes his Cincinnati debut. He is unseeded, an amateur, and coming off a surprising semifinal run at Wimbledon. He reaches the second round on the grass of Newport, Rhode Island, and then comes to Cincinnati, where he battles opponents, umpires and the media to reach the quarterfinals.

In his second-round match with Andrew Pattison,

McEnroe is given four warnings for delaying the game and misconduct. Three warnings constitute default, but McEnroe is not defaulted and wins 6-4, 1-6, 6-4. "The official wasn't controlling the match," Pattison says after the loss. "It seems like the hallmark of the modern generation of tennis player is to abuse the officials in order to get the calls changed."

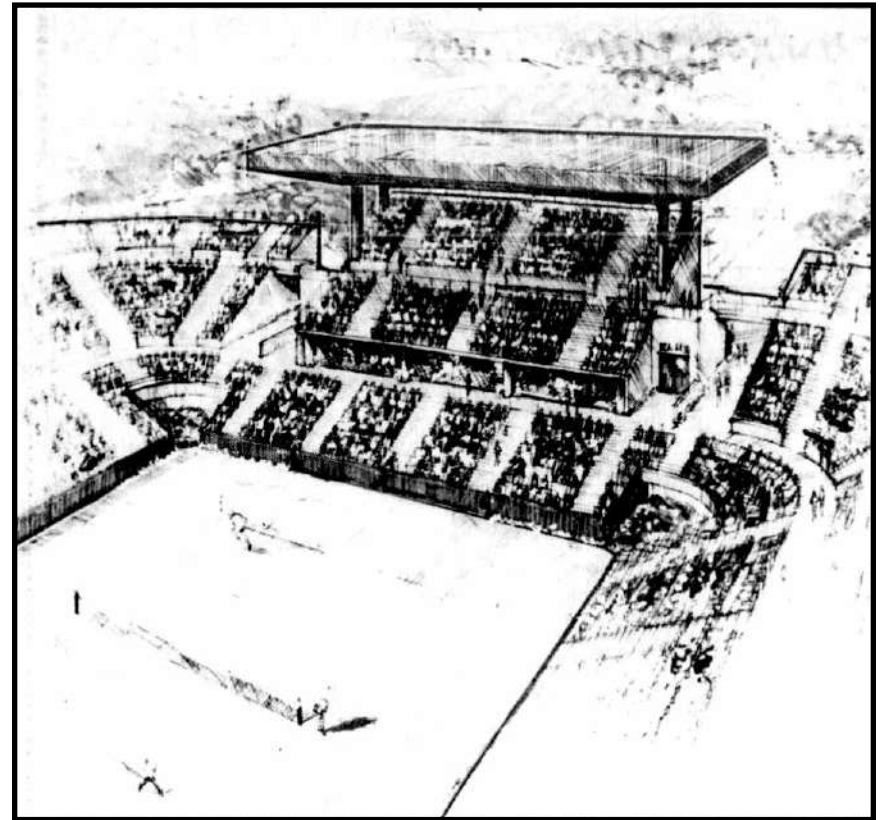

McEnroe then upsets No. 5 seed Phil Dent in the round of 16, but falls to qualifier Rick Fagel in the quarterfinals. He and Eddie Dibbs reach the semifinals in doubles.

Fagel, of Miami, Florida, is eligible for the main draw but arrives too late to sign in and is forced to play the qualifier. He loses only one game in three qualifying matches, and then beats Doug Crawford, Tim Gullikson, Gene Mayer and McEnroe to reach the semifinals, only to fall to Great Britain's Mark Cox.

Third-seeded Harold Solomon picks up his first title in Cincinnati with a straight-set victory over Cox. Cox would be the last player from Great Britain to reach a final in Cincinnati until Tim Henman in 2000.

After rain interrupts play briefly on Monday, July 10, extreme heat sets in. Australians Dick Crealy and Bob Hewitt both retire in matches due to the heat, and top-seed Roscoe Tanner considers retiring during one of his matches. The singles final is scheduled for Monday night, rather than the traditional Sunday, in the hope of getting the match televised on PBS. However, PBS does not air the final.

1978 – It is the final year at Old Coney, and the tournament is scheduled the week after Wimbledon, which reduces the number of top-ranked players in the field.

Eddie Dibbs, a 27-year-old from Miami, Florida, makes his top seed stand up. He defeats defending champion and No. 3 seed Harold Solomon in the semifinals, then takes the title by beating No. 2 seed Raul Ramirez of Mexico in the final, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2.

Ramirez redeems himself, however, by taking the doubles title with Gene Mayer over Brian Fairlie of New Zealand and Ismail El Shafei of Egypt.

On Sunday, July 30, the men's singles final match is delayed by 30 minutes due to a traffic jam of thousands of cars on nearby Kellogg Avenue, all filled with fans attempting to come to the match.

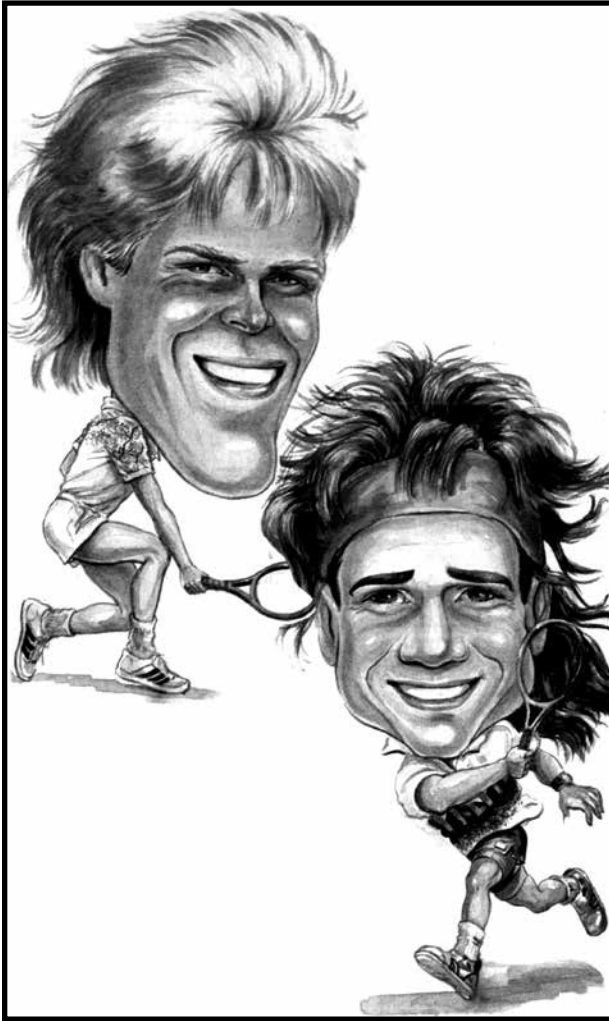

One fan at the tournament this year is Dr. Leslie H. Jenkins of Knoxville, Tennessee. Jenkins is a physicist at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, and is said to have devised the code used to create the world computer rankings for the players.

Cars are given to players for their use during the week for the first time in tournament history and, it is believed, for the first time at any tennis event.

1979 – The tournament changes names again and is now called the "ATP Championship" or "players championship", similar to the PGA Championship in golf. When asked why the player's association was just now creating its own Championship, ATP Executive Director Bob Briner told the Cincinnati Enquirer on March 16, 1979: "We hadn't used the title 'ATP Championship' before because all the ingredients weren't present until now. We think Cincinnati has all the ingredients and we feel this tournament will be to tennis what the PGA Championships are to golf."

Just as in 1969, the tournament receives a new name and a new calendar date, but the tournament organization is unchanged, as is the tournament's sanction. However, unlike 1969, the venue and the playing surface do change. The tournament moves from its flood-prone Old Coney facility to the suburb of Mason, 25 miles north of downtown Cincinnati.

Plans are made for a permanent stadium in the future. In the meantime, a court with temporary stands with a seating capacity of 5,200 and three other courts are constructed. The stands are the same used at Old Coney, and Clinton Asphalt Paving Company installs the new DecoTurf II courts.

Torrential rain causes the Sunday finals to be postponed until the next day, Monday, August 27. CBS broadcasts the event for the first time, televising the final two days. The network will broadcast the tournament each year until 1982, when USA Network takes over. USA stays in that capacity until 1990, when ESPN becomes the tournament's official broadcast home. In later years, the Tennis Channel becomes the tournament's broadcast home.

Also, 5,100 people attend the night session on Friday, August 24, the first single-session crowd exceeding 5,000 people in tournament history.

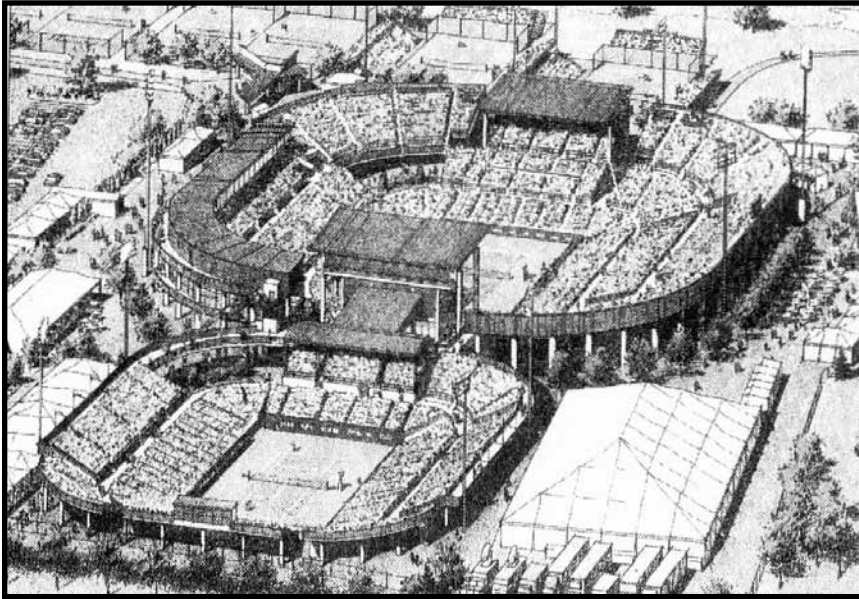

The tournament also has a new trophy, a massive loving cup with a lid, crafted by Tiffany. Peter Fleming becomes the first player to have his name inscribed on the new trophy which will be in use until 1991. Ilie Nastase and Brian Gottfried, the No. 2 seeds, take the doubles title over the top-seeded team of Stan Smith and Bob Lutz.

As seen in this rendering above, the Grandstand Court was completely rebuilt in 1995 into a 5,000-seat facility, creating a second miniature Stadium Court.

City of the Year, the Swedes rule the courts, the women and the Davis Cup return to Cincinnati for one year, skydivers deliver prize money, and construction around the court is as intense as the play on the court.

1980 – It is the second year the tournament has the status as the players championship, but this is the first year the ATP Championship has Grand Prix points. Conflicts with other tournaments prevented Cincinnati from having points in 1979, but those conflicts are reconciled before the 1980 edition of the tournament gets underway.

Five former singles champions are in the draw when play gets underway. Harold Solomon, the No. 3 seed and 1977 champion, wins the singles title in a star-studded field that also includes Jimmy Connors, Guillermo Vilas and Ivan Lendl.

A sold-out crowd is on hand on Sunday, August 24 as Solomon wins his second Cincinnati title over unseeded Francisco Gonzalez, a former player at the Ohio State University.

Solomon's $28,000 winner's check ($105,000 today) is delivered by a skydiver who lands on court. Solomon donates $1,000 to tournament beneficiary Children's Hospital. Brian Teacher and Bruce Manson take the doubles crown over Wojtek Fibak and Lendl.

One of the most explosive matches of the week is a second-round match-up between Connors and Sherwood Stewart. After repeated overrules by chair umpire Bill Heckle, Connors, who's down 2-1 in the second set, gestures that he wants Heckle replaced. Nothing happens, and he tries to concede the match. Grand Prix referee supervisor Zeno Pfau decides to pull Heckle. Jim Meekin takes the chair and the match continues. All parties, including Heckle, said later that the right decision had been made.

1981 – Twenty-two-year-old top seed John McEnroe blasts through a field that also includes Stan Smith, Jimmy Connors, Ilie Nastase, and Vitas Gerulaitis. McEnroe defeats five players, including two seeded players, and loses only one set during the week to set up a finals matchup against unseeded New Zealander Chris Lewis in the final.

"Mac the Brat" displays his typical combative personality in that final, blasting linespeople and chair umpire Jim Brockhoff. Footage from that final was seen in an A&E Biography on McEnroe, first aired in May, 2001.

McEnroe beats Lewis 6-3, 6-4 to take his only Cincinnati singles title, and pairs with Ferdi Taygan of Massachusetts to take the doubles title. McEnroe becomes the last male player to win both the singles and the doubles titles in one year in Cincinnati, and the last player to win a Cincinnati title with a wooden racquet.

By 1997, Cincinnati has the only facility outside the Grand Slams with three permanent stadiums: Grandstand Court (added in 1995), Court 10 (added in 1997), and Center Court, so named because it sits in the center of the row of stadium courts.

Also the tournament has its first stadium as permanent seating is added to create the lower bowl on what is now Center Court. Seating capacity is 6,900 in the stadium that is said to be one of only six in the world built specifically for tennis.

The new facility is inaugurated in a most unusual way, according to Cincinnati Enquirer sports columnist Mark Purdy. He writes: "The new Kings Island tennis stadium was christened here Monday with a major upset: nobody argued with the chair umpire during the first game." Purdy notes the truce was only temporary. "History will record that the first dispute, in the first set of the first match on the first day of the tournament was between umpire Jim Meakin and player Pat DuPre. The skirmish, which took place early in the match between DuPre and Harold Solomon, was a minor one. Meakin overruled a linesman's call and ordering a point to be replayed. For an inaugural argument on a bright new court, it was rather disappointing.”

Purdy's disappointment was diminished in the third set when a Solomon shot was called out by a linesperson. Meakin overruled the linesperson and also ordered the point replayed. That generated a meeting between Solomon – who thought the ball was in and wanted the point rather than a replay – and Meakin.

Purdy writes Solomon “advanced toward the chair and spread his arms like a Cessna in search of an air traffic controller.” A conversation ensued, Meakin relented, Solomon won the point and later the match.

Later this year in Cincinnati, the final round for the Davis Cup is held at Cincinnati's indoor Riverfront Coliseum as the United States, captained by Arthur Ashe, takes on an Argentina squad that includes Guillermo Vilas. Players McEnroe, Roscoe Tanner and Peter Fleming give Ashe his first Davis Cup title as Captain.

1982 – In separate interviews prior to the tournament, Pancho Segura, a two-time men's singles champ in Cincinnati, says Ivan Lendl has the inside track to win the Cincinnati singles title, and from Toronto Jimmy Connors says winning the singles titles in Canada, Cincinnati and the US Open should be enough to get him back to the world No. 1 ranking. In the end, Segura is correct and Connors is disappointed.

Lendl, the No. 3 seed, ends the week in Cincinnati by winning his only Cincinnati singles title, knocking off Connors in the semifinals along the way.

The player Lendl defeats in the final, Steve Denton of Texas, turns in one of the greatest tournament results of his life. The 1981 Australian Open finalist defeats Vitas Gerulaitis in the quarterfinals, and promptly calls it “certainly the best (victory) I've had in a major tournament”. He then knocks off John McEnroe, the top seed and the world's No. 1 player, in the semifinals.

Guy Forget of France, who would win the singles title in 1991, reaches the quarterfinals as a qualifier. One celebrated and highly anticipated player, 17-year-old Mats Wilander, is seeded No. 6 but loses in the first round to countryman Thomas Hogstedt.

McEnroe and Peter Fleming, one of the greatest doubles teams of all time, take the doubles crown.

CBS broadcasts the tournament's final two days. Before the tournament begins, construction increases the stadium court's capacity to 7,586. Despite the construction, the tennis facility is used for a different purpose: concerts. In May, a large platform is constructed on stadium court and is used as a stage for a summer concert series. Billed as “concerts outside under the stars,” acts include Jimmy Buffet, James Taylor, Emmylou Harris, and Rick Springfield.

1983 – A tournament record seven former champions enter the main draw, and the four semifinalists are four of the best players in the history of the sport: John McEnroe, Jimmy Connors, Mats Wilander and Ivan Lendl.

The tournament field includes 13 of the 16 players who were seeded at Wimbledon only weeks earlier, an interesting development for the Cincinnati event which decades earlier often had dates that conflicted with Wimbledon.

Two of those seven former champions, McEnroe

Challenges to umpire calls came in 2006 in the form of a new computer / camera system called Hawk-Eye. The challenge system is discontinued in 2020 when linespeople are completely replaced by electronics, with Cincinnati being the world's first combined (men & women) tournament to employ the new system. The elimination of the human element in line calling also eliminates arguments between players and officials, including those exchanges made famous by John McEnroe. McEnroe is seen above making his final appearance in Cincinnati in 1990 when he reached the Round of 16.

and Connors, square off in one semifinal – the only one of their 33 career meetings to occur in Cincinnati. The match lasts nearly three hours, and both players argue with the linesmen and umpire. In the third set, McEnroe engages in a shouting match with a heckler. When it appears the incident might get out of hand, Connors walks over, quiets the fan and McEnroe, puts his arm around McEnroe and leads him away to the roar of the crowd.

The fifth-ranked Wilander takes out Lendl in the other semifinal and faces world No. 1 McEnroe in the final. Wilander wins the first of his four singles titles in Cincinnati. He wins the title the day before his 19th birthday, making him the youngest Cincinnati champion in the Open Era to that date. (Boris Becker becomes the youngest champion in 1985 when he wins the title at age 17 years and nine months.) It's also Wilander's first hardcourt title of his career, and his first title in the United States.

USA Network broadcasts the final two days of the tournament for the first time. It serves as the tournament's host television broadcaster until 1990, often with a commentary team that includes Cincinnatians Tony Trabert and Barry MacKay and 1959 Cincinnati singles finalist Donald Dell.

1984 – John McEnroe enters the tournament as the No. 1 seed and the No. 1 player in the world. He's lost only one match all year. But just prior to the tournament, McEnroe graces the cover of Sports Illustrated, and becomes one of many athletes who succumb to the “Sports Illustrated Cover Jinx.”

A 2002 issue of Sports Illustrated examined the jinx, saying this about McEnroe's appearance on that July 16, 1984 cover: “John McEnroe would win 82 of the 85 singles matches he played this year, but he takes a first-round, post-cover drubbing from unseeded Vijay Amritraj in Cincinnati.” It's the second time a No. 1 seed loses his first match in Cincinnati (Cliff Buchholz in 1964 was the first).

But while McEnroe makes an early exit from Cincinnati, Mats Wilander makes an early entrance.

Andy Roddick wins the 2006 singles title, kisses Center Court, and takes a victory lap to thank the fans.

Wilander comes to Mason eight days before the start of the tournament to practice and prepare to defend his 1983 singles title.

He reaches the semifinals along with two countrymen, Joakim Nystrom (seeded No. 8) and Anders Jarryd (the No. 5 seed), and American Jimmy Connors (the No. 2 seed). Jarryd knocks off Nystrom and Wilander takes out Connors (after being down 0-4 in the third set) to set up the all-Swedish final. Wilander, the No. 3 seed, then dispatches Jarryd to repeat as singles champion, his second of four Cincinnati men's singles titles. It is the first Cincinnati men's final with two non-American countrymen.

1985 – Boris Becker makes his first appearance in Cincinnati and wins the title at the age of 17 years, nine months, to become the youngest champion in the Open Era in Cincinnati. He is the No. 4 seed, and No. 1 seed Mats Wilander is Becker's opponent in the final. No. 2 seed Anders Jarryd reaches the quarterfinals, while No. 3 seed Yannick Noah reaches the round of 16, his best finish in Cincinnati.

En route to that title win, Becker, who is only a few weeks removed from his Wimbledon win, flies to Los Angeles on Tuesday, August 20, to appear on The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson. He is back in Cincinnati on Wednesday, August 21, for his second-round match against Brian Teacher.

Off the court, the Championship Club, a private dining club at the south end of the main court, and the Grandstand Court are added.

This year marks the first time in tournament history the event is not run completely by volunteers. Elaine Schneider (later Bruening) started volunteering in 1977, and this year becomes the tournament's first paid employee.

1986 – Mats Wilander of Sweden is seeded No. 1 and wins his third Cincinnati singles title, defeating No. 2 seed Jimmy Connors in the final. Wilander plays six matches and doesn't drop a set all week, becoming the first champion to do so since Ivan Lendl in 1982.

Wilander lost the first match he played in Cincinnati (in 1982) but then compiles a 23-1 record including 17 straight wins. After his victory over Connors he is asked if anyone could beat him in Cincinnati. "I don't feel like nobody could beat me here, but I know they are going to have to play very well," he says.

Stefan Edberg makes his third appearance in Cincinnati and his first appearance in the semifinals. He would go on to reach eight semifinals in Cincinnati.

Lights are added to the Grandstand Court (the No. 2 court), allowing night play on two courts for the first time. At the end of the year, the players vote Cincinnati "Super Series" event of the year.

1987 – In winning his first title in Cincinnati, Stefan Edberg does not drop a set all week and has to beat four seeded players along the way: Tarik Benhabiles (16), Brad Gilbert (7), Jimmy Connors (4), and Boris Becker (2).

Gilbert, Connors and Becker have another distinction in addition to losing to Edberg in Cincinnati in 1987: they all go on to coach future two-time Cincinnati men's singles champion Andy Roddick.

A $2.1 million expansion increases seating on the main court by 13 percent (from 7,732 to 8,748). Also, two new air-conditioned levels are built beneath the west stands, adding a player lounge, locker room, lavatories, a training room and a whirlpool room, as well as administrative offices, a conference suite, a first-aid facility, offices for the referees and umpires, a news-media interview room, a media lounge and darkroom facilities.

Along the upper rim of the main court, an enclosed, air-conditioned, 65-seat news-media box is added, as well as private luxury suites, built on either side of the news-media box.

This year, Thriftway Food & Drug, under the direction of Richard Lindner, signs on as the first title sponsor in tournament history. Chiquita becomes presenting sponsor.

1988 – Top-seeded Mats Wilander wins his fourth and final title in Cincinnati, beating No. 2 seed Stefan

Edberg in a two-hour, 33 minute final.

Wilander has lost only one set all week but he starts slowly in the final. He loses the first set and is down 3-5 in the second set when he turns his game around. He wins the set 7-6(5) and forces another tiebreak in the third. At the beginning of that tiebreaker, Edberg asks chair umpire Jim Zimmerman, in all seriousness, if the match is best-of-three sets or best-of-five. After Edberg's question is answered, he loses the tiebreak, the match and the title. Final score for Wilander: 3-6, 7-6(5), 7-6(5).

In his first appearance in Cincinnati, Michael Chang reaches the quarterfinals at the age of 16 years and six months and becomes the youngest player to reach Cincinnati's Final Eight in the Open Era.

This year women's tennis returns to Cincinnati, albeit briefly. A women's tournament, the Pringles Light Classic, is played two weeks before the start of the men's event. The top two seeds are Manuela Maleeva and 16-year-old Mary Joe Fernandez. No. 3 seed Barbara Potter defeats No. 4 seed Helen Kelesi 6-2, 6-2 in just 61 minutes in the women's singles final to take the title, while Beth Herr and Candy Reynolds take the doubles title over Lindsay Bartlett and Kelesi, 4-6, 7-6(9), 6-1.

Although it will be a financial success, tournament officials learn prior to the start of the tournament that it will not be added to the women's calendar for the future due to issues within the Women's Tennis Association.

Expansions to the tennis complex include Courtside Cafes, an area of eight tents with various dining options, and a new, 3,000-foot road, which provided better access to the tennis complex.

1989 – Cincinnati is now the nation's third-richest tournament behind Miami and the US Open. Fifth seeded Brad Gilbert is the surprise singles champion over Stefan Edberg. Gilbert beats Pete Sampras, Michael Chang, and Boris Becker en route to the final, which he wins 6-4, 2-6, 7-6(5).

This is the year the ATP Tour is formed. The ATP Tournament Application Committee convenes to evaluate the petitions from tournaments wishing to be a part of the new Tour. A group of independent representatives of both players and tournaments meet in January, 1989, in Ponte Vedra Beach, Florida, to establish the 1990 calendar.

Committee members include Harold Solomon (Cincinnati champ in 1977 & 1980), Stan Smith (1971 champ), Jaime Fillol (1967 singles finalist and 1966 doubles winner), Zeljko Franulovic (1969 quarterfinalist), and Ross Case (1971 competitor).

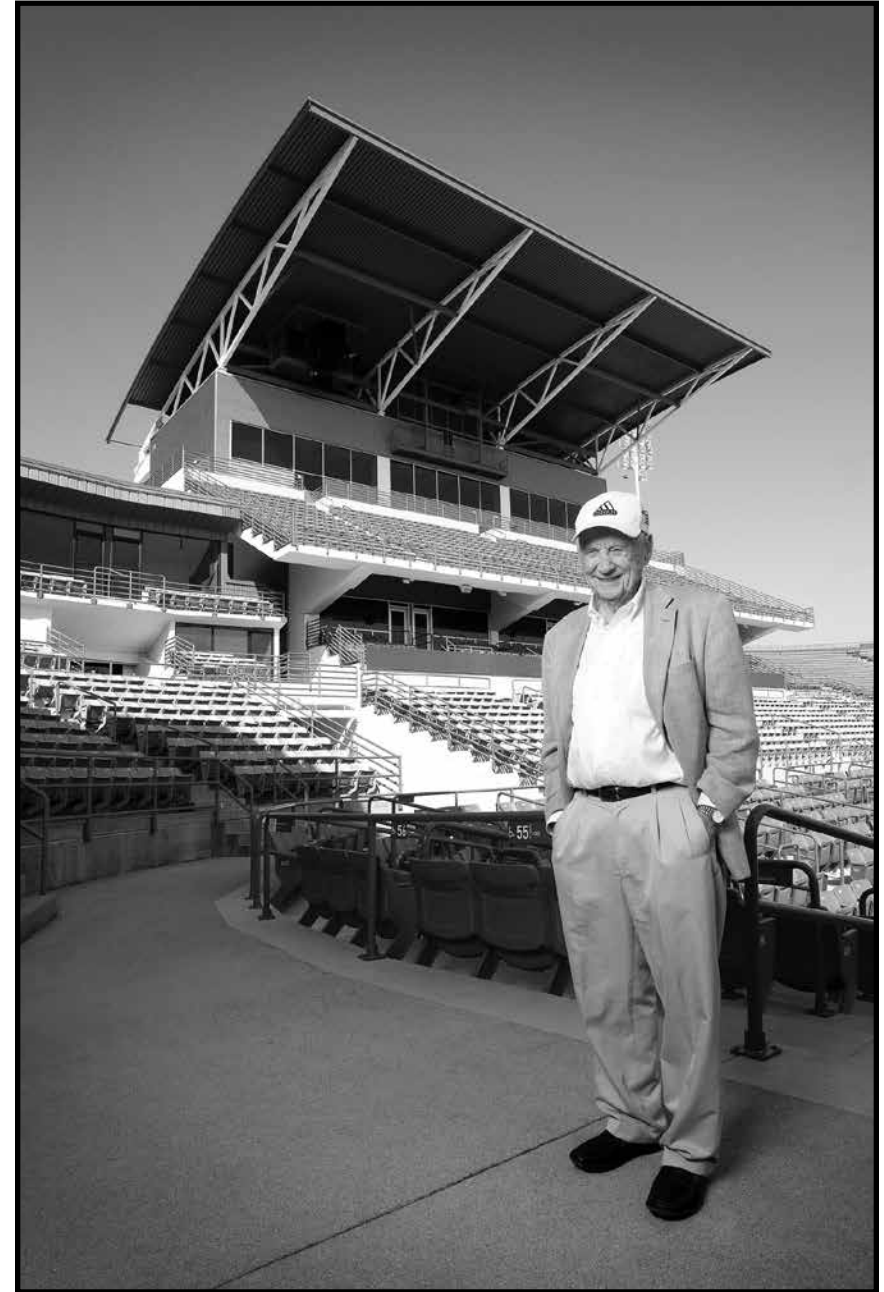

After four days of reviewing more than 110 tournament applications, they emerge with a new calendar for 1990 and a new ATP Tour.

When the calendar is announced, Cincinnati, the tournament that shared a week with Wimbledon for decades, is given a designation at the highest level of the new Tour: it is now a Championship Series, Single Week, event, meaning it would not share its week with any other tournament.

"This is like winning a major league franchise in a very elite, highly selective worldwide league," tournament director Paul Flory tells the Cincinnati Enquirer on January 20. "I think there are several reasons for this, all equally important: We have one of the best tennis facilities in the world at Kings Island; We have demonstrated over the years that we have strong fan and media support; and we are the players' tournament."

Also this year, Cincinnati is given the distinct honor of being named the first "Tennis City of the Year" by the International Tennis Hall of Fame. It is a formal recognition of Cincinnati's role in promoting the advancement of tennis since the 19th century.

Additionally, an economic impact study conducted by the University of Cincinnati shows the tournament contributes $10 million to the regional economy during the week.

Paul Flory serves as tournament director longer than any other individual: 36 years between 1975 and 2011. He's seen above standing in front of the building that now bares his name, the Paul Flory Player Center. Flory, who spent his professional career as an executive with Procter & Gamble, began his association with the tournament in 1965 as the chair of the player housing committee. Later he was in charge of player recruitment (he convinced Ken Rosewall to play in Cincinnati in 1970), and then took the reigns of the tournament in 1975 when the event's future was in doubt.

The tournament joins a new tour at its highest level, the Super 9 era begins, prize money quadruples, more lighting means more night matches, two stadiums are added, the tournament celebrates its 100th birthday, and Cincinnati officially becomes the crown jewel of tennis in the American Midwest.

1990 – Off the court, the tournament joins the new ATP Tour as a Championship Series, Single Week event, the highest designation on the new Tour, and the only tournament in the American Midwest at this level. Cincinnati also greatly improves its facility and increases its prize money dramatically.

On the court, Stefan Edberg marches to his second title in Cincinnati. Along the way, his quarterfinal win over Michael Chang gives him the points he needs to take the world No. 1 ranking away from Ivan Lendl.

In a rematch of the 1989 final, Edberg and Brad Gilbert square off for the title on the final Sunday. Unfortunately for Gilbert, the result is completely different as Edberg wins 6-1, 6-1. It is Cincinnati's shortest men's singles final match in the Open Era, and ties the record for shortest best-of-three final of all-time (in 1946 Clarence D. "Nick" Carter beat George Richards by the same score; 6-1, 6-1). After the 51-minute match, Gilbert is given a microphone to address the crowd and the fans respond by giving him a lengthy ovation. When the cheers subside, Gilbert jokes "that applause took longer than the match." Gilbert then graciously apologizes to the fans for the brevity of his encounter with Edberg.

Off the court, a $4 million expansion adds more than 1,500 seats to the main court, and all seats are improved to be either chairs or bleachers with backs. Eight new luxury skyboxes also are added as are four new suites built inside the north section of the bowl, and a new covered patio lounge atop the North stands.

Those extra seats help attendance exceed 10,000 for a single session for the first time in tournament history. It happens on Wednesday, August 8, during the day session.

The tournament realizes the biggest jump in prize money in its history: the purse is increased from $602,500 to $1.3 million.

Also, Great American Insurance, under the leadership of Carl Lindner, Jr., becomes presenting sponsor, and ESPN takes over coverage of the tournament in place of USA Network.

1991 – The average world ranking of the eight quarterfinalists is 9.6, the lowest of the year at any "major" tournament, defined as the four Grand Slams and the nine "single-week" events on the ATP Tour, Fans queue up to take their seats for an evening session in 2012.

(which is later known as the ATP Masters 1000).

Those reaching the Final Eight are Boris Becker (ranked No. 1), Stefan Edberg (No. 2), Jim Courier (No. 5), eventual champion Guy Forget (No. 7), Pete Sampras (No. 8), Brad Gilbert (No. 14), Andrei Cherkasov (No. 17) and Derrick Rostagno (No. 23).

One of the least heralded of the quarterfinalists is Forget, the No. 6 seed. He beats Becker in the semifinals to reach the men's final and has a 2-1 lead in the third set when he overrules a linesperson to give his opponent an ace and the game, leveling the final set at 2-2. The opponent is Pete Sampras, and Forget wins the match anyway, 2-6, 7-6(4), 6-4, to collect the men's singles title.

Also this year, the tournament stages its first Seniors tournament to showcase the talents of such legends as Rod Laver, Ilie Nastase and Ken Rosewall, among others.

The beginning of the Seniors event marks the beginning of the tournament's involvement with Tennis For City Youth, an organization it develops to provide tennis lessons and equipment to kids who could not otherwise afford them.

The day after the finals, August 12, Cincinnati Post sports columnist Paul Daugherty summed up the tournament this way: "If tennis were baseball, Cincinnati would have the All-Star Game every summer. It's star wars, all week. If you like tennis, and even if you don't, this is the best event in this area every year. Best-run, best-organized, best collection of big-name athletes."

1992 – Pete Sampras and Ivan Lendl make return trips to the final, and it is the 21-year-old Sampras who takes the title with a 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 win over the 32-year-old Lendl. The match occurs just 40 days after Lendl officially becomes a U.S. citizen.

This year marks a changing of the guard in men's tennis, as Jimmy Connors, John McEnroe and others are seemingly in decline. A 39-year-old Connors publicly states "today's tennis lacks color and needs a shot in the arm." In speaking with the Cincinnati Enquirer, Sampras disagrees and counters Connors' argument by mentioning a few players he thinks may prove to be sensational. The players he mentions are Andre Agassi, Michael Chang, and Jim Courier.

Lights and extra seating are added to courts three and four making night matches possible on four courts. Also, the food court is widened to allow more vendors and extra seating, and the southeast section of the tennis complex is black-topped.

1993 – This year sees two of the best semifinal matches ever played in one year in Cincinnati as Michael Chang and Andre Agassi square off in one semifinal, and Stefan Edberg takes on Pete Sampras in the other.

Agassi is ahead 3-0 in the decisive third set of his match against Chang when he notices Chang is beginning to struggle physically. At the changeover Agassi tells Chang: "You'd better quit. You're going to cramp." Chang sits down, towels himself off and answers Agassi: "They'll have to wheel me out of here." Chang rallies, and wins the third set 7-5.

Edberg defeats world No. 1 and top seed Sampras in the other semifinal in a 2-hour, 40-minute marathon. Sampras has 25 aces to Edberg's five, 70 winners to Edberg's 41, and wins 90% of his first serves to Edberg's 69%. Yet, Sampras loses 6-7(3), 7-5, 7-6(5).

In the final, Chang wins the first set 7-5 against the two-time champion Edberg, and then drops the second 0-6, but rallies to take the third set 6-4 and his first of two titles in Cincinnati.

Agassi teams with Petr Korda to collect his only career doubles title. They defeat the Swedish team of Edberg and Henrik Holm in the final. Because of rain, Agassi and Korda must play their semifinal doubles match and the final on the same day.

Edberg's appearance in both the singles and doubles finals marks the 75th time a male player has reached both finals in the same year in Cincinnati, and the last time to date.

The tournament enters yet another new era with the dawn of the "Super 9". The tournament is designated a "Championship Series, Single Week" event on the ATP Tour in 1990 (which meant it is given exclusive possession of the week over all other large men's tournaments, ensuring it greater player fields), and the "Super 9" concept is introduced in 1993 as a way of promoting the Tour's biggest events even more.

Part of the bargain of being a "Super 9" is to run a Challenger event, a tournament for up-and-coming players. The Challenger features a $50,000 purse and is held the week prior to the main draw. Players in the Challenger draw include future main-draw singles champion Patrick Rafter.

Also, 200 seats are added to the main court, the food court is expanded again, and the retail area is enlarged.

1994 – In a repeat of the 1993 final, Michael Chang beats Stefan Edberg for his second Cincinnati title.

Edberg has trouble with his serve all week, and Chang started the final match by winning the first 11 points and breaking Edberg's serve twice. The match takes only 70 minutes and ends with a 6-2, 7-5 win for Chang, who came into the match with a lifetime head-to-head record of 3-11 against Edberg. "He's beat me so many times, and beat me bad," Chang says after the championship match. "He shows no mercy when he plays. Off the court, he's a gentleman, but if he can beat you bad, he'll beat you bad."

Also off the court, seats are added to the north sides of courts three and four, new administrative offices are constructed and the locker room, the player lounge, the media interview room, and media lounge areas are enlarged.

Vince Spadea defeats Jim Grabb to win the Challenger tournament. It is the last year in Cincinnati for the Challenger tournament. It is relocated to Lexington, Kentucky, the following year.

1995 – Two-time defending champion Michael Chang knocks off Patrick Rafter, Jim Courier and Michael Stich to reach his third consecutive final in Cincinnati but bows to top seed and world No. 1 Andre Agassi in one of the hottest years on record for the tournament.

Agassi beats Chang in dominating fashion, 7-5, 6-2. On championship point, Chang hits a lob that sends Agassi to the baseline where he hits a shot between his legs back to Chang. The ball is called out, and Fred Stolle and Tony Trabert, calling the match for ESPN, agree the ball lands two inches outside the line. Nonetheless, Agassi's immediate thought is that the shot could be the "Play of the Day" (or "POD") on CNN, despite it missing the line.

The addition of the Paul Flory Player Center creates the opportunity for a new tradition. After each singles final, the champion shows off the Rookwood Cup to the assembled fans, as Rafael Nadal (above) does after winning the title in 2013.

After the match, Agassi's coach, Brad Gilbert, calls CNN to lobby for Agassi's shot to be the POD and is told his competition is a play made by Angels pitcher Jim Abbott against the Minnesota Twins that day. Reportedly, CNN debates the issue for hours, and at 8 p.m. makes its decision: Agassi's shot in Cincinnati is declared the POD.

Chang's quarterfinal against Courier is a three-hour, three-minute marathon (tied with one other match as the tenth-longest match in tournament history) in which Chang saves two match points in the second-set tiebreaker. On match point, Chang blasts an ace which Courier thinks is out. Courier turns his back, throws down his racket, hat and his wristband, stands silently, and then glares at chair umpire Paulo Pereira. Finally, Courier turns and slowly moves to the net to shake Chang's hand.

Prior to the tournament this year, the Grandstand Court is completely reconstructed. The wooden temporary bleachers are replaced with a concrete bowl with box seats and benches with backs and seating for nearly 5,000 – an increase of approximately 1,000 seats. In addition, seating in the foodcourt is expanded once again.

Prize money is at a record level ($1.8 million), and the Challenger tournament, played prior to the main draw since 1993, is moved to Lexington, Kentucky.

1996 – Seven of the eight players who reach the quarterfinals are in the top 10 in the world, the best quarterfinal line-up of any tournament, including the Grand Slams, in tennis since 1985 (when the ATP Tour began keeping the stat). The average world ranking of the eight quarterfinalists is 5.625, the best in tournament history.

The quarterfinalists, their seeds and rankings are: Pete Sampras (No. 1 seed, No. 1 ranked); Thomas Muster (No. 2 seed, No. 2 ranked); Michael Chang (No. 3 seed, No. 3 ranked); Yevgeny Kafelnikov (No. 4 seed, No. 4 ranked); Goran Ivanisevic (No. 5 seed, No. 6 ranked); Andre Agassi (No. 6 seed, No. 7 ranked); Wayne Ferreira (No. 9 seed, No. 10 ranked); and Thomas Enqvist (No. 10 seed, No. 12 ranked).

Agassi eventually wins the title, but only after beating Kafelnikov, Muster and Chang in the final three rounds. In his post-championship-match remarks, Agassi says "This meant a lot more to me than just winning a second title here. It proves to me that I am back, that I can win big matches."

This year marks the final appearance for Stefan Edberg, and he reaches the second round before falling to qualifier Cristiano Caratti. It is his 13th consecutive appearance in Cincinnati and although many have since been broken or surpassed, he departs as the owner or co-owner of the following Open Era Cincinnati tournament records: most semifinal appearances (8; tied at the time with Jimmy Connors), most quarterfinal appearances (11), most times seeded (12), most matches played (56), and most singles finals appearances (6). As a tribute, "Stefan Edberg Night" is held with an on-court ceremony where a portrait of the great champion is presented to him.

This also is the first year Great American Insurance is title sponsor, following the sale of Thriftway to Winn Dixie.

1997 – When the tournament field is announced in June, it includes all of the top 10 players in the world, the best field of any tournament all year, including the Australian Open, the French Open and Wimbledon.

Pete Sampras claims his second of three Cincinnati titles, beating crowd favorite Thomas Muster of Austria in the final. Muster battled his way to the final, never winning in straight sets all week.

In the semifinals, Sampras defeats No. 14 seed Albert Costa, while Muster defeats Michael Chang to deny Chang a fifth consecutive singles final appearance in Cincinnati.

Prize money increases to $2.3 million, and a third permanent stadium (Court 3) is added to the tennis complex, making it the only facility outside the Grand Slams with three permanent stadiums. The main stadium is renamed "Center Court" as it now sits in the center of a row of three stadium courts.

1998 – Patrick Rafter defeats Pete Sampras in a wild final that ends in a completely different fashion than it begins. Down 5-1 in the first set, Rafter tosses his racket to ball boy Chad Little and signals him to play. "I thought the crowd wasn't really getting their money's worth," Rafter says afterward.

Rafter loses the first set 1-6 but takes the second set in a tiebreak. The match ends on an ace by Rafter which is initially called out by a linesperson but is then immediately overruled by chair umpire Lars Graff.

Sampras stares down Graff and remains at the baseline for several minutes before moving to the net to shake Rafter's hand. He then informs Graff of his displeasure with the overrule. Not only is Sampras angry at the call and losing the title, he also is irked that fans backed the Australian during the match. In the post-match awards ceremony, Sampras takes the microphone and asks the crowd: "We ARE in the United States, aren't we?"

Rafter's win is his second consecutive Mercedes Super 9 title (Canada and Cincinnati) in just 14 days in two different cities. He plays 10 matches, against opponents with a combined average ranking of just 28.6 (38.4 in Canada and 18.8 in Cincinnati).

Daniel Nestor pairs with Mark Knowles to take the doubles title.

1999 – The tournament celebrates its 100th Anniversary by highlighting all the changes that have taken place during that time.

The play on the courts this year is historic as well. For the first time in tournament history, every match in the quarterfinals, semifinals and final contains at least one current or former world No. 1-ranked player. Three of the players who reach the semifinals have been ranked No. 1 (Andre Agassi, Yevgeny Kafelnikov and Pat Rafter), and one semifinalist, Pete Sampras, is the current No. 1.

Facility changes also have meant space for enhanced player-fan interactions, including in this one with Juan Martin del Potro and fans in 2017.

Sampras reflects on the difficulty of winning in Cincinnati. "In some ways this is – I don't want to say tougher to win (than a Grand Slam), but certainly you don't have many breaks," he says. "You don't have a day off. You can have an easy match at a Slam with a fluke of the draw, but not here."

Sampras defeats Agassi in the semifinals – the only one of their 34 career meetings to happen in Cincinnati. Rafter defeats Kafelnikov in the semifinals to set up a Sampras / Rafter final for a second consecutive year.

The first set goes to a tiebreak. Leading 3-2, Sampras hits a 128 mph serve that punches a hole through Rafter's racket strings. It doesn't get any better for Rafter after that. Sampras wins the tiebreak and the match 7-6(7), 6-3 to collect his third Cincinnati singles title and his 60th career ATP Tour singles title.

Sampras becomes the only player in the Open Era to win two Cincinnati singles titles without dropping a set either time. The championship win is also the 22nd straight win for Sampras of the summer. His last loss was in the second round at the French Open in May, and he doesn't lose a match until the week after Cincinnati.

In doubles, Jonas Bjorkman and Byron Black defeat future Hall of Famers Todd Woodbridge and Mark Woodforde to win the doubles championship.

The 21st Century

The tournament enters its third century, the Super

9 era ends and Tennis Masters Series begins, player fields benefit from mandatory participation, the women return, a top sponsor begins what will become a relationship of unprecedented length, and the courts turn purple.

2000 – The tournament enters its third century of existence and changes its name for a fifth time. The new name is Tennis Masters Series Cincinnati.

Unlike the name changes in 1969 and 1979, the only change in 2000 is the name. (In 1969 the week changed as well as the name, and in 1979 the week, surface and location changed along with the name.)

The tournament is now mandatory for all players ranked high enough to enter, the draw returns to its pre-1990s level of 64, first-round byes are eliminated, CBS signs on to broadcast the finals and prize money increases to $2.95 million.

Also new this year: purple courts. The paint job is instituted by all ATP Masters Series events as a way to visually link the tournaments together on television. But the move catches on beyond the Masters Series, and it isn't long before purple courts are seen all around the world.

In keeping with the heightened "international" flavor of the event, 2000 marks the first time in tournament history that only one American is in the quarterfinals, and the first time there are no Americans in the semifinals.

Thomas Enqvist of Sweden takes the singles title and wins the biggest paycheck of his career: $400,000. He also becomes the first Cincinnati men's singles champion ranked outside the top 10 in 21 years. Enqvist is ranked No. 13 but the win boosts him seven spots to No. 6 on the day after the final.

Center Court in 2018, featuring the new South Building.

Tim Henman is the runner-up, the first player from Great Britain to reach a Cincinnati final since 1977 (Mark Cox). To reach the final, Henman stages a massive upset, defeating three-time champion and world No. 2 Pete Sampras in the round of 16. After the match, Henman is immediately asked to name the best moment of his career. "It was about 180 seconds ago," he says. Henman is ranked No. 16, but the day after the final his efforts cause his ranking to rise to No. 11.

Off the court, an economic impact study by the University of Cincinnati shows the tournament contributes $23.3 million to the regional economy during its one-week run.

2001 – Gustavo Kuerten becomes the 35th No. 1 seed and the first South American in 41 years to win the title in Cincinnati with a 6-1, 6-3 victory over Australian Patrick Rafter.

It is Rafter's third consecutive appearance in the Cincinnati finals (he was unable to play Cincinnati in 2000). Rafter is only 28, but he plays his final professional match in November of that year.

Kuerten plays six matches en route to the title, defeating four seeds and three top 10 players along the way. His average opponent ranking for the week is 13.83, a tournament record that would stand until 2015 when Roger Federer wins the title with an average opponent ranking of just 12.60.

Also this week, Boris Becker comes out of retirement to play his first professional match since 1999. He pairs with Goran Ivanisevic in doubles but they fall in the first round to top seeds Todd Woodbridge and Jonas Bjorkman.

Torrential rain during the night session on Saturday, August 11, causes the cancellation of matches and flooding throughout the tennis facility. The water is deep enough on Center Court that ball kids were seen swimming on it. It also forces a Sunday morning resumption of the partially completed semifinal match between Tim Henman and Kuerten. Kuerten wins the first set 6-2, but Henman is leading 5-1 in the second when the powerful storm hits the area.

After the storm, the match is restarted, but is halted again when light rain starts falling. After waiting until nearly midnight for the rain to clear, the decision is made to postpone the match until the morning at 11:30 a.m. The doubles semifinal between Martin Damm & David Prinosil and Jeff Tarango & Nicolas Lapentti is never started. It is postponed until Sunday at 11:30 a.m., and played on the Grandstand Court.

2002 – The tournament gets its sixth name and its third title sponsor as the Western & Southern Financial Group, under the leadership of CEO John Barrett, sponsors the event and changes the name to the Western & Southern Financial Group Masters.

On the court, former world No. 1 Carlos Moya returns to form and wins the biggest hardcourt title of his career. Moya, ranked No. 17 and seeded No. 16, beats qualifier Cyril Saulnier, Sjeng Schalken, Michael Chang, Rainer Schuettler, No. 8 seed Juan Carlos Ferrero, and world No. 1 Lleyton Hewitt to take the title and become the first Spaniard in the tournament's 104-year history to etch his name on the champion's list. The following Monday, Moya is ranked back in the top 10.

This is the first year in tournament history that all of the top 10 ranked players in the world play in the tournament. There were many years when all of the top 10 entered, but injuries and other issues kept them all from playing, until this year.

The wild card and unseeded team of Todd Martin and James Blake defeat No. 3 seeds Mahesh Bhupathi and Max Mirnyi to win the doubles title.

2003 – After years of speculation, the tournament purchases the tennis complex and the golf course surrounding it, ensuring its continued operation in the area where it started 105 years earlier. The deal is consummated on December 31, 2002, after years of negotiations.

Cincinnati also is successful in getting back on the WTA Tour. With the help of the sports marketing firm of Octagon, a tournament is purchased from Bol, Croatia, and moved to Cincinnati. Play will begin with that tournament in 2004.

Andy Roddick wins the singles title in an epic three-set final with countryman Mardy Fish. Tennis Week calls it "...a 4-6, 7-6 (3), 7-6 (4) masterpiece...." The match is Cincinnati's first all-American final since 1996, and the second-longest three-set final in tournament history, tying the 1960 final in terms of total games (36).

The longest three-set final was in 1970, when Ken Rosewall beat Cliff Richey, 7-9, 9-7, 8-6. That final was played just two weeks before the tiebreak was used for the first time in major competition.

While Roddick is marching to his first Cincinnati title, Roger Federer is making his third appearance in Cincinnati where he as yet to win a match. He meets his first round opponent, Australian Scott Draper, on Tuesday, August 12, and promptly loses the first set, raising concerns that Federer soon will be 0-3 in Cincinnati. But Federer rallies, overcomes a total of seven match points and wins a third-set tiebreak 12-10 to earn his first victory in Cincinnati. Afterward

Federer says "sometimes you can turn it around, sometimes you can't." Federer turns it around in Cincinnati after that two-hour, two-minute match. He goes 47-8 in Cincinnati and wins a record seven men's singles titles.

2004 – The big story going into the 2004 tournament is the return of women's tennis to the Queen City for the first time since 1988. The big story after the tournament is the return of both Andre Agassi and Lindsay Davenport from the assumed precipice of retirement.

Agassi turns in one of the best weeks of his career, defeating six opponents with an average world ranking of 18.16. The final result is an astounding 17th Masters Series title and third Cincinnati singles title for Agassi, putting him on a list of three-time champions that includes Hall of Famers William "Bill" Talbert, Beals Wright and Pete Sampras. (Only three players – Bobby Riggs, George Lott and Mats Wilander – had won four singles titles in Cincinnati at that time.) At age 34, Agassi also becomes the second-oldest champion in tournament history at the time behind Ken Rosewall, the champion at age 35 in 1970. Novak Djokovic will become the oldest in 2023 when he wins the title at age 36.

In the women's tournament, which is played a week after the men's event, Davenport drops only one set en route to her fourth straight title of the summer – the most consecutive titles of any player in 2004. In the final, she defeats the No. 9 player in the world – Vera Zvonareva – in straight sets, and in 67 minutes.

Ironically, just before the start of the tournament, the Cincinnati Enquirer prints a story detailing the 25 greatest men's matches in the tournament's 25 years in Mason. Before the end of the men's week, Agassi and Andy Roddick square off in a semifinal match that may have made them all pale in comparison.

The two lions of American tennis clash for what British television commentator John Barrett calls "two hours and six minutes of pure magic," and "a match which will we all remember for as long as we live." Roddick, the 21-year-old No. 2 seed, fires 30 aces in the Saturday, August 7, night match, but it is not enough as Agassi gets the win, 7-5, 6-7(2), 7-6(6).

After the match, Agassi says: "I wanted to make sure the best players in the world have to play their best tennis to beat me. I felt like I did that tonight."

Roddick says "I'm going to be amazed if I can walk up stairs fast at 34, much less play that level of tennis."

Miraculously, Agassi has enough energy left over to dispose of 23-year-old Lleyton Hewitt the next day in the 1 p.m. final. It is Hewitt's second appearance in a Cincinnati final, and his sixth appearance in an ATP Masters Series final. The loss gives him a 2-4 record in Masters Series finals.

2005 – The women's field is upgraded considerably, and the men's field is as strong as ever. But two Swiss players, Patty Schnyder and Roger Federer, make winning the titles look effortless.

Schnyder slices through a women's field that includes four top-25 players: herself, Daniela Hantuchova, Jelena Jankovic, and Vera Zvonareva. She defeats unseeded Akiko Morigami in the final, 6-4, 6-0.

On the men's side, Federer enters the tournament a year after becoming only the third top seed to lose his first match in Cincinnati tournament history. He's 1-4 lifetime in Cincinnati, and seemingly has a tough draw, starting with American James Blake in the first round. He defeats Blake in straight sets, but things get more difficult for Federer thereafter.

For the second time in tournament history, every match in the quarterfinals, semifinals and final contains at least one current or former world No. 1-ranked player. Two semifinalists have been ranked No. 1 (Lleyton Hewitt and Andy Roddick) and one semifinalist, Federer, is the current No. 1.

Federer knocks off wild card Robby Ginepri in the semifinals and Roddick defeats Hewitt to set up a Roddick/Federer final, the eleventh meeting of the two players. Federer holds a commanding 9-1 head-to-head edge on Roddick, and the match also is a rematch of the past two Wimbledon finals.

Federer easily handles Roddick, and rolls to a 6-3, 7-5 win to collect his first Cincinnati men's singles title.

2006 – Serena Williams breaks her self-imposed exile from tennis, and Andy Roddick breaks his major-title drought.

When Williams comes to Cincinnati, she hasn't played tennis since suffering an injury at the Australian Open in January. Unfortunately, she draws the tournament's No. 2 seed, Ana Myskina, as a first-round opponent. Williams rolls through Myskina and two other players en route to the semifinals where she meets 2004 singles finalist Vera Zvonareva.

The Russian plays a near-flawless match to take out Williams, and has enough gas in the tank to win the title the next day.

Roger Federer is the odds-on favorite to repeat as champion, but up-and-coming Brit Andy Murray (who is unseeded and ranked No. 21 in the world) beats the Swiss star in the second round. That ends a

The Rookwood Cup, as seen when the tournament was named the Western & Southern Open. It pays homage to the player prizes awarded at the first "Cincinnati Open" in 1899.

"dream final" match-up of Federer and Rafael Nadal, the top two players in the world, and Nadal is halted in the quarters by fellow Spaniard and former world No. 1 Juan Carlos Ferrero.

Ferrero eventually reaches the final, but falls to a resurgent Roddick, 6-3, 6-4. After he wins championship point in the final, Roddick drops to the surface of Center Court, kisses it, and then races around the entire court slapping the hands of the fans, a victory lap unlike anyone has seen in Cincinnati. "I get energized to play here," Roddick says afterward. When asked about other tournaments in cities such as London, Rome, Paris and Monte Carlo, Roddick makes his affection for Cincinnati exceedingly clear. "You can take those places. You ask me where I want to play, I'd say Cincy to be honest with you." To date, Roddick is the last American to win the men's singles title in Cincinnati.

2007 – Roger Federer beats James Blake in the final and collects his second Cincinnati title, his 14th ATP Masters Series title and his 50th career title. After the match Blake says "A lot of people say at times he looks beatable. Then he goes out and shows that he's not beatable."

Federer's toughest match of the week comes on Saturday in the semifinals when he's tested by two-time Cincinnati finalist and former World No. 1 Lleyton Hewitt. Hewitt came into the match with a 10-match losing streak against Federer, but despite an all-out, three-set effort, the streak stretches to 11 as Federer wins 6-3, 6-7(7), 7-6(1).

In women's singles, world No. 8 Anna Chakvetadze of Russia is the top seed and takes the women's crown over Akiko Morigami of Japan. Chakvetadze becomes the youngest women's singles champion in Cincinnati in the Open Era (age 20 years and four months), a distinction she holds until 2023 when 19-year-old Coco Gauff wins the women's singles title. It is just the fifth title of Chakvetadze's career to that point. In September she reaches a career-high ranking of No. 5, but injuries and illness cause her to retire from the sport in 2013.

2008 – On Final Sunday, August 3, Andy Murray defeats third-seeded Novak Djokovic in two tiebreak sets to become the first Brit to win Cincinnati's men's singles title and the first Brit since Virginia Wade in 1971 to win a singles title in Cincinnati.

En route to the final, Djokovic defeats Rafael Nadal in the semifinals. Had Nadal won that match, he would have earned enough points to take the world No. 1 ranking away from Roger Federer on the Monday following the tournament (August 4). With the loss, Nadal has to wait until August 18 to get the top ranking.

Nadia Petrova rolls to the women's singles title with a 6-2, 6-1 win over Nathalie Dechy to become the third straight Russian to claim the women's crown. She also becomes the first woman to win both the singles and the doubles titles in Cincinnati in the same year since Margaret Court in 1972, and the first player (male or female) to accomplish that feat since John McEnroe in 1981.

Off the court, the tournament is partially acquired by the United States Tennis Association, makes plans for an elevated women's event, and initiates plans for new enhancements to its facility.

2009 – It's a new era in Cincinnati in 2009: both the men and women compete in 56-draws in singles, the women's event becomes a Premier 5 Event on the WTA Tour, and total prize money tops $5 million for the first time ever.

In men's singles, the top four seeds advance to the semifinals for the first time in ten years, but the bigger story is Roger Federer, who wins his third title in Cincinnati, tying him with Andre Agassi and Pete Sampras for second most in the Open Era. In the men's singles final, he defeats Novak Djokovic, who is playing in his second consecutive final, in two sets.

Federer, ranked No. 1, also has to defeat the world's second-ranked player in the semifinals (Andy Murray) en route to the title. It is the first meeting of a men's No. 1 and a men's No. 2 in tournament history.

Jelena Jankovic, ranked No. 5 in the world, and a former world No. 1, is seeded No. 5 in the tournament. She upsets world No. 1 Dina Safina 6-4, 6-2 in the women's singles championship match to take her only Cincinnati singles title. It also is her first win over a player ranked No. 1 in the world.

To reach that final, Jankovic had to fight through an epic two-hour, 46-minute semifinal match the night before against fourth-seeded and fourth-ranked Elena Dementieva, while Safina dispatched her semifinal opponent, Flavia Pennetta, in just 56 minutes the previous day.

A new owner takes over, the men and women return to playing in the same week, and the tournament's facility expands as never before as ribbons are cut on new courts, new amenities and two new buildings – one of which includes a first for professional tennis.

2010 – The tournament announces the first of a three-phase construction project that begins with a $10 million facility for fans, players, sponsors and media. The new facility is on the west side of Center Court and is named the Paul Flory Player Center. It features a dedicated women's locker room, an expanded player lounge, training facilities, and player dining, six new luxury suites for fans, and an expanded media center.

Another change this year comes in the form of a new trophy. Champions didn't earn trophies by winning in Cincinnati in the first year (1899), but the tournament did provide the winners with mementos from Cincinnati's world-famous Rookwood Pottery.

Rookwood artist Roy Robinson crafts the tournament's 12-pound perpetual trophy featuring tennis balls clinging to acanthus leaves and bearing the inscription honoring "the oldest tournament in the United States still played in its original city."

Kim Clijsters becomes the first player to hoist the new trophy when she improves on her quarterfinal finish of 2009 to take the title over Maria Sharapova. Reportedly, she couldn't take her eyes off "the work of art."

On the men's side, Roger Federer becomes the first player since Mats Wilander in 1988 to win four titles in Cincinnati. Federer joins Wilander, Bobby Riggs and George Lott as the only players to win four singles titles since the event began in 1899.

2011 – The tournament returns to a combined event for the first time since 1973, and new courts are added as well other amenities for fans.

Andy Murray of Great Britain marks the occasion by winning his second Cincinnati title when Novak Djokovic retires in the final (the first retirement in a men's final in Cincinnati since 1952). The average ranking of the players to reach the men's quarterfinals ties the tournament record of 5.63, the strongest since 1996.

The best match of the week may have come in the round of 16 when No. 2 seed Rafael Nadal of Spain defeats countryman (and fellow lefty) Fernando Verdasco, an unseeded player ranked No. 21 in the world. Nadal survives a 3 hour, 38 minute marathon against Verdasco to take the win 7-6(5) 6-7(4) 7-6(9) and punch his ticket to the quarterfinals. It is the longest match (in terms of time) in Cincinnati men's history since 1991 (the year the stat began to be kept), a record it holds until the men's singles final in 2023.

In the women's final, No. 4 seed Maria Sharapova defeats the No. 13 seed Jelena Jankovic to capture her first title in the Queen City. The women's No. 1 seed, Marion Bartoli, retires in her first match (against Jamea Jackson), becoming the first women's No. 1 to lose her first match in tournament history.

Off the court, the tournament adds six new courts, including a new 4,000-seat television court, a new entrance, and a new ticket office.

2012 – For the first time in tournament history, the top two ranked men's players in the world square off on Final Sunday. Top-ranked Roger Federer marks the occasion by becoming the first male player in tournament history to win five titles when he bests four-time finalist and world No. 2 Novak Djokovic.

Li Na tames a tough field to become the first player from China to win a title in Cincinnati. She comes back from losing the first set in the final to defeat fifth-seeded Angelique Kerber of Germany.

Prior to the start of the tournament an economic impact study conducted by the University of Cincinnati shows the tournament has an economic impact of $62.5 million to the region. That figure is calculated by counting money spent as a consequence of the tournament, but the value of the tournament extends beyond dollars and cents. "It's become one of our major recruitment tools for bringing companies to town," says David Nichols, the mayor of the City of Mason. "It's our Kentucky Derby."

2013 – In a year of firsts, lasts and "onlys," Rafael Nadal reaches his first final in Cincinnati, facing Roger Federer, Grigor Dimitrov, Tommy Haas and Tomas Berdych before dispatching John Isner (in his only Cincinnati final) to take the title.

Center Court (above) and a portion of the tournament grounds in 2022 (below).

The Nadal-Federer quarterfinal match up is the 31st of their 40 career battles, and the only one to be played in the American summer schedule. Their only other matches on American soil were in Miami and Indian Wells.

World No. 1 Serena Williams also reaches her first Cincinnati final, facing world No. 2 Victoria Azarenka. It is the first meeting between the WTA's two top-ranked players in Cincinnati. Williams falls in a third-set tiebreaker to Azarenka, the only time in 10 matches while ranked No. 1 she loses to a player ranked No. 2.

Marion Bartoli, just 40 days after winning the Wimbledon singles title, comes to Cincinnati and announces her immediate retirement from tennis, citing injuries sustained over her career. She falls to Simona Halep in her first match of the tournament, her final professional match.

Tournament Director Vince Cicero tells the Cincinnati Enquirer on August 19 his assessment of the tournament. "All of the feedback I got this week from players, the ATP, the WTA, the fans that are here within the marketplace, the out-of-town fans that have come from 50 states and 20 countries – they're talking about what a great experience this is, and they're looking ahead to next year. Everything occurring now was laid out long ago by Paul (Flory). Now it's coming to fruition."

2014 – Two certain first-ballot Hall of Famers collect the Cincinnati singles titles: one wins a first title and the other wins an unprecedented sixth title.

World No. 3 and second-seeded Roger Federer claims his sixth men's singles title in Cincinnati. He defeats 2008 and 2011 champion Andy Murray in the quarterfinals and No. 5 seed Milos Raonic in the semifinals before meeting and defeating No. 6 seed David Ferrer in the final.

Serena Williams goes one step better than the previous year by claiming her first women's singles title in the Queen City, and she has to do it in one of the toughest fields ever assembled in Cincinnati. Every match in the women's singles quarterfinals, semifinals and the final contain at least one current or former world No. 1, all four semifinalists are former or current No. 1s, and the final is a match up between the world No. 1 and a former world No. 1.

Williams defeats 2009 champion Jelena Jankovic in the quarterfinals, Caroline Wozniacki in the semifinals, and Ana Ivanovic in the final to collect the title.

Bob & Mike Bryan reach their eighth men's doubles final in Cincinnati and win a team-record fifth title with a 6-3, 6-2 win over Vasek Pospisil and Jack Sock.

In women's doubles, Raquel Kops-Jones and Abigail Spears win their first Cincinnati title.

2015 – For the first time since 1938, both the men's and women's singles champions are repeats from the previous year. Roger Federer claims his seventh men's singles title in Cincinnati, while Serena Williams takes her second title.

Federer, the No. 2 seed and the No. 3-ranked player in the world, defeats world No. 1 and five-time Cincinnati singles finalist Novak Djokovic in the men's final. Top-ranked and top-seeded Williams takes out No. 3 seed Simona Halep in the women's final.

Daniel Nestor wins his fifth doubles title in Cincinnati by pairing with Edouard Roger-Vasselin, whose father, Christophe, was a singles quarterfinalist in Cincinnati in 1980. Hao-Ching Chan and Yung-Jan/Latisha Chan win the women's doubles title.

2016 – The Olympics in Rio are scheduled immediately before the Cincinnati tournament, and 111 players are scheduled to come directly to Mason from Rio. But injuries force many of those players to sit out, including Roger Federer, Serena Williams and Novak Djokovic. Top-seeded Williams withdraws after the tournament draw is made, meaning the tournament is played without a No. 1 women's seed. Her place in the draw is filled by lucky loser Misaki Doi of Japan.

Karolina Pliskova, the No. 15 seed, becomes the first former qualifier to win Cincinnati's women's singles title. She defeats No. 2 seed Angelique Kerber in the singles final, but had Kerber won the title she would have become the No. 1 player in the world the following day. Both players would go on to be ranked No. 1 in the world: Kerber the following month, and Pliskova on July 17, 2017.

In men's singles, Marin Cilic bests two-time champ and No. 1 seed Andy Murray in the final to take the men's crown and his first ATP Masters Series title.

Both Kerber and Murray arrive in Cincinnati with medals from the Rio Olympics in singles competition

2017 – Grigor Dimitrov doesn't drop a set en route to the biggest title of his career to date, while reigning Wimbledon champion Garbiñe Muguruza cuts through a stacked women's field to take the title. Dimitrov takes his first ATP Masters 1000 title over rising star Nick Kyrgios, while Muguruza beats world No. 2 Simona Halep 6-1, 6-0. It is the most lop-sided women's final in Cincinnati since 1952.

For the second consecutive year, a player enters the women's final with the opportunity to be the world No. 1 at week's end. Halep is that player and for the second consecutive year the finalist in the Cincinnati women's final is denied the No. 1 ranking.

When the tournament begins on August 14, top-seed and world No. 2 Rafael Nadal comes to Cincinnati knowing he has the points necessary to retake the world No. 1 ranking on August 21. Nadal reaches the quarterfinals before falling to Kyrgios.

2018 – In his sixth singles final in Cincinnati, Novak Djokovic defeats Roger Federer to win the title, becoming the first singles player in ATP Tour history to win all nine Masters 1000s in his career, completing "The Golden Masters." It is his 28th career Masters 1000 title.

The women's field contains seven current or former world No. 1 players, and an eighth who would become No. 1 within a few months. Kiki Bertens defeats world No. 1 Simona Halep in the final to win her sixth career WTA title, and her first on hardcourt. She becomes the first unseeded player to win in Cincinnati since 2006.

The new $25 million South Building is unveiled featuring the world's first indoor air-conditioned box seats at an outdoor tennis tournament.

2019 – Both singles champions win the biggest titles of their careers to date, and the women's field includes the most former or current world No. 1s in Cincinnati tournament history: 10. Both the women's field and the men's field also include five former Cincinnati singles champions.

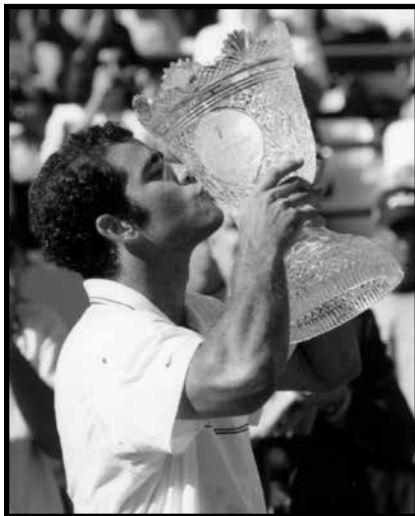

American Madison Keys defeats three former world No. 1 players to reach the final (Garbiñe Muguruza in the first round, Simona Halep in the round of 16, and Venus Williams in the quarterfinals) and then rallies from being down a break in the first set to win the title over 34-year-old Svetlana Kuznetsova, herself a former World No. 3.

Daniil Medvedev, the No. 9 seed and world No. 8, dominates his early-round opponents to reach the semifinals where he fires 16 aces in his defeat of defending champion Novak Djokovic. In the final, he defeats No. 16 seed David Goffin 7-6(3), 6-4 to earn the first Masters 1000 title of this career.

At 198,044, attendance is the highest since 2015, but attendance will take a catastrophic plunge the next year.

A global pandemic forces a move that hasn't been made in exactly 100 years, the tournament makes a triumphant return to its home, Cincinnati becomes the first combined event with electronic line-calling, a singles final is played indoors for the first time, an Opening Day is held in a 14th decade, another new owner takes the reins, and one of most storied and historic events in tennis prepares to expand to a two-week format.

2020 – On August 20, the tournament hosts its annual opening day, this time in a 14th decade of its existence, and, unfortunately, in a city other than Cincinnati. The COVID-19 pandemic forces the tournament to be held without fans in New York City at the USTA's Billie Jean King National Tennis Center. It becomes the first ATP Masters 1000 and WTA 1000 tournament to be held since the pandemic suspends play in March 2020.

It is the fifth time the tournament is played outside of Cincinnati, but the last time it was held elsewhere was in 1920, exactly 100 years earlier.

The decision to move the tournament to New York is made after examining multiple scenarios with the USTA, ATP Tour, WTA Tour, a team of medical advisors, as well as government officials to ensure the event would be safe for players and tournament personnel. Playing the event in New York allowed it to be held in succession with the US Open at a single venue, a decision which is deemed to pose the lowest risk to the players and all others involved. The Cincinnati tournament utilizes the Grandstand Court at the National Tennis Center as its primary show court, with match play occurring on other outside courts. In announcing the move, the tournament also pronounced its intention to play the 2021 event at its traditional home in Mason.

The tournament includes other firsts as well: it's the first combined event to exclusively use electronic line calling (instead of linespeople), it's the first time rain causes the men's final to be played indoors, and it's the first time since 1923 the event is halted for a reason unrelated to the weather: at the behest of the players, play is postponed during the semifinals for a day in recognition of racial injustice.

Playing without fans, Novak Djokovic snags his second Cincinnati singles title, defeating Milos Raonic in the final.

Victoria Azarenka, the 2013 Cincinnati singles champion, picks up her second Cincinnati title, lifting the trophy in a walkover over an injured Naomi Osaka. Azarenka is unseeded and ranked No. 59, but the championship win boosts her ranking 27 spots to No. 32, the biggest jump by any Cincinnati women's singles champion in the Open Era.

2021 – After a year's absence, the tournament returns to Mason to large and enthusiastic crowds.

Four former Cincinnati champions enter the men's field, and the top four seeds all make the semifinal for the first time since 2009. The No. 3 seed, Alexander Zverev, fresh off a Gold Medal run at the Tokyo Olympics, makes his seventh consecutive appearance in Cincinnati, a place where he'd never won a main draw match. But Zverev runs through the field, facing three seeds and dropping only one set en route to the title over fourth-seeded Andrey Rublev.

Defending men's singles champion Novak Djokovic is still recovering from injuries and is unable to play in Mason.

The women's singles field also includes four former champions. Ashleigh Barty makes her fourth appearance in Cincinnati, taking the No. 1 seed in a field that also includes seven current or former world No. 1-ranked players. Barty plays five matches without losing a set and lifts the Rookwood Cup on Final Sunday after defeating wild card Jil Teichmann in straight sets. Teichmann is the third consecutive wild card to reach the Cincinnati women's final.

2022 – The tournament begins its emergence from the depths of a global pandemic, while two players, with rankings historically lower than their past results, announce to the world they are on their way back to the highest levels of tennis.

Borna Coric, who was ranked as high as No. 12 before an injury in 2021 took him from that perch, enters the tournament with a protected ranking of No. 27 (and an actual ranking of No. 152). After dismissing a qualifier in the first round, Coric defeats five straight seeded players, including a former No. 1-ranked player and former Cincinnati champion, Rafael Nadal. He defeats fourth-seeded and seventh-ranked Stefanos Tsitsipas in the final to take the title.

Coric's five opponents have an average ranking of 13.67, which is second only to Roger Federer's average opponent ranking of 12.60 in 2015.

It is Coric's first ATP Masters 1000 title, and he becomes only the second unseeded player in Cincinnati history to win the men's singles title. Miguel Olvera was unseeded and took the men's singles title in 1960, a record that stood for 62 years before Coric's victory.

The day after the final, Coric's ranking jumps 29 spots to No. 123, the biggest jump by any men's singles champion in Cincinnati in the Open Era.

Caroline Garcia, a two-time French Open doubles champion who was ranked No. 4 in 2018, enters the tournament as a qualifier.

Garcia plays two rounds in the preliminary rounds to qualify for the main draw. When the main draw begins she's ranked No. 35 and she wins six more matches, knocking off three seeded players – all three ranked in the top 10 in the world – to take the women's singles title. She becomes the first player, male or female, to win the singles championship in Cincinnati as a qualifier, and the sixth unseeded player to win the women's singles championship since seeding began in 1927.

Prior to the start of the tournament, two historic announcements are made concerning the future of the Cincinnati event.

The ATP Tour announces five of the nine ATP Masters 1000 series events – Madrid, Rome, Shanghai, Canada and Cincinnati – will join Indian Wells and Miami as two-week events with 96-draws in singles.

For Cincinnati, this change will happen in 2025, allowing time for expansion of the facility. The 96-draw isn't new for Cincinnati (it had the same format in 1969), but this announcement means the tournament will be scheduled over two weeks for the first time in its long and storied history.

The other announcement is from the United States Tennis Association, which decides to sell its interest in the Cincinnati event. Prospective buyers are sought, with Beemok Sports, under the direction of Ben Navarro of Charleston, South Carolina, eventually announced as the new owner. Navarro is a businessman and philanthropist who also owns the WTA event on Daniel Island in Charleston.

Todd Martin, a former player who won the Cincinnati doubles title in 2002 with James Blake and reached the singles quarterfinals in 2000, is named tournament director. Martin also is a former Ohioan, having lived in Hudson, Ohio, until age 10.

2023 – This year is arguably one of the most dramatic in its storied history due to events both on and off the court.

On the men's side, five matches exceed three hours in length, a tournament record, including the men's final, which becomes the longest match in tournament history in terms of time. Novak Djokovic and Carlos Alcaraz square off in the men's final, which is a rematch of their Wimbledon final played just five weeks earlier. The result is the longest-ever ATP Masters 1000 best-of-three-sets final (3 hours, 49 minutes) and the longest match in Cincinnati tournament history since record keeping began in 1991.

World No. 2 Djokovic saves a match point to defeat No. 1 Alcaraz, 5-7, 7-6(7), 7-6(4), to win his third Cincinnati title (2018, 2020). Following the match, former Cincinnati champion Andy Roddick is asked on a live Tennis Channel broadcast if he thinks the Cincinnati men's final is the best three-set final ever. "I don't know the answer to that question," Roddick says, "but I don't think it's crazy that you ask it."

The Djokovic-Alcaraz final is only the second time the tournament's championship match featured the world's top two players (No. 1 Roger Federer defeated No. 2 Djokovic in 2012). It is Djokovic's record-tying eighth final in Cincinnati and at age 36 he becomes the tournament's oldest winner of all time.

His counterpart on the women's side is in many ways the polar opposite: she plays in her first Cincinnati final and becomes the youngest women's singles champion in the Open Era. Their age differential, 17 years, is the biggest between men's and women's champions in the same year in tournament history.

At 19-years-old, Coco Gauff wins the biggest title of her career to date when she defeats Karolina Muchova 6-3, 6-4 to become the only teen to win the Cincinnati final in the Open Era. It is Gauff's fifth career title and her second in three weeks. The following day, Muchova makes her Top 10 debut on her 27th birthday after reaching the Cincinnati final.

In men's doubles, the unseeded Argentine team of Maximo Gonzalez, 40, and Andres Molteni, 35, win the biggest title of their careers. They save a championship point to defeat Jamie Murray and Michael Venus, 3-6, 6-1, 11-9, and became the first all-South American team to win the Cincinnati doubles crown. It's their fifth title together of the season and sixth overall, with a perfect 6-0 finals record.

In women's doubles, the unseeded all-American team of Alycia Parks and Taylor Townsend defeat the third seeded team of Nicole Melichar-Martinez and Ellen Perez 6-7(1), 6-4, 10-6. Parks and Townsend are a last-minute entry playing together for the first time, while Melichar-Martinez and Perez are runners-up for the second straight year.

Facility improvements this year include new video boards throughout the property and on the walls surrounding the playing surface on the Grandstand Court. A large fan zone area is added in the center of the facility with an 80-foot-wide video board to allow fans to follow the action on court. Numerous other areas of the facility are improved as well, including the suites behind the north baseline of Center Court and additional seating on Court 4.

In May, prior to the start of the 2023 tournament, the new ownership group lets it be known it is evaluating a plan to either keep the event in Cincinnati or move it to Charlotte, North Carolina. Both regions tout their ability to host the tournament, and the new owners state a decision will be announced following the conclusion of the 2023 event.

On June 22, 2023, Ohio native and tournament director Todd Martin talks to the Cincinnati Business Courier about Cincinnati's special qualities and its place on the international tennis tour. "Each tournament across the globe has their own identity" he says. "If they don't have an identity, they don't succeed. Monte Carlo is the most scenic place in the world to play tennis. It's on a cliff overlooking the Mediterranean. Rome is Colosseum-esque. In Paris, Roland Garros looks like it was cut out of the earth for the singular purpose to have red clay courts. This event's identity is community and the Midwestern simple charm and hospitality. Which being from the area makes me proud."

Fans from around the world seem to validate Martin's assertion that the tournament's Midwestern charm is appealing. Total attendance for the week is 194,340, a near-record for the historic event.

On October 10, after months of speculation and deliberation, the tournament announces it will remain in Cincinnati for the future. The decision actually is announced in a video by Djokovic and Gauff.

Gauff: "Hey, Cincinnati, we have major news".

Djokovic: "Your wonderful tournament is staying in Cincinnati."

Gauff: "And it's going to be bigger and better forever."

Djokovic: "Like Coco, this jewel of a tournament has a fantastic future."

Gauff: "Like Novak, Cincinnati has class."

Following the announcement, plans begin to enhance the facility for the 2024 event (the tournament's 125th Anniversary), and for a more intensive expansion of the facility to accommodate a two-week event in 2025.

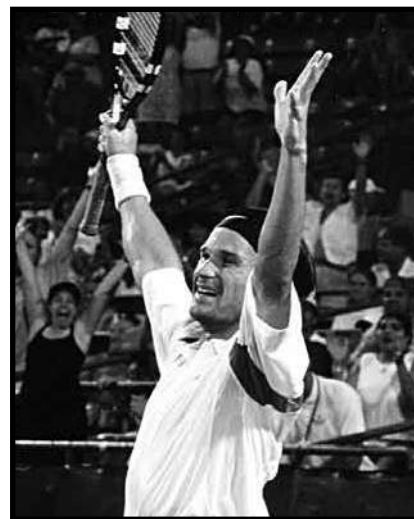

By year's end, one more announcement is made: the tournament pays tribute to its roots by reverting to its original name, the name selected by the first tournament organizers and used and seen in newspaper accounts and advertisements in 1899: the Cincinnati Open.

HISTORY – Major Facility Improvements Since 1979 & Uses

The Lindner Family Tennis Center in the Cincinnati suburb of Mason is the 16th largest tennis-only venue in the world in terms of the capacity of its main court. The facility sits on 90 acres, and has 17 courts in total with four tennis stadiums: Center Court (capacity 11,435; Grandstand Court (capacity 5,000), Court 3 (capacity 4,000), and Court 10 (capacity 2,500). Improvements to the facility have been made since the tournament made it its home in 1979.

1979 — The tournament moves from the Old Coney Amusement Park along the Ohio River to land in Mason owned by Taft Broadcasting. Four courts are constructed and the seats from Old Coney are transported to the new venue. This year the playing surface is changed from clay to hardcourt.

1982 — Construction increases capacity to 7,586.

1985 — The Championship Club, a private dining club, and the Grandstand Court (the No. 2 court) are added.

1986 — Lights are added to the Grandstand Court, allowing night play on two courts.

1987 — A $2.1 million expansion increases seating on Center Court by 13 percent, (from 7,732 to 8,748). Also, two new levels are built beneath the west stands, adding a player lounge, player locker room, lavatories, a training room and a whirlpool room, as well as administrative offices, a conference suite, a first-aid facility, offices for the referees and umpires, a news-media interview room, a media lounge and darkroom facilities. Along the upper rim of Center Court, an enclosed, 65-seat news-media box is added, as well as private luxury suites, built on either side of the news-media box.

1988 — Additions to the tennis complex include Courtside Cafes and a new, 3,000-foot road to provide better access to the tennis center from the south.

1990 — A $4 million expansion adds 1,500 seats, eight skyboxes on the west side and four luxury suites on the north side. Capacity is at 10,000.

1992 — Lights and extra seats are added to courts three and four, and the foodcourt is widened.

1993 — Nearly 200 seats are added to Center Court.

1994 — Seats are added to the north sides of courts three and four, new administrative offices are constructed and the locker room, the player lounge, the media interview room, and media lounge areas are all enlarged.

1995 — The Grandstand Court is reconstructed to replace the wooden bleachers with a concrete bowl with box seats and benches with backs, and seating for nearly 5,000 – an increase of approximately 1,000 seats. Also, the food court is expanded again to allow more seating.

1997 — A third permanent stadium is added, making the tennis center the only facility outside the Grand Slams with three permanent stadiums. Also, a new viewing area is constructed on the outside of the south side of Center Court to allow fans to view action on Grandstand from high atop Center Court.

1998 — Two new practice courts are added to the southeast corner of the complex.

1999 — A new ticket office and a new mezzanine on the north side of Center Court are added. The former ticket office becomes a new museum in celebration of the tournament's 100 years of existence.

2006 — Approximately 180 seats are added to the southeast corner of Center Court.

2008 — The oldest seats in Center Court, those in the lower bowl, are replaced with seats that also include cupholders.

2010 — A $10 million renovation includes the construction of a new West Building (named the Paul Flory Player Center) with new facilities for players, media and fans. A new stadium court also is constructed on the north side of the facility.

2011 — The addition of six new courts, including a 4,000-seat television court, brings the total number of courts to 16 and the number of stadiums to four.

2012 — The third and final phase of recent construction is the expansion of the food court area.

HISTORY – Major Facility Improvements Since 1979 & Uses

Center Court in 2022. To the right is the South Building which was unveiled in 2018 and includes The 1899 Room, a nod to the rich history of tennis in Cincinnati. The South Building is the single-largest investment in the history of the tennis facility to date.

2017 — An additional court, additional court lighting and parking lot improvements are part of a $5 million improvement project. LED digital displays are added running the length of the court on both sidelines of center court.

2018 — The new $25 million South Building is unveiled. It is the tallest structure on the facility, and includes the world's first indoor air-conditioned box seats at an outdoor tennis tournament. The building has views of both Center Court and the Grandstand Court as well as practice courts 16 and 17, and contains 40,000 square feet, a full commercial kitchen, meeting rooms and a conference room, with restrooms, air conditioning and food options on every level. The building also is the home of new broadcast facilities and includes a bar and retail at ground level. Digital display panels also are used on all sides of the net judge box on center court.

2021 — All lower bowl seats are replaced on the Grandstand Court.

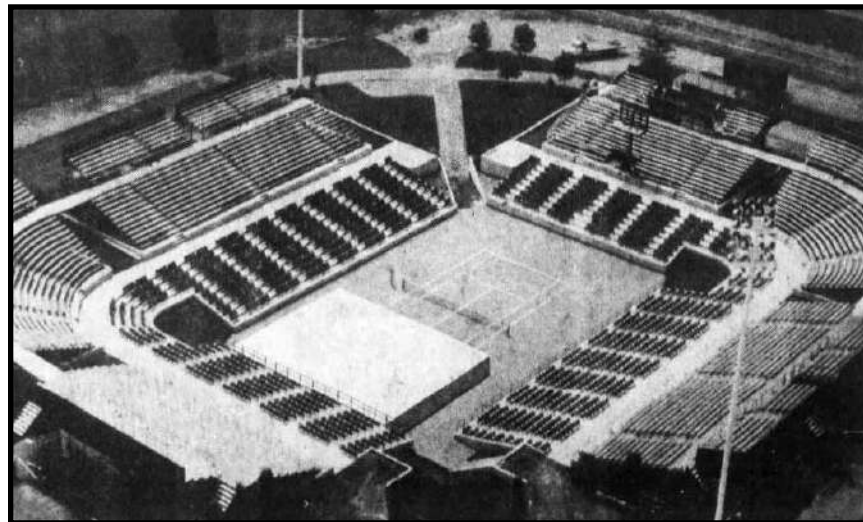

2022 — The static Center Court backwalls are changed to digital LED panels, creating an immersive digital display around all four sides of the court.

2023 — Numerous upgrades are made around the facility, most notably the addition of a fan zone north of Center Court which includes a stage for entertainment and an 80-foot long video wall. Additional improvements include LED walls at the player entrance, additional video boards within Center Court and the introduction of LED back and sidewalls on Grandstand Court. More than 800 seats are added to Court 4, and Courts 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 11 all receive improvements to seating.

2024 — The first of a planned $260 million investment in facility upgrades get underway. Improvements include replacement of every seat on Center Court and many seats on Grandstand Court, and the addition of four additional practice courts. The entire Top Deck at Center Court is redesigned and upgraded, with a portion being converted into The Oasis, an exclusive hospitality offering for select ticket buyers. The tournament also adds new Grandstand Suites and upgrades its Crosscourt Suites and other suites.

HISTORY – Major Facility Improvements Since 1979 & Uses

Center Court as seen in the Cincinnati Enquirer on May 30, 1982. The large white platform in the center was a stage for a summer concert series that year. Billed as “concerts outside under the stars,” acts included Jimmy Buffet, James Taylor, Emmylou Harris, and Rick Springfield.

The Grandstand Court in 2022, with the backside of the South Building at left.

Other Events

In addition to the tournament and concerts, the facility has hosted numerous other tennis events including the 2015 NCAA Division III National Championships, the Ohio High School State Championships (2015-2022), college conference championships for the Atlantic 10 (2012-2016), the Ohio Athletic Conference (2007-2021), and the River States Conference (2018-2019), and the Northern Kentucky University Invitational (2017 & 2019). Non-tennis events held at the facility include the AVP Beach Volleyball Championships (2005-2010), the 2022 Baird Wealth Management Pickleball Open, and the 2014 NCAA Division III Cross Country National Championships.

Men's Doubles Final Played Before
Men's Singles Final	2004

Various prizes were given to players until 1901 when the tournament introduced The Governor's Bowl, named for the governors of the Avondale Athletic Club, the tournament venue at the time. It was the first trophy in tournament history and the first to be retired by a player (Beals Wright, 1906).

HISTORY – Firsts & Lasts in Cincinnati

The first national broadcast of the Cincinnati tournament came in 1979, when CBS was slated to carry the men's singles final on Sunday, August 26. That men's singles final, between Peter Fleming and Roscoe Tanner, was postponed by rain until Monday, August 27, so on "Final Sunday" CBS aired Tanner's semifinal match with Bernie Mitton from the previous evening. Announcers for CBS were Pat Summerall (above left) and Cincinnati and International Tennis Hall of Famer Tony Trabert (above right).

Above, John McEnroe is seen playing in Cincinnati in 1981, the year he became the last player to win a title in Cincinnati with a wooden racquet and the last player to win the singles title and the doubles title in the same year.

Prize money was introduced in Cincinnati in 1969, the same year the tournament celebrated its 70th anniversary. Cliff Richey, seen at left playing in the 1970 final against Ken Rosewall, was the first player to earn a paycheck for winning the Cincinnati title.

“The distinctive characteristic of the tournament is the attendance. The tournament opens on Saturday with as many spectators as the average tournament can boast for the challenge round. As the play progresses, the crowd increases in size, and when the last two days are reached it is impossible to accommodate all who apply for admission at the gates. Last year the seating capacity was in the neighborhood of twenty-five hundred and every available inch of standing room taken – even the roof of the clubhouse was not neglected.” — American Lawn Tennis Magazine, July 1, 1908 on Cincinnati’s history (to date) of strong attendance

Wuhan, China.....	2014

When the Association of Tennis Professionals launched its own tour in 1990, Cincinnati was designated as an “Championship Series, Single Week” event, the highest possible level on the new tour. Above, ATP CEO Hamilton Jordan conducts “The Parking Lot Press Conference” on August 30, 1988, in which he discussed a vision to establish the new tour. The parking lot was just outside the gates of the U.S. Open in New York. Today, thirty-three years after the start of the ATP Tour, the Cincinnati tournament is still at the highest level of the ATP Tour as a Masters 1000 event.

HISTORY – Trophies Since 1899

1899-1900 - The tournament has no trophy, but players compete for prizes including items made by Cincinnati's famous Rookwood Pottery, silver loving cups, racquets, luggage, and other items. The tournament spends $700 (or approximately $25,000 today) on these prizes in 1899, and $1,000 (or approximately $36,000 today) in 1900.

Tournament organizers create a permanent trophy for the 1901 event which will become the possession of any player who wins the singles title three times, not necessarily in succession. The practice is called "retiring a trophy" and each title constitutes a "leg" of the trophy. When a player wins three "legs" he or she takes possession of the trophy.

1901-1906 - The Governor's Bowl

Introduction: Charles J. Iredell of Cincinnati commissions Theodore B. Starr, a New York silversmith, to create the bowl in 1900 at a cost of $500 ($18,700 in today's dollars). The funds are provided by Caius Cobb "C.C." Bragg, the founder of the Avondale Athletic Club. Starr creates a massive sterling silver bowl that is two-feet in diameter and gold-lined. It is embossed with designs of grapevines and Bacchus heads. The work of art is named the "Governor's Bowl" in honor of the board of governors of the Avondale Athletic Club, and is considered the finest trophy in U.S. competition at the time. In June, 1902, the tournament sends the trophy back to Theodore Starr's gallery in New York so that it may be displayed to the public for two weeks prior to the tournament. It is inscribed with both names for the tournament used to that point: "The Cincinnati Open" and "Tri-State Championship."

Conclusion: The trophy is retired in 1906 by Beals Wright, the singles champion in 1904, 1905 & 1906.

1907-1909 - George DeCamp Bowl

Introduction: After the retirement of the Governor's Bowl, the tournament commissions the creation of the George DeCamp Bowl, which is named for the tournament's correspondence secretary as a "tribute to the man to whose energy and loyal work the success of past tournaments had been largely due." The trophy is solid silver, weighs 17 pounds, is 10½ inches high, 16 inches in diameter and is made at a cost of $500 ($16,700 in today's dollars).

Conclusion: The trophy is retired in 1909 by Robert LeRoy, the singles champion in 1907, 1908 & 1909.

1910-1927 - The Cincinnati Trophy

Introduction: Tiffany's of New York creates this huge bowl for $550 (which would equal $18,200 in today's dollars). The funds are donated by two of the world's most recognizable names in consumer products: James Norris Gamble and William Cooper Procter. The bowl is retired in 1927 by George Lott of Chicago, who retains possession of it until 1938, when, according to legend, he won a pro tournament in White Sulpher Springs, West Virginia, at the Greenbrier resort. When reports drift back to Cincinnati that he is leaving a good portion of his prize money in the casino there, tournament officials decide it is a good time to negotiate with him for the purchase of the valuable and historic bowl. They drive the 350 miles to White Sulpher Springs, negotiate with Lott, and return with the bowl.

Conclusion: The trophy is retired in 1927 by George Lott, the singles champion in 1924, 1925 & 1927. Repurchased by the tournament in 1938.

1928-1938 - Wilfred M. Tyler Trophy

Introduction: Wilfred M. Tyler was actively involved in Cincinnati tennis circles and was an officer of the Ohio Lawn Tennis Association for many years until 1915. Tyler died in 1923, and when a new trophy is needed for 1928, someone associated with the tournament recalls a mention of tennis in Tyler's will. When his estate's executor is consulted, it is discovered he left $500 ($10,000 today) "with which to purchase a new tournament trophy should it ever become necessary." That occasion having now arisen, the tournament purchases a new bowl and names it after the benefactor. The trophy is now on display at the Bobby Riggs Museum in San Diego.

Conclusion: The trophy is retired in 1938 by Bobby Riggs, singles champion in 1936, 1937 & 1938.

1939-1947 - The Cincinnati Trophy (2nd)

Introduction: This silver bowl is made by Revere and donated to the tournament by Cincinnati Charles Tobias, but in deference to his wishes his name does not appear on the bowl.

Conclusion: The trophy is retired in 1947 by William Talbert, singles champion in 1943, 1945 & 1947.

1948-1958 - Boyd Chambers Memorial Trophy

Introduction: This silver trophy is made in Mexico and donated anonymously in memory of Boyd B. "Pete" Chambers, Jr. A former tournament competitor, Chambers was shot down over Italy in World War II. Bernard "Tut" Bartzten of Texas retires the trophy in 1958, and it remains in his personal collection to this day. Once ranked No. 1 in the nation, Bartzzen considers it his favorite trophy.

Conclusion: The trophy is retired in 1958 by Bernard "Tut" Bartzzen, the singles champion in 1955, 1957 & 1958.

1959-1968 - Stanley W. Lewis Trophy

Introduction: This two-handled, vase-shaped silver trophy was named in honor of Stanley Lewis, who served as tournament director between 1936 and 1941, and then again in 1949 and 1950.

Conclusion: The trophy is retired by the tournament, not a player, in 1969. Marty Riessen had two legs on the trophy (1962 & 1963) when it was tournament-retired.

1969-1978 - Western Trophy

Introduction: This silver trophy on a wooden base is used by the event during the period when the tournament is called the Western Tennis Championship. During the ten-year period, ten different players win titles.

Conclusion: The trophy is retired by the tournament in 1978.

1979-1991 - ATP Championship Cup

Introduction: This trophy is created by Tiffany's of New York and purchased by the tournament when the event changes names and venues in 1979. Mats Wilander wins four titles during the period of this trophy, but by then the practice of retiring trophies has ended.

Conclusion: The trophy is retired in 1992 by the tournament.

1992-1999 - ATP Championship Trophy

Introduction: This trophy, made by Waterford Crystal of Ireland, has the distinction of being the first non-silver trophy in tournament history. Pete Sampras, champion in 1992, 1997 and 1999, is both the first player and the last player to hoist it on a Final Sunday.

Conclusion: The trophy is retired in 2000 by the tournament.

2000-2009 - Masters Series Shield

Introduction: The first iteration of this Waterford Crystal trophy has the shortest tenure of any trophy in tournament history (two years). It's also the first trophy not to have a bowl or cup shape. Its "shield" shape reflects the logo of the Cincinnati tournament, and the logos of all nine Masters Series events, introduced in 2000. Subsequently, when a player wins any Masters Series event, he receives an identical trophy.

Second Iteration (2002): The trophy is reimagined to represent the "shield" of the entire Masters Series rather than resemble the logo of an individual tournament. For 2002, Waterford Crystal made plans to create a unique trophy for each of the nine events, but that changes when Lleyton Hewitt won the first Masters Series event of the year (Indian Wells) and asks for "his crystal shield" to mark his first Masters Series title. The decision was quickly made to produce the shield trophy for all tournaments.

Conclusion: The trophy is retired in 2009 by the tournament.

2010-Present - The Rookwood Cup

Introduction: Champions didn't earn trophies by winning in Cincinnati in the first year, but the tournament did provide them with prizes from Cincinnati's world-famous Rookwood Pottery. When the tournament needed new trophies in 2010, Rookwood Pottery once again stepped forward, and in grand style. In 2010, tournament officials "wanted the players to be able to bring home something that said they were in Cincinnati and went beyond the trophies given to them in any other city," said Christopher Rose, Rookwood's president and CEO. Rookwood artist Roy Robinson crafted the tournament's 12-pound perpetual trophy featuring tennis balls clinging to acanthus leaves and bearing the inscription honoring "the oldest tournament in the United States still played in its original city." The Cincinnati Enquirer reported: "The trophy was a hit with Kim Clijsters.... When she hoisted the trophy at Center Court, she could not take her eyes off the work of art." The Cup gets a makeover for 2023 with a new bold color scheme, and a more extensive makeover for 2024.

Second Iteration (2024): As the tournament returns to its original Cincinnati Open name, further modifications are made to create a new, yet familiar trophy for the 2024 tournament. Using the form of the original Rookwood Cup as a base and keeping with the color scheme introduced in 2023, the remodeled trophy incorporates a helix into the design, symbolizing several significant concepts that resonate with the sport of tennis; which is of particular resonance to a tournament with such a rich history as the Cincinnati Open. The helix design represents evolution and growth; endurance and resilience; connection and unity; precision and skill. By integrating a helix into the trophy design, the tournament conveys these deeper meanings and celebrates not just the victory but the underlying values and qualities that define the sport of tennis.

HISTORY – Trophies Since 1899

The Mystery of the Missing Trophy - Female competitors vie for prizes similar to the men in the early years, but the first appearance of a trophy specifically for women comes in 1905.

It is called the "Tri-State Cup, Women's Challenge Trophy" and is described as "massive and solid silver, having been given to the tournament by John V.B. Scarborough, William M. Green and the late W.J. O'Dell".

It would become the permanent possession of any player who won the women's singles title three times (not necessarily in succession). It is a practice known as "retiring a trophy".

When May Sutton of Pasadena, California, won her second Cincinnati singles title on September 8, 1906, the cup was given to her as a courtesy to "hold for one year." But when the trophy ceremony arrived at the end of the 1907 women's singles final, the trophy was nowhere to be found.

There are two stories about what happened to the trophy, and both involve what Sutton did or didn't do following the 1906 ladies singles final.

One story was that she placed the trophy in the automobile belonging to her host family (the Belden's) and it was stolen from the vehicle. When in Cincinnati, Sutton always stayed with the family of George F. Belden in Avondale. His daughter Louise (or "Lulu") was a friend of Sutton's and the two often played doubles together.

Another story is that she didn't want to take the trophy back to California only to bring it back to Cincinnati the following year so she left it in the custody of a tournament official to keep in Cincinnati for the year.

Tournament official Hugh Bates summed up the mystery in the September 27, 1907, edition of the Cincinnati Post:

"We have exhausted every other explanation," he said. "I am pretty well convinced the trophy was stolen. She (Miss Sutton) remembers putting it in the automobile of her host family after the tournament. From that point all trace of it is lost. We at first thought she had given it to the late George DeCamp to hold until she obtained permanent possession. She can't recall whether or not she actually gave it to him. A search among DeCamp's effects has failed to reveal any trace of it."

The bowl was somewhat similar in appearance to the Governor's Bowl, and, by all indications, just as valuable. It remains lost to this day. The tournament paid for an identical bowl to be made, and shipped it to Sutton in February, 1908.

The Women's Challenge Cup which was retired by May Sutton in 1907 and then immediately lost.

HISTORY – Trophies Since 1899

Women's Singles: 2004-2009 - Various trophies were used for women's singles over the years, including bowls and other prizes.

When the women's event returns to Cincinnati in 2004, and prior to the adoption of the Rookwood Cup in 2010, Waterford Crystal produces a cup for the singles champions. The initial cup is reminiscent of the men's trophy from 1992 to 1999, but later versions are bowl-shaped.

HISTORY – Tournament Directors

In 1975, Paul Flory became the 27th person to hold the title of Tournament Director, and he held that title longer than anyone: 36 years. Phil Stanbery was TD for 11 years, two more than Tom Price (9). Kris Paulus is the only woman ever to be tournament director (she was director of the 1963 ladies event), while Elaine Bruening is the first person to be CEO. Katie Haas was CEO in 2022.

CHAMPIONS

Packed stands in Cincinnati for a match in 1909.

“Cincinnati crowds beat those of Newport in several ways. In Newport, the crowds go because it is ‘the thing,’ not because they especially enjoy tennis. They will stand with their backs to the court during the most exciting play.

Here they watch every move because they enjoy tennis.”

– George Wright comparing the Cincinnati tournament to the U.S. National Championships, then held in Newport, Rhode Island, as reported by the Cincinnati Post on September 7, 1907. Wright played for the Cincinnati Reds in 1869, and was the father of tennis players Bels Wright and Irving Wright.

This photo collage from the July 2, 1939 edition of the Cincinnati Enquirer depicts three players who made a total of 19 finals appearances in Cincinnati: Bryan "Bitsy" Grant (four finals: two in singles and two in doubles); Frank Parker (seven finals: five in singles and two in doubles); and Catherine Wolfe, whose first name was erroneously spelled above with a "K" (eight finals: three in singles, four doubles and one in mixed).

Virginia Hollinger of Dayton, Ohio, was one of the best players to come from the Midwest. She won the 1938 U.S. Indoor singles title after winning three singles titles at the U.S. Girls Indoor Championships (1934, 1935 and 1936). In Cincinnati she reached the womens singles final every year from 1936 to 1939, the last of the four coming when she was just 22 years old. The photo above appeared in the Cincinnati Post on June 11, 1939, just before the tournament. Hollinger became ill in 1945, and died of Hodgkin lymphoma in 1946 at age 29.

CHAMPIONS – At Other Cincinnati Tennis Events of Note

Events in addition to Cincinnati's traditional tournament have been held in Cincinnati for more than a century. These include other week-long professional tournaments, Davis Cup ties, and one-day exhibitions, all featuring some of the best players the tennis world has ever known. Here is a collection of information about many of those additional events:

Avon Championships – Riverfront Coliseum (Women Only)

1982: WS - Barbara Potter d. Bettina Bunge/GER; 6-4, 7-6
WD - Sue Barker/GBR & Ann Kiyomura d. Pam Shriver & Anne Smith; 6-2, 7-6

1981: WS - Martina Navratilova (1) d. Sylvia Hanika/GER (6); 6-2, 6-4

On July 6, 1952 in the men's singles final, Noel Brown lost more games than he won but still won the title. With the match at 6-4, 0-6, 2-0, Brown's opponent, Fred Hagist,

STATS – Men's Singles - FINALS - Length

Novak Djokovic is seen above on August 20, 2023, immediately after the final point of the longest men's singles final in Cincinnati since the statistic began to be kept in 1990: 3 hours and 49 minutes or a total of 229 minutes. Djokovic (then ranked No. 2 in the world) defeated world No. 1 Carlos Alcaraz 5-7, 7-6(7), 7-6(4) in that final.

Of all the men's singles finals played in Cincinnati since 1899, 62 were best-of-five sets. The last men's singles final with that format was played in 1966 when Dave Power of Fort Collins, Colorado, defeated Bill Harris of West Palm Beach, Florida, 7-5, 3-6, 0-6, 6-1, 6-2. Above, Power is seen in a Cincinnati Enquirer photo from July 10, 1966, accepting the Stanley W. Lewis Trophy from co-tournament director Hap Castleberry.

In the 1990 men's singles final, Stefan Edberg (above) defeated Brad Gilbert 6-1, 6-1, in just 51 minutes, which is still the shortest men's singles final in Cincinnati history in minutes (51). After the match when Gilbert was given a microphone to address the crowd, the fans responded by giving him a lengthy ovation. When the cheers subsided, Gilbert joked "that applause took longer than the match."

All-Time: World #1 vs. #2 In Final

The top two ranked players in the world have met twice in the singles final since ATP world rankings began in 1974:

- 2023: Novak Djokovic (No. 2) d. Carlos Alcaraz (No. 1), 5-7, 7-6(7), 7-6(4)
 2012: Roger Federer (No. 1) d. Novak Djokovic (No. 2), 6-0, 7-6(7)

Note: There was one other occurrence of a match in Cincinnati between the world's top two ranked players; it occurred in the semifinals in 2009 when No. 1 Roger Federer d. No. 2 Andy Murray, 6-2, 7-6(10).

All-Time: World #1s Winning Both Titles

The only occurrence of the world No. 1-ranked singles player winning the singles championship in the same year the world No. 1-ranked doubles team wins the doubles championship happened in 1997:

Novak Djokovic was part of both the biggest and the smallest age differential in a men's singles final in Cincinnati since the tournament began in 1899. The biggest differential came in 2023 when a 36-year-old Djokovic defeated a 20-year-old Carlos Alcaraz. The smallest came in both 2008 and 2011 when Andy Murray defeated Novak Djokovic in both years. Murray and Djokovic were born only seven days apart. (The photo above is from the 2011 final with Djokovic at left and Murray at right.)

TILDEN DEFEATS
FOR NET TITLE

Cincinnati, O., July 17.—(AP)—William Tilden II. of Philadelphia defeated George Lott of Chicago in the tennis singles of the tri-state tournament today, winning a five set battle, 4-6, 6-3, 7-9, 6-4, 6-3.

Lott held two legs of the silver trophy, and, had he won the match, would have retained it permanently. Lott drew first blood and slipped through for the next two games. Tilden's game improved in the fourth set, and he won by sharp placements. From then on he was master, although Lott put up a stubborn battle.

The second-largest age differential All Time in a Cincinnati men's singles final came in 1926, when 33-year-old William "Big Bill" Tilden defeated 19-year-old George Lott. That match also was the first singles final in tournament history (male or female) between two future International Tennis Hall of Famers. Lott came into the match with two Cincinnati singles championships under his belt, and Tilden came to Cincinnati that year to the surprise of tournament officials. According to an article which appeared in the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette on July 13, 1926, Tilden simply arrived in Cincinnati from Kansas City and announced his intention to play. (Article at left appeared in the Chicago Tribune on July 18, 1926.)

The third-largest age differential All Time in a Cincinnati men's singles final came in 1910, when 34-year-old Richard H. Palmer of New Jersey defeated 21-year-old Wallace Johnson of Philadelphia. According to an article which appeared in the Cincinnati Post on September 7, 1910, fans at the match were well aware of the age difference between the two players.

VETERAN DEFEATS YOUNG COLLEGE STAR FOR THE TRISTATE TENNIS TITLE

That old adage about youth being served didn't hold good at the Tristate Tennis championship tourney Tuesday, when Richard H. Palmer, of New Jersey, a veteran, defeated Wallace Johnson, of Philadelphia, a youth, the title and a leg on the new trophy cup, in three straight sets, 11-9, 6-3, 6-4.

Old players unite in saying they never saw a better match at the Cincinnati Tennis Club. When it takes 20 games to decide a set, especially when men like Palmer and Johnson are the belligerents, the crowd is bound to get its money's worth. And that's what happened in the first set Tuesday.

At left, Boris Becker is seen in Cincinnati in 1985 during his quarterfinal match against Hank Pfister. He won the match and went on to become the youngest Cincinnati men's singles champion of All Time. Becker also still holds Open Era men's singles records in Cincinnati as the youngest men's singles runner-up (1987), and the youngest men's singles semifinalist (1985). He also was the third and last player to be seeded No. 1 as a wild card (1991).

Three Cincinnati records were set in the 1970 men's singles final, in which Ken Rosewall (left) defeated defending champion Cliff Richey, 7-9, 9-7, 8-6. Record 1: At age 35, Rosewall became the oldest men's singles champion in the Open Era in Cincinnati. Record 2: Rosewall was 12 years older than Richey, an Open Era tournament record for finalist age differential (4th All Time). Record 3: It was the longest three-set final in tournament history in terms of games. Ironically, that final occurred just two weeks before the tiebreak was introduced.

STATS – Men's Singles - FINALS - Ages

The second-largest age differential in an Open Era Cincinnati men's singles final (and 5th largest All Time) came in 1986, when 33-year-old Jimmy Connors (above left with tournament director Paul Flory) took on 22-year-old Mats Wilander (left). Wilander won that championship, his third of four in Cincinnati. It also was Connors' first finals appearance in 14 years (his last appearance came in 1972), another tournament record for length of time between finals appearances.

The third-largest age differential in an Open Era Cincinnati men's singles final (and 9th largest All Time) came in 1992, when 32-year-old Ivan Lendl (left) took on 21-year-old Pete Sampras (right). Lendl won that championship, his only Cincinnati title.

Herbert "Buddy" Behrens is the youngest semifinalist and quarterfinalist All Time in Cincinnati in men's singles. He was just 16 in 1945 when he reached the Final Eight in Cincinnati, winning his match against Ed Swick before falling to eventual champion William "Bill" Talbert in the semifinals. Behrens won the National Boys singles title in 1944, and went on to play at Rollins College where he was an NCAA semifinalist in both singles and doubles. Behrens won the singles and doubles titles in Cincinnati in 1948 at age 19.

Note:

- The last time all eight men's singles quarterfinalists were Americans was 1965.
- In the Open Era, the highest number of American men's singles quarterfinalists in the one year is seven, which has only happened once: 1976.

Since 2000, no American has made more appearances in the men's singles quarterfinals in Cincinnati than Andy Roddick. Roddick (seen at right after winning the 2003 men's singles title) was in the quarterfinals every year from 2002 to 2006 and then again in 2010 for a total of six quarterfinal appearances in Cincinnati since 2000.

Cincinnati's first men's singles champion, Nat Emerson, also was one of the tournament's oldest quarterfinalists. In 1915 at age 40, Emerson reached the Cincinnati quarterfinals where he pushed future International Tennis Hall of Famer Clarence Griffin to five sets before losing. The photo above appeared in the Memphis Commercial Appeal on July 18, 1915 (a few weeks before the Cincinnati tournament), after Emerson won the men's singles title at the Tennessee State Lawn Tennis Championship.

In 2000, American Todd Martin, seen above in a Cincinnati Enquirer photo from August 11 that year, battled injuries and saw limited action on the tennis court. It wasn't until August in Cincinnati that he reached his first quarterfinal of the year. It was his only quarterfinal ever in Cincinnati, and it came one month after he turned 30.

In 2022, American John Isner, seen above in a Cincinnati Enquirer photo published on August 16, 2022, became the oldest men's quarterfinalist in the Open Era in Cincinnati at age 37 years and three months.

In 2017, Ivo Karlovic, left, became the oldest player to reach the Round of 16 in Cincinnati in the Open Era in men's singles. He knocked off No. 8 seed Jo-Wilfried Tsonga en route to that Round of 16, where he lost to eventual finalist Nick Kyrgios. Karlovic made his Cincinnati debut in 2004, was a singles semifinalist in 2008, and reached the Round of 16 a total of three times.

* Quarterfinal finish (best for lucky loser)

Nat = Nationality (non Americans only)

In 1974, Henry Bunis became the first lucky loser in tournament history. He lost in the final round of qualifying that year, but was added to the main draw by lottery when Lito Alvarez withdrew. He's also the first of only five lucky losers to reach a Cincinnati men's singles quarterfinal. Bunis is seen here in a Cincinnati Post photo during his 1974 quarterfinal match with second-seeded Bob Lutz. A native Cincinnati, Bunis won the 1971 Ohio High School singles title and was a two-time All American at Columbia University before playing on the pro tour.

STATS – Men's Singles - Open Era - WILD CARDS

Wild cards first appeared in Cincinnati in 1974 and officially are defined as “players included in the main draw at the sole discretion of the tournament.” Typically, wild cards are given to marquee players who missed the tournament entry deadline, or players who have significant fan appeal but do not have a ranking high enough to gain direct acceptance. Sometimes, however, a tournament doesn't need all of its wild cards and, if qualifying has not begun, the player (or players) next in line to gain direct acceptance are moved into the main draw. However, in order for that to occur, the tournament must first choose not to bestow a wild card on a particular player. In making that choice, the tournament is, in effect, choosing to include those players who are next in line. The following statistics include all players who were bestowed wild cards by the tournament for any reason.

James Blake accepted six wild cards into Cincinnati, tying him with Robby Ginepri for the most men's wild cards in tournament history. Blake turned two of those wild cards into Round of 16 finishes (2001 & 2011).

An 18-year-old John McEnroe made his Cincinnati debut in 1977, fresh from his semifinal run at Wimbledon. He accepted a wild card, the fifth-youngest player in Cincinnati history to do so, and raced to the quarterfinals.

Pete Sampras is the youngest player to accept a wild card in Cincinnati. In 1988, the 16-year-old from California was 6-7 in singles on the ATP Tour when he arrived in Cincinnati. He accepted a wild card into the men's singles draw, but promptly lost to Brad Gilbert in the first round, 4-6, 2-6. Over the next 14 years, Sampras would play another 48 matches in Cincinnati, winning 38 of them and collecting three men's singles titles along the way. He's seen at left in an Associated Press photo from March, 1988.

*Entered but withdrew after draw was made; ♦No. 1 injured Cincy week

In 2004, Andre Agassi was one of a record-tying eight former or current world No. 1 players in Cincinnati’s men’s draw (the other occurrence was in 2002). Five of those former or current No. 1s, Agassi, Lleyton Hewitt, Carlos Moya, Andy Roddick and Marat Safin, reached the quarterfinals, the record for most current or former No. 1s in that round. Ultimately, Agassi and Hewitt reached the final, which Agassi won.

>In 1969, Cliff Richey won 7 consecutive matches, the most wins in the main draw in a single year.

In 1993, Doug Flach won 10 consecutive matches, but not all were in the main draw of the tournament. That year the tournament hosted a smaller event (called a "Challenger" tournament) prior to the main draw. Flach won 3 matches to qualify for the Challenger, then won 5 matches to take the Challenger title, then won 2 main draw matches before losing to Andre Agassi in the Round of 16.

STATS – Women’s Singles - FINALS - Singles & Doubles Finalists –

Myrtle McAteer of Pittsburgh (above) and Clara Louis Zinke of Cincinnati made more dual finals appearances (five) than any other female players in tournament history. In 1899, McAteer became the first dual finalist and the first women’s singles champion in tournament history. The following year she won the U.S. National singles title in Newport, Rhode Island.

In 2008, Nadia Petrova (above and at right below) became the 88th women’s dual finalist in Cincinnati tournament history, and the 33rd player to win both the singles and the doubles title in the same year. Petrova won the singles title over Nathalie Dechy and won the doubles title with countrywoman Maria Kirilenko (at left below).

TENNIS PHENOM WINS

May Sutton Defeats Myrtle McAteer 6-0 in the Woman Singles Finals in Tri-State Tourney.

May Sutton, California wonder, added new laurels to her already remarkable tennis record Saturday afternoon by defeating Myrtle McAteer in the women's singles finals, 6-0, 6-0. Miss Sutton is now champion of the United States and England and also tristate champion.

There was a record-breaking crowd of about 1500 at the grounds of the Cincinnati Tennis Club to see the play.

May Sutton's 6-0, 6-0 victory over Pittsburgh's Myrtle McAteer in the 1905 singles final was not only the most lopsided singles final in Cincinnati history, it also was played in front of a record crowd at the time (1,500), according to the Cincinnati Post on September 2, 1905. McAteer won the U.S. National singles title in 1900 and was a three-time singles champion in Cincinnati when she played Sutton in 1905.

Edith Margaret Boucher Hannam of Bristol, England, was the first non-American, male or female, to win any title in Cincinnati. In 1909 she won the women’s singles title, and the mixed doubles title (with Mark Lincoln Mitchell), and was a women’s doubles finalist (with Nina Ackerland Freiberg). The Cincinnati Post called her the finest female tennis player to play in Cincinnati since May Sutton. At Wimbledon, she was singles finalist in 1911 and a doubles finalist in 1914. She won gold medals in singles and mixed doubles at the 1912 Olympics.

STATS – Women’s Singles - FINALS - Nationalities

In the Open Era, after the United States, Australia has the most women’s singles champions in Cincinnati (four): Lesley Turner Bowrey (1969), Court (1972), Goolagong (1973), and Ashleigh Barty (2021).

After the United States, Romania has the most women’s singles runner-ups of all time in Cincinnati (five). Three of those finalist finishes were made by Simona Halep in the Open Era, but the first two were made by Magda Rurac in 1950 and 1951. She’s seen at right with her husband, Vinnie, in a photo from the July 2, 1948, edition of the Cincinnati Post. The Ruracs both reached the singles semifinals that year, and Magda won the doubles title as well with Dorothy Head.

 In SF = Number of seeds to reach the SF
Bold = Top 4 seeds in SF (16 occurrences)

Notes:

1. The semifinals have never been without at least one seed; the highest number of seeds in the semifinals is four (29 times) and the top four seeds have reached the semifinals 17 times since 1927, with the last occurrence coming in 2004.

2. No. 17 seeds are not included above, as a seed had to withdraw for a 17th seed to be created.

The 2009 semifinal match between Jelena Jankovic (left) and Elena Dementieva (right) featured two top-10 ranked players and was one of the longest women's semifinals ever played in Cincinnati. It occurred Saturday evening, August 15, 2009 and lasted two hours and 46 minutes before Jankovic emerged with the win. The following day, Jankovic had enough in the tank to defeat world No. 1 Dinara Safina in the final to collect her only Cincinnati singles title, and her first of three career wins over a world No. 1.

Seeds = Total seeded players that year
In QF = Number of seeds to reach the QF

Bold = All top 8 seeds in quarterfinals (1 occurrence)

Note: No. 17 seeds are not included above, as a seed had to withdraw for a 17th seed to be created.

Above, Marion Bartoli is seen in her first-round match with Jamea Jackson in 2008. Abdominal pains forced Bartoli to retire from the match in the second set, unfortunately making her the first women’s singles No. 1 seed to lose before the quarterfinals, and the first women’s singles No. 1 seed to lose a first-round match since seeding began in 1927. In 2013, Bartoli arrives in Cincinnati just 40 days after winning the Wimbledon singles title and announces her immediate retirement from tennis, citing injuries sustained over her career. She falls to Simona Halep in her first match of the tournament, her final professional match.

In 1973 at age 15, Jeanne Evert entered the tournament in Cincinnati and made her professional tennis debut. She raced all the way to the semifinals, and is still the youngest quarterfinalist and the youngest semifinalist in Cincinnati in the Open Era. She's seen above in an Cincinnati Post photo from that year.

(Open Era Unique Individuals to Reach the R16: 226)

Andrea Farley is the fourth-youngest women’s player to reach the Round of 16 in Cincinnati in the Open Era, and the first women’s singles wild card ever to reach the Round of 16. Farley was only 16 years old when she fell to Beth Herr in three sets in the Round of 16 on August 4, 1988. Farley won four Ohio high school tennis championships (an Ohio record for both boys and girls) while at Cincinnati’s Indian Hill High School, and was a junior singles finalist at both the French Open and the Australian Open. She went on to be a three-time All American at the University of Florida, and played on the WTA Tour from 1988 to 1993, reaching a career-high ranking of 118.

STATS – Women’s Singles - QUALIFIERS / LUCKY LOSERS

In 2022, Caroline Garcia became the first player, in either men’s or women’s singles, to win the singles title in Cincinnati as a qualifier. No men’s qualifier has reached a singles final, but three men’s qualifiers have reached the semifinals – Alexandr Dolgoplov in 2015, David Wheaton in 1994, and Rick Fagel in 1977. Garcia’s final match with Petra Kvitova also is the first instance of two unseeded players in a Cincinnati women’s singles final in tournament history (since seeding began in 1927).

In 2004, Lindsay Davenport won three consecutive tournaments and then accepted a wild card in Cincinnati. She was made the No. 1 seed and won the championship – her fourth consecutive title – by beating No. 2 seed Vera Zvonareva in the final, 6-3, 6-2. (Davenport is seen above in a Cincinnati Enquirer photo from August 19, 2004.)

STATS – Women’s Singles - ALL TIME SEEDS & DRAW SIZES

When seeding began in 1927, the first woman to be seeded in Cincinnati was Marion Leighton of Chicago. She's seen above in a photo published in the July 9, 1925 edition of the New York Daily News.

Since 1927, Pauline Betz (above) and Serena Williams (below) have both been seeded No. 1 more than anyone else in Cincinnati women's singles history – each has been seeded No. 1 a total of four times.

DOUBLES STATISTICS

“We made a bet that if we won this tournament, we might have to go on that sky ride (at the nearby Kings Island amusement park).

So if I’m dead, that’s how I died.”

– Mike Bryan, speaking to the Cincinnati Enquirer in 2003 after he and his brother Bob won their first Cincinnati doubles title. The brothers would go on to reach more doubles finals and win more doubles titles than any other team in Cincinnati history.

A women's singles match at the 1899 Cincinnati tournament.

“This is a great honor. The countless people who helped with the Tri-State, which became the Western Championships, and eventually the ATP Championships. All the people who worked at Old Coney, Lunken Playfield, Mt. Echo – all those places.

It's a tribute to them.”

– Tony Trabert, speaking to the Cincinnati Enquirer in June, 1989, after Cincinnati became the first city ever selected as “Tennis City of the Year” by the International Tennis Hall of Fame.

Barbora Strycova (left) and Sania Mirza (right) won the 2016 women's doubles title over Martina Hingis and Coco Vandeweghe. Mirza also won the 2007 doubles title in Cincinnati (with Bethanie Mattek-Sands), and has more wins (22), appearances (13) and matches (33) in women's doubles than any other player in the Open Era in Cincinnati.

INDIVIDUAL PLAYER RECORDS

"If you ask me where I'd want to play,

I'd choose Cincy to be honest.

Other places are fun and everything, but I get energized to play here."

– Andy Roddick in 2006 on his affinity for Cincinnati where he won two titles and 38 singles matches, often, seemingly, drawing strength from the will of the fans.

“You guys feel like I’m some sort of robot out there and I feel nothing. That’s not the case.

I was upset.”

– Pete Sampras after the 1998 singles final ended when chair umpire Lars Graff overruled an “out” call on Patrick Rafter’s serve. Graff’s reversal came on championship point, and it gave the match and the title to Rafter.

WOMEN'S DRAWS

"In Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the wonderful Norwegian, Cincinnati fans see the 'player ideal'.

Miss Bjurstedt combines strength and grace with a skill that has made her almost invulnerable in this country as well as Europe."

— Cincinnati Post, September 14, 1915

"This will be the biggest tennis event of the year in the United States...an even

than the national tournament, recently held in Newport, Rhode Island."

— The Cincinnati Post, September 1, 1904

As was stated in the first edition of this book, assembling more than 100 years of lost history isn't easy, and it's not something one does alone. Among those who were particularly helpful was Steve Headley (who researched thousands of articles on microfilm at the Public Library of Cincinnati and Hamilton County), Joanne & J. Howard "Bumpy" Frazer (who donated a collection of drawsheets from the Open Era which formed the backbone of this book), Frank Phelps of Philadelphia (who provided a peek into the past via his collection of ancient and exceedingly rare tennis annuals), and Brian Nester (who helped review the book and supplied additional information).

However, there are two people who have expended the most effort, brain-power, and expertise to make this possible: Will Sikes (former Director of Marketing for the Western & Southern Open) and Pete Holtermann (of HolterMedia and a long-time volunteer and contractor for the tournament).

Others who lent their time and talents to make this edition and the previous editions possible include:

Phillip S. Smith first touched a tennis racquet when the tennis coach at his high school asked him to try out for the team. The coach didn't know if Phil could play tennis or not; he just knew an injury was preventing Phil from joining the track team that spring, and that his tennis team needed players.

The tennis coach handed Phil a racquet, and Phil started his tennis career by shanking seven balls over the fence behind the opposite baseline. The tennis coach immediately reclaimed his racquet.

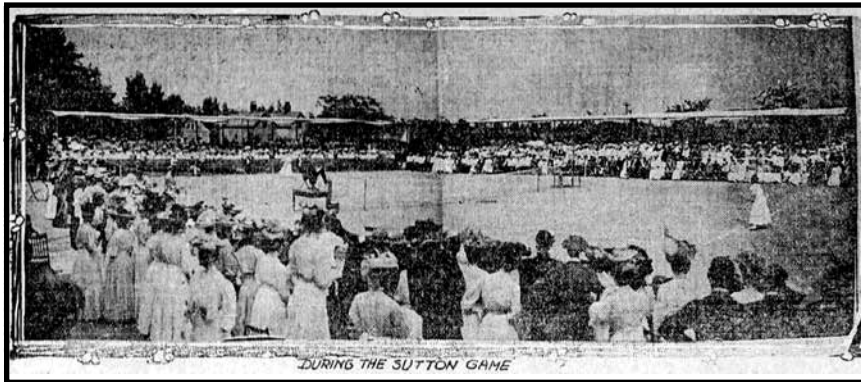

By the time Phil graduated from high school and the E.W. Scripps School of Journalism at Ohio University, his tennis skill, or even his knowledge of the sport beyond a rudimentary level, hadn't improved.

Ironically, he began working for the Cincinnati tennis tournament, first as a year-round marketing consultant, then as a member of the staff. And while his knowledge of tennis was growing, he knew the knowledge base of the tournament itself - its rich history and unique place in the sport - was largely unknown.

Phil endeavored to change that by creating this book, and then by producing a new edition every year. He modeled it after The Wimbledon Compendium, but with sections and statistics unlike any other book of its kind. Additionally, he created a museum on the grounds of the Lindner Family Tennis Center to display the history of the tournament.

During his 22-year career with the tournament, Phil served tennis in other ways as well, most notably as a board member and President of the Greater Cincinnati Tennis Association and in volunteer roles with the Ohio Valley Tennis Association and the United States Tennis Association's Midwest Section. He's been honored on numerous occasions with awards recognizing his promotion of tennis in the Midwest, and in 2012 he was enshrined into the Cincinnati Tennis Hall of Fame.

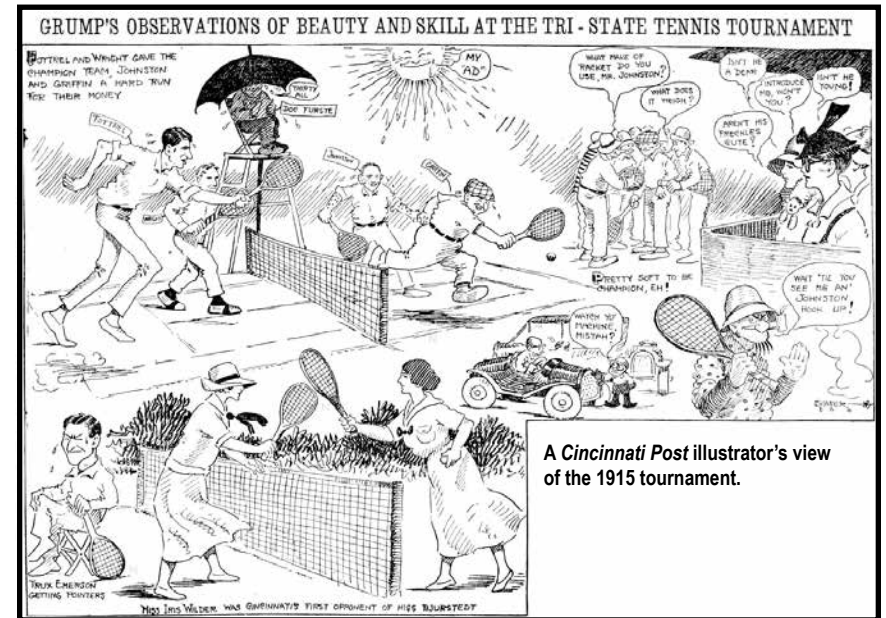

It's a good bet the Hall's selection committee wasn't aware how his tennis career started in high school.
